JOHN F. MURPHY

Charged With Illegal Keeping Liquor

SEVERAL SENTENCES FOR DRUNKENNESS

Young Carney's Racket Wound up Badly

The police court session this morning was a short one. There were four drunks. Judge Hadley was on the bench.

Agnes McLean was fined $5 for drunkenness, while Edward F. Haley for a similar offence was sent to jail for three months.

Henry J. Carney, the young man who broke into Lawyer Donahue's office and later when pursued by officers, tried to jump into the Central canal, was only charged with drunkenness. When he was arrested last night, he gave the name of James J. Carney but today he said his proper name was Henry J. He pleaded guilty of drunkenness.

Lieut. Brosnan related the circumstances of Carney's arrest to the court. The young man said he drank quite heavily yesterday and said he didn't know what he was doing last night.

The court sentenced him to jail for 20 days in order to let him sober off.

John F. Murphy was charged with drunkenness and illegally keeping liquor. Murphy pleaded not guilty to both charges He said he was prepared for trial on the former but not on the latter charge.

Accordingly, the court ordered the case of illegal keeping continued until Tuesday next. Murphy was held in $300 for trial.

The case of drunkenness was tried. Officer Ingalls was the first to testify. He and Officer McCloughrey arrested Murphy about 1.30 o'clock this morning. Murphy was standing in front of his cider and wine store at the corner of Bridge and French streets when arrested. According to Officer Ingalls, the defendant was gloriously drunk and was very disorderly. The officer said he staggered and could hardly stand on his feet.

Officer McCloughrey, who assisted Officer Ingalls in making the arrest, testified that Murphy was drunk and was hardly able to stand up. He was disorderly. The officers said the door of Murphy's store was open.

John took the stand in his own behalf. He admitted he drank last night but said he was far from being drunk. He denied he was disorderly. While his store was open he said the place was not lighted.

The court found John F. guilty and imposed a fine of $3. While John paid, he was frank in saying it was an outrage of the worst kind.

Murphy's place was visited by Inspectors Donaldson and Maher last Saturday afternoon. The inspectors found John F. selling cider across the bar which in the first place is a violation of the law. But the inspectors went further. They seized a quantity of the cider and subsequently had it analyzed. It was found to be stronger than the law allows it to be sold. In consequence a complaint of illegal keeping of liquor was made against him.

The case of John A. Porter, illegally removing baggage was placed on file.

A GREEK BARBER

Made a Fierce Fight Against Arrest

BY CONSTABLE McMANUS

For Non Payment of Poll Tax for 1898

Quite a scene was enacted on John street this morning about 10 o'clock, the principals being John Kiteoring, the Greek barber who conducts a five cent establishment in the Morris block and Constables McManus and Mercier, and Police Officer Daniel J. Lane. It seems that Kiteoring owed poll tax for 1898 which with interest and costs amounts now to $4.75. The constables knowing the barber to have money on hand, made a demand for the payment of the amount. This the barber refused to do and being threatened with arrest, said: "I would rather die than pay that bill." Finally seeing that the barber was determined not to pay the bill, the constable adopted the heroic measures of placing him in custody and taking him to jail. He fought desperately and Police Officer Dan Lane was called upon Kiteoring was subdued. He was then taken to jail by the constables and will there remain for a period of twenty days at least. Before being released, however, he will be compelled to take the poor debtor's oath.

ENFORCE THE LAW

The People Demand That Whiskey Sales be Stopped

The Supt. of Police Should Enforce the No-License Law or Tell Who Prevents Him—If the Board of Police is to Blame Mayor Crowley Must Remove Them—Some Flagrant Instances of Official Negligence

Tomorrow will be Sunday, a day on which the speak-easies of Lowell seem to do the most, and the very day on which the liquor squad of the Lowell police department seem to do the least. Last Sunday, the liquor squad covered themselves and the administration of the police department with disgrace. This gallant squad searched Lowell high and low for liquor last Sunday. They went into the highways, by-ways and back alleys. They searched bar-rooms, drug stores, cellars, attics, kitchens and parlors, and reported that they could not find a drop of liquor or the slightest evidence of sales in all this wide city. All this time the other branch of the police department was attending to business, by running in Sunday drunks to the number of thirty. Just think of it. On the same day that the liquor squad certified officially that there was not a drop of liquor sold in Lowell, their fellow officers brought in thirty drunks, as a proof that the liquor squad was either a pack of liars, fools, knaves or chumps.

Now, will Supt. Davis please explain to the public how such a farce could have been enacted on one day in the department of which he is the executive head? And while you are about it, Mr. Davis, will you kindly tell the people you work for and who pay you a good fat salary, whether you propose to allow things to drift along in the present disgraceful manner, as far as the sale of liquor is concerned. You say you want to stop the sale of whiskey in Lowell, Mr. Davis. Then why don't you do it? You have admitted that whiskey is sold in Lowell. Do you also admit that you cannot stop it, or at least reduce it so low that it will be practically stopped? You know it is getting worse and worse. Is that any reason why you and your department should get worse and worse? Why don't you go about it as if you meant business, Mr. Davis? Making speeches to the officers for the purpose of getting them printed in the papers is not stopping the sale of whiskey, and you know it, Mr. Davis.

Why don't you brace up like a man? Do what the people want you to do, and the people will sustain you. Why don't you look after that hotel under your very nose on Market street? Has anyone told you that they could get whiskey in that hotel without much difficulty? If so, have you taken the proper means to find out whether it is true or not? Is it true, Mr. Davis, that the whiskey dispensed in that hotel can actually be detected with the nose from the police station? When the wind is right, and you are sitting in your office adorned with your beautiful uniform, can you smell it?

And by the way, Mr. Davis how many people have told you or your officers about a pitcher on the ice in the barroom of the American House, a hotel which is also very near the police station. People are talking about that pitcher. Have you ever tried to find out what they sell from that pitcher? Have you tried to get a man in there to get hold of that pitcher? If not, why not, Mr. Davis? Have you heard about the open sale of liquor, day and night and every day in the week, on Concord street? If you have not, then you had better look into it at once, or people will think you are in an official trance, Mr. Davis. Have you heard any complaints about that drug store in Belvidere where Officer Donaldson's son is in charge? Are you surprised to learn that Officer Donaldson's son is connected with a drug store, Mr. Davis? Perhaps you are and perhaps you are not, but how often do you inspect that particular drug store, and who do you send to do the inspecting? Have you heard the story that is going the rounds, of how your officers caught a dealer on Bridge street selling cider over the bar and how this dealer sent a man to the drug store where Donaldson's son is employed, and after purchasing a quantity of whiskey, held it as evidence and told the liquor squad to press the cider case if they dared? Is this story without foundation, or is it true, Mr. Davis? Can a liquor law violator defy your department, or is this only a fake story of the street?

Why don't you stop the selling of liquor on Suffolk street? Why don't you stop the selling that is going on in Merrimack square? Why don't you stop the selling on Worthen street, on upper Market street, on Lakeview avenue, on Fayette street, and on many other streets. Haven't you heard of these places, Mr. Davis? Well, if you haven't, you are slow, very slow.

And furthermore, Mr. Davis, why can't you do something with the Middlesex street hotels? Are you afraid of them? Are you afraid of the men on the liquor squad, so far that you don't dare compel them to do their duty or are you afraid of the board of police, lest they reprimand you for being too zealous? Out with it, Mr. Davis. The people will stand by you if you have courage and tell the truth.

Mr. Faulkner, chairman of the board, has told a prominent and respectable citizen who is interested in the suppression of the sale of liquor that the board of police alone should be held responsible if the law is not enforced. He says that the chief will do as he is told, no more, no less. If what Mr. Faulkner says is true, you are doing as you are told and no more. Is this so, Mr. Davis? If it is so, then the people of Lowell want to know it. If you are not obeying the orders of the board, then you should resign your position at once and allow someone to be appointed in your place who will stop this illegal sale of liquor in Lowell. If you are obeying orders, then it is up to Mayor Crowley to remove the entire police board and appoint men who will instruct you to do your duty. The people want the truth in this liquor farce and they will get it. The mayor cannot lie back much longer and dodge the question, as he did in the city campaign. He cannot point to his record on the liquor question much longer and say that is sufficient. What the people of Lowell demand in the present crisis is not records but acts. Public sentiment is rising to fever heat on this liquor farce and public sentiment is strong enough to move the most stubborn mayor that ever sat in city hall. The people of Lowell are ripe for revolt at this moment and the mayor, board of police, and Supt. Davis may as well face the music now as later on. Indeed, it is better for all of them to face it now, rather than later on, when matters may be worse for them.

The people want the law enforced, and if they cannot get it enforced in one way, they will in another. They want the superintendent of police ordered to do his duty, or removed from office. They want the board of police to enforce the law or if they do not, they want Mayor Crowley to remove them from office and appoint new commissioners in their places. The people are still the supreme power in this city and if the police board fails in its duty and the mayor fails to remove them for cause when it becomes sufficient then the people will remove the mayor as they have the power to do, and put a man in his place who will stop open rum-selling in Lowell. Supt. Davis cannot fool the people; neither can the police board nor the mayor fool the people. The responsibility is rapidly narrowing down to the mayor's office and unless some people brace up and come to their senses, the mayor will be compelled to act whether he likes it or not. By the way, don't forget that tomorrow will be Sunday.

BRAVE PICQUART

Replies to the Testimony of Gen. Roget

Dreyfus' Friend Made an Excellent Impression—Gave a Minute and Clear Explanation of the Secret Dossier—Maitre Mornard Will Assist Dreyfus' Counsel

By Associated Press to The Sun.

RENNES, Aug. 18.—When the second trial by court martial of Captain Alfred Dreyfus charged with treason, was resumed in the Lycee at 7.20 this morning, Col. Picquart, former chief of the intelligence department of the war office was called to the witness stand and continued his deposition which was interrupted yesterday by the adjournment of the court for today.

The colonel gave his testimony in the same loud, fearless tone of voice. He commenced by declaring that he thought it necessary to reply immediately to General Roget's veritable arraignment of him while the latter was on the stand.

At the outset of Colonel Picquart's remarks, General Roget interposed and said he would reply to them.

Continuing, Col. Picquart proceeded to discuss the secret dossier as being the mainspring of the condemnation of Dreyfus. He took up the document and referred to the writers and addresses of the letters as "A" and "B."

Among those present in court were Generals Zurlinden and Billot, former ministers of war.

Maitre Mornard, who argued the case in behalf of the Dreyfus family, for the revision of the prisoner's sentence, before the court of cassation, was present this morning to assist M. Demange of counsel for the defence.

THE TESTIMONY.

Following is the evidence in detail:

Before resuming his deposition, Colonel Picquart said: "I think it needful to say a few words with reference to the veritable speech for the prosecution delivered by General Roget when referring to the Quenelli case."

The president of court, Colonel Jouaust here interposed, saying:

"Is it a personal matter?"

"I shall be very brief, colonel," replied Colonel Picquart. "I am, moreover ready to reply to all questions the court may ask on the subject. For the moment, I shall confine myself to the following explanation:

"The Quenelli case occurred between May 26 and July 17, 1896, at which period, on account of a family bereavement, I was able to pay very little attention to my official duties.

"In my absence Colonel Henry acted for me. Moreover I devoted most of the month of July to a journey of the headquarters' staff which also prevented me from attending to ordinary duties. I was, therefore, able to give only very little intermittent attention to the Quenelli. Besides this, Quenelli was a returned convict who had contravened a decree of expulsion and had been caught red handed in another criminal act. He was, at first sight as now a particularly interesting personage."

At this point General Roget arose and said: "I wish to be allowed to reply."

"You shall," said Colonel Jouaust.

Colonel Picquart, continuing, said:

"I protest absolutely against the allegation that I consented to the communication of secret documents to the members of the Dreyfus court martial without the prisoner's knowledge. I never ordered such communication, and if it was done it was not with my cognizance. I hasten to add that in my opinion it would have been an insult to the court to believe its members would lend themselves to such machinations."

"I am ready, I repeat, to reply to every question. I will only point out that all Colonel Roget has recounted in detail was published in general terms, in the Gaulois, January 7.

"Having thus explained certain matters, I will continue my deposition."

After dealing with the testimony of the experts at the court martial of 1894 Picquart proceeded to examine the secret dossiers, a close analysis of which he asserted was particularly necessary "owing to the weight the document had with the members of the court martial in 1894.

"This dossier," continued the witness, "may be divided into two parts. The first contains three documents:

One—A document known as the d'Avignon document, the terms of which are about as follows: "Doubt the proofs. Service letters. Situation dangerous for me with French officer. No information from an officer of the line. Important only as coming from the ministry. Already somewhere else."

Two—The document containing the words, "Cette Canaille de D——."

Three—A document which is nothing but the report of a journey to Switzerland made in behalf of a foreign power.

"The second part of the dossier," continued Picquart, "consisted partly of a supplementary review of the first. It contained the gist of seven or eight documents, one of which, "Cette Canaille de D——" will serve for the purposes of comparison. It also contained the correspondence of attaches "A" and "B."

"These initials, it should be borne in mind represent Col. Schwartzkoppen, former German military attache at Paris and Major Panizzardi, former military attache of Italy at the French capital.

The minute detail with which the Col. had great effect upon the audience and dealt with the evidence, the clearness of his language and his deductions had great effect upon the audience and elicited general admiration.

The former chief of the intelligence department concluded his examination of the first portion of the secret dossier by saying:

"May I be allowed to express deep regret at the absence of Major Paty de Clam. It seems to me indispensable that this officer who wrote the commentaries on the secret dossier should be summoned to give evidence here. He would give us his reminiscences and I would help him." (Laughter.)

"But," added Picquart, "since I am dealing with this question of the commentaries of Major du Paty de Clam, permit me to point out to you, gentlemen, that his document was not the property of any particular minister. It was classified as belonging to the intelligence department and as you see, it formed part of a well-defined dossier—a dossier which was shut up in one of the drawers of my desk and which was abstracted from it. This commentary therefore is upon a secret dossier document which was improperly removed from my department. (Sensation.)

Turning to the second portion of the dossier, Picquart described a number of documents in it as forgeries and said the police reports therein contained nothing serious against Dreyfus. He explained that they embodied the theme mostly utilized by police spies in order to dupe the intelligence department and asserted that their information was mostly worthless, embroidered or false and prepared in order to make interesting reading.

"In the inquiry made by M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire (former president of the civil section of the court of cassation) continued Picquart, "you have an excellent example of the sort of people can present in the most specious guise what amounts absolutely to nothing.

"You cannot imagine, gentlemen, what people, in order to get money, if only a modest twenty-franc piece, have brought to the intelligence department in the shape of so-called information which examination has proved to be worthless."

Dreyfus displayed the keenest interest in Picquart's protracted analysis of the dossier, which the whole audience listened to with profound attention. The members of the court martial and the former ministers of war were equally interested.

The witness then rebutted the charges against him of unnecessarily delaying the prosecution of Esterhazy. He said his object was to avoid arousing suspicion in regard to an officer who perhaps was entirely innocent.

"What a mistake," he added, "would have been avoided in 1894 had they acted in the same way in regard to Dreyfus."

This remark caused murmurs of approval in court. "What the witness gathered about Esterhazy's character," he continued, "created the worst impression upon him, but he learned nothing to connect Esterhazy with any act of espionage. Therefore, he did not mention his suspicions. An agent, however, was ordered to watch Esterhazy, who had completely compromised himself through his relations [illegible] English company" of which he had agreed to become a director.

"That could not be permitted in the case of a French officer," said Picquart. "Moreover, Esterhazy gambled, led a life of debauchery and lived with [illegible] dame Pays."

The witness continuing said: "You know," he maintained, "that the bordereau is the joint work of Alfred and Matthew Dreyfus."

"M. Bertillon said: 'That is the writing of the bordereau.' M. Bertillon asked to discover where I had obtained the handwriting, but the only information I imparted was that it was current and recent handwriting. M. Bertillon then suggested that it was tracing and ended by saying that if it was current handwriting it could only have emanated from some one whom the Jews had been exercising for a year in imitating the handwriting of the bordereau.

"At M. Bertillon's request I left the photographs with him. When he returned them, he said he adhered to his opinion and earnestly asked to see the original, when I saw beyond a doubt that the handwriting of the bordereau was Esterhazy's and seeing that the documents mentioned therein might have been supplied by Esterhazy; that the words 'I am going to the manoeuvres' could perfectly well apply to Esterhazy had secretaries at his disposal to copy a document so voluminous as the firing manual, I resolved to consult the secret dossier to see what part of the treachery might be ascribed to Dreyfus and assure myself if the dossier contained anything implicating Esterhazy.

"I frankly admit that I was stupefied on reading the secret dossier. I expected to find matters of gravity [illegible] and found in short nothing but a document which might apply just as much to Esterhazy as to Dreyfus, an unimportant document mentioning D'Avignon and a document which it seemed absurd to apply to Dreyfus, namely, the 'Cette Canaille de D——' document. Lastly, I recognized a report appended in the handwriting of Gonse, which appeared to be at least as worthless as the second document.

"It was then evening. I had stayed late at the office in order to examine the documents thoroughly. I thought it over during the night and the next day I explained the whole situation to General de Boisdeffre. I took to his office the secret dossier, the fac simile of the bordereau, the petit bleu and the principal papers connected with my investigation of Esterhazy.

"Before starting to see Gen. Gonze I copied a note four pages in length which I made September 1, containing my resume of the Esterhazy affair.

"When I informed General Gonze of all that had occurred, he remarked: 'So a mistake has been made.'

"After my interview with General Gonze, I did not work any longer on my own initiative. I said nothing more until the return of General Gonze on September 15. At that time Esterhazy was at the great manoeuvres."

The historic steamer Northwest of the Hudson Bay company broke from her moorings, struck the middle pier of the bridge and went down river a total wreck. The river is still rising and is full of driftwood, miners shacks and effects. Citizens on the river bank are moving out.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 18.—Arthur Sargent of [illegible] who late yesterday was held for the grand jury for the alleged murder of Will Colbath and Harry Quimby, both of Stetson, at Stetson Pond last Friday, was this morning committed to jail without bail to await the action of the grand jury of the February criminal session of the supreme court of this city.

LOWELL LADY'S SUCCESS.

Mrs. Grace Keenes Fraser of Boston, formerly of Lowell, sang very acceptably at a dinner party on Tuesday evening, given by Mrs. J. K. Allen of Huntington avenue. Mrs. Fraser has been quite successful in her musical work in Boston, her voice being of pleasing quality which wins much praise from critical audiences. A short time ago she appeared at musicales in the parlors of the Imperial hotel, New York city, and the Quincy house, Boston. She has several engagements in concert for the autumnal and winter seasons.

Mrs. J. M. Goss leaves town today for a two weeks' visit to her aged mother in Wilmington, Delaware.

Man's Body Found by the Roadside

BODY BORE INDICATIONS OF MURDER

One Man Suspected is Under Arrest

POLICE FIND IT VERY DIFFICULT

To Get Information of the Affair

By Associated Press to The Sun.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Aug. 18.—The body of an Armenian who had been a resident of a colony, living at West Fitchburg, was found by the roadside not far from the Ashburnham line on the McIntyre road, this afternoon, bearing indications of murder. The police were summoned to the scene by a woman who claimed to be the dead man's wife, and later they arrested another member of the colony, who was brought to the station here. Owing to the excitement and the inability of all concerned to speak English, no names could be secured by the police until sometime after the matter was called to their attention. The dead man was apparently about forty years of age. The one under arrest is about 26.

Soon after 8 o'clock this morning a wagon in which were a woman and two children were driven up to the police station rapidly. The woman, who was an Armenian, made known to the officers the fact that a murder had been committed. She claimed that the man was her husband and intimated that if the police made haste they could find the murderer.

The authorities responded quickly and the woman conducted them to the corner of Ashburnham street and McIntyre road where they found the body. The man apparently had been clubbed to death as his head was terribly bruised and cut.

The police learned that the man who was killed passed along the road at about 7.30 o'clock [illegible] afterwards another Armenian was seen going in the same direction. A short time later the second person returned alone. With the facts in their possession the police went to the Armenian settlement. There they found the man, who it is claimed had followed the victim of the apparent murder. The woman who notified the police also designated him as the one whom the police wanted and he was arrested. Great excitement prevailed in the colony. The police had much difficulty in getting any further information and they withdrew with their prisoner before having obtained the name of the dead man or the one whom they had arrested. The police believe the affair was the outcome of the frequent quarrels which occur in the colony.

GREAT PREPARATIONS FOR LABOR DAY

Building Laborers Hold Big Meeting

The Weavers' union held a well attended meeting last night at which as is the custom with the union, business was followed by a social time and dancing played the heavy part. The members were feeling particularly jubilant. They had their financial account rendered by Treasurer Thomas F. Connolly, and although a sum approximate to $500 has been paid to members of the union who were locked out on account of the strike in the Massachusetts, the treasury is yet in good standing and there is a comfortable surplus on hand. In fact the union is in better condition than ever before and barring accidents, the amounts in the treasury will keep growing, as several of the members who were receiving help have obtained positions of late.

Great preparations are being made for the parade and the union intends to do all in its power to swell the ranks on Labor Day. There was great rejoicing last evening as some of the members thought that the treasury with the constant drain upon it, was perhaps growing weak and they were both surprised and delighted to find that their fears were unfounded.

BUILDING LABORERS.

Building Laborers Union held a spirited meeting last evening, at which preparations for Labor Day were energetically discussed and put into operation. Daniel Moynahan was elected aid to the chief marshal and Edward Gormley was chosen marshal for the union. A committee was also appointed to purchase uniforms in which the members will parade. Members were also appointed to carry the banner of the union and the American flag.

LULA DU DLEY.

Traveling alone through the country in the hope of curing herself of a love infatuation, 14-year-old Lula Dudley says she has pretty nearly succeeded in the object of her trip. So far she has travelled about 2000 miles and when she has added another thousand to the record she thinks she will be heart whole.

Lula's home is at 224 Arcinega avenue, San Antonio, Tex. Though she is still a mere child, she fell desperately in love not long ago. She wanted to get married but her parents would not let her and decided that a trip might cure her of her infatuation. So they started her off on a visit to an uncle in Clarksburg, W. Va. She went all alone and acted for herself throughout, going to such hotels as she chose and stopping off wherever she liked.

She nearly floored the clerks in most of the hotels she patronized when she walked in and registered as "Miss Dudley, Texas."

"I am travelling partly for pleasure and partly to forget an unfortunate love affair," she told one of them. "I have nearly succeeded and I think by the time I get home, I shall be all right. I see now that my parents were right in opposing my marriage and am glad they advised my travelling. I have enjoyed myself so much that I shall go to the Paris exposition next year and while abroad I shall finish my musical education. I don't want to go on the stage or adopt a professional life, but I have so much musical talent that I think it is my duty to develop it."

The child's parents are wealthy ranch owners near San Antonio.

DONAHUE'S OFFICE

The Young Man Arrested and the Essay Recovered—Bicyclist Attacked by Highwaymen—Other Matters

A young man giving the name of James J. Carney was arrested in the rear of D. J. Donahue's office in the Mansur Block last night.

In his efforts to escape the officers he nearly jumped into the canal. On being searched at the police station some papers from Mr. Donahue's office were found in his possession including an essay on music, but nothing else of value. It was found that a pane of glass in Mr. Donahue's office window had been broken and that the glass in the private office door was also broken. The young man was intoxicated and did not know what he was doing. Mr. Donahue says that if Judge Hadley sentences Carney to read the essay on music it will be sufficient punishment.

ATTACKED BY HIGHWAYMEN.

Edward Bessey, the well known long-distance runner, was attacked by three highwaymen last night in the vicinity of the new Moody street school.

Mr. Bessey was running along easily when accosted, and in trying to stop him, the men threw him violently to the ground.

The fall caused painful bruises. Mr. Bessey struggled with the men and landed some effective punches that the men will undoubtedly remember. He wore only his running suit.

Mr. Bessey says he thinks he could identify the men who attacked him. Identigy the men who attacked him. There were three of them. Mr. Bessey is of the opinion, however that the motive of the men in attacking him was more for excitement than robbery. It was not the first time Bessey has been attacked by thugs. He was set upon by two men in Tewksbury about two years ago.

SIMPSON'S NOVEL METHOD OF MOVING

Lowell Boys in Philippines Write

A $300,000 MORTGAGE RECEIVED

Showing Benefit of Mortgage Stamp Law

Mayor Crowley was at Tyng's Island with the jolly Martin Luthers yesterda and Secretary Prescott held forth in his absence. There is little for the mayor to do at City Hall these afternoons as all his callers visit him in the morning.

The committee on Labor Day will meet again next Wednesday and perfect arrangements for the city's share of the celebration.

The sale of the tickets for the raffle of Cheney's bicycle goes merrily on and the projectors of the scheme are hopeful for a good financial result. The ticket sellers have taken The Sun's advice and have not confined the sale to sewer privileges. A few of the street department bosses have purchased them. The "widow" in the case is said to be a real one and the wheel is said to have cost $50. Whether it's a charity or not, one man there'll be who will have no complaint to make, the one who draws the lucky number.

Arthur Salmon yesterday received a letter dated Manila from Private Alfred Champagne of C company, 13th Infantry Regulars. The writer informed him that he is a Lowell boy and enlisted from Boston. He states that Private Lennon of Lowell formerly of Company M is in the same regiment with him and that both are in good health.

William H. Fuller who recently received the contract for the excavating and foundation work of the new High school annex on the city's lot at the corner of Paige and John streets has begun work on the job and has 17 teams at work there. The diggers have excavated a large amount of cobbles, making the work of difficult progress. Mr. Simpson who has had possession there under a lease recently settled his difficulty with the city, receiving, it is said, $100 and the frame building in which he was located. Mr. Simpson lost no time in getting off the land and did it a in novel manner. Securing a vacant lot on Second street in Centralville, he marked the different parts of his building so that he could put them together again and then tore down one half of the building moving the furniture and other articles that he had stored in that half into the other. Immediately after tearing the first half down he packed the lumber over to Centralville, put the parts together in place and in a few hours Mr. Simpson had half a building in Centralville and half in Paige street. He then returned to Paige street and moved all his furniture from the Paige street half into the Centralville half and now he's tearing down the other half.

Assistant City Clerk McCarthy is enjoying his vacation this week and he needs to enjoy it for when he returns he will be confronted with a job that will take his breath away.

Among the duties of the assistant clerk is that of copying all mortgages of property recorded in Lowell and yesterday afternoon the city clerk's office received the official mortgage of the United States Bobbin and Shuttle Co., to the Industrial Trust Co., for $300,000 the largest mortgage to appear in the local records for some time. The president of the U. S. Bobbin and Shuttle Co., is Walter L. Parker of this city whose plant is located on Western avenue. The Sun having announced exclusively some time ago the intention of this company to join the trust.

The deal was affected Aug. 1.

As some of the property mentioned in the mortgage is located in this city it is necessary to have it recorded in the office of the local city clerk and as the concern has property in Manchester, Woonsocket, R. I., and other places the mortgage will be a much copied affair, after going the rounds.

It is a large and closely printed document, 60 pages in exent and of dry legal matter, the most exasperating of all kinds to copy. To an unitiated observer, it is mainly interesting for the great amount of internal revenue stamps upon its first page, for according to a recent revenue law, all mortgages of $1500 or over require revenue stamps, a 25-cent stamp for a $1500 mortgage and an additional 25 cens for every $500 additional amount. By just such a mortgage as this, one gets a good idea of the great income derived by means of the internal revenue laws.

On the mortgage received yesterday afternoon are two $50 stamps; four $10; one $5; one $3; one $1; and one 50-cent stamp: a total of $149.50, the most costly paper for its size seen in a long time.

But a $300,000 mortgage will not be the largest on the clerk's books for that of the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill street railroad to the American Loan and Trust company exceeds anything on the books, the amount of this mortgage being $1,900,000. This mortgage was no easy job for the copyist, for it takes up nearly 40 pages of the record. This was recorded before the law requiring stamps on mortgages was passed otherwise it would require stamps to the amount of $955.

KID McCOY, Knocked Out in One Round by Jack McCormick.

ONE STIFF BLOW

From McCormick Laid out Kid McCoy

By Associated Press to The Sun.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Jack McCormick of Philadelphia knocked out Kid McCoy in a little more than two minutes last night. The bout was to have been for six rounds and it was generally thought that McCormick stood no show at all. The fight was so short and so quickly over that there was almost nothing to it but the punch that put McCoy to sleep. The fight was under strict Queensberry rules, hitting with one arm free permitted.

When the gong sounded, McCormick started in to rush things, relying on his greater weight and superior strength to offset McCoy's science. He received a straight left in the mouth the first time he tried it and a second later a savage left hook on the side of the head halted him a second time.

He then rushed twice more, carrying McCoy to the rope both times. The first time he hit McCoy over the kidneys with his right. The second time as they came from the ropes still clinched, McCoy freed his left and sent a hook to McCormick's cheek, dropping him to the floor. McCormick lay quiet, making a pretense of claiming a foul, although none had been committed.

With a sledge hammer blow of the right on the jaw, McCormick landed on McCoy, who failed to respond to the bell, and the fight was over.

TOOK TWO GAMES

Boston Won a Double Header From Louisville

MEEKIN AND "MIKE" SULLIVAN PITCHED

Hickman Did Great Work at the Bat

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—There was good sport at the South End grounds yesterday during the four hours consumed by the champions in taking a double header from the lively Louisville team.

In the first game, Meekin gave a superb exhibition of pitching and practically won his own game with the stick.

Lawyer Michael Sullivan donned the best togs for the second game as Ted Lewis failed to come around in shape to take his turn in the box and it is not proper to ask a star pitcher to work more than once or twice a week these days. Sully did well for a man out of the business and was given a splendid reception by the crowd after he won his game.

The playing was remarkably brilliant and the champions were forced to play their best to take two games from the visitors. There was sharp hitting and sharp fielding by nearly every man on both teams and the afternoon's performance was baseball of the finest quality.

Bill Clarke caught both games in the absence of Bergen, who was at home sick with a bad cold. Clarke was full of life and coached his pitchers in fine style. He closed a grand day's work by driving home the winning run in the last game.

The infielding was remarkable. Collins, Long and Tenney were at their best, while Clingman and Ritchie were fast and clever for the visitors. The outfielding of Stahl was never surpassed while Wagner was a close second. Stahl's was the best performance as he started more quickly and got short hit balls that few men could have reached. The colonel had longer runs, but more time to get there.

Clarke in left did some brilliant work. The longest hits were made easy by his fine starts and speedy runs. Hickman did well.

At the bat Hickman carried off the honors of the day with five safe ones out of seven chances. Tenney and Collins hit the ball very hard in the second game while Meekin and Stahl hit strongly in the first.

When you notice that Boston made only one mistake out of 81 chances you can imagine the kind of baseball they were playing.

In the second game Arlie Latham came behind the bat and was given a cold reception by the crowd. He, no doubt, did the best he could but was rattled and got mixed up several times. Sullivan was given a pretty raw deal on strikes at first. Latham did better as the game progressed but it was quite plain that umpiring for the Boston club will never be Latham's delight.

In the absence of Capt. Duffy, Tenney handled the team. He made the mistake of not taking Sullivan out after the seventh when the statesman was fast slowing up and in trouble.

Nichols and Willis could have worked the last two innings and made a game practically sure that was finally won out by a small margin.

Sullivan deserves praise for the way he went into the box. The uniform he wore was made for a smaller man. It was tore up the side before he could get working room. Mr. Sullivan was a picture as he walked out to pitch the first ball, the crowd cheered as he is well known to the fans, having a fine record in the big league before taking up the practice of law. He is more than six foot tall and built from the ground up. When Sully saw a fly ascend and called out, "I've got it," in a deep John L. Sullivan voice the other players kept hands off. At first it looked as if the old league pitcher was out of form but he soon settled down to a wide curve and held it to the last. They say that he is afraid to pitch a fast game fearing the consequences if he should hit a man. The lawyer received $50 for his two hours' work and was happy to see Boston win.

LOWELL'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

THE FAMOUS YACHT AMERICA.

A correspondent asks if the yacht America belonged to Gen. Butler at the time it won the cup in England in 1851. The America, as has already been stated, did not belong to General Butler until long after her victory in England. She had a checkered career. The property of the New York Yacht club at the time of her victory, she was purchased later by an Englishman and for a time flew the British flag. During the war, a syndicate of rebel sympathizers bought the vessel on account of her speed and when cornered as a blockade runner in St. John's river, she was scuttled to escape capture. She was raised, however, and was afterwards used as a training ship at Annapolis. In 1870 she took part in the cup race but was beaten by the other American yachts, the Magic, the Idler and the Silvie. Three years later, the government sold her to General Butler with whose estate she passed into the possession of his son, Paul Butler, who still holds her as a precious keepsake for the victories she won.

A PALPABLE FALSEHOOD.

Mr. Bryan is evidently getting rattled. He is now trying to keep free silver out of sight for a while, to see what the effect will be. At four different meetings in Iowa this week the prospective candidate approved the course of the democrats of that state in dropping 16 to 1 and substituting therefor anti-trust and anti-expansion. The straddling of the money question is good evidence that the democratic managers are becoming panic stricken. They would not throw overboard their cargo unless as a last desperate resort to save the vessel from shipwreck.—Mail.

The above is one of the most audacious and barefaced lies that could possibly be invented. The democratic state convention of Iowa endorsed the Chicago platform in whole and in every detail adding to it such resolutions as were deemed expedient in relation to the Cuban and Philippine wars and to the alarming growth of trusts. Furthermore it endorsed William Jennings Bryan as the next democratic candidate for the presidency, something which that convention would not have done had he in the slightest degree weakened in his advocacy of the Chicago platform whose basic principle is the free and unlimited coinage of both metals at the ratio of 16 to 1.

We defy the Mail to produce any utterance of William Jennings Bryan in which he agreed to keep the free silver issue in the background. The Mail must have little regard for the intelligence of its readers when it makes statements that are plainly contradicted and belied by the press despatches in every newspaper in the country. It indicates what a dearth of material there is for an attack on this foremost of democrats when the blatant republican shouters impose such fabrications upon their readers.

CREELMAN ON CROKER.

Here is what the great newspaper correspondent, James Creelman, says of that able but much-abused political leader, Richard Croker:

"For hours and hours I have walked the deck of the St. Paul with Richard Croker, and listened to the voice of the powerful man whose political influence I have fought unceasingly for twenty years," says James Creelman. "It is easy to attack him at a distance, but to argue against his simple, almost primitive ideas of popular government is like swimming against the ocean tide. During the seven days of my association with Mr. Croker, I learned something of the immense personal force that lies behind his soft gray eyes and still softer voice. I talked with ex-Speaker Reed, with Senator Sewell, of New Jersey, with the bankers and men of wide experience among the passengers. But every time I resumed my walks on deck with Mr. Croker, I became more impressed with his common sense and his marvelous knowledge of men. He reasons almost like a child, directly from the facts to conclusions and from conclusions to facts, without any fine elaboration or strained effort. His statements are blunt, sometimes brutally so. Never for an instant during our whole week's vacation on the St. Paul did he wander away from his simple idea that political parties exist for the purpose of finding out what the people want and giving them what they want. His whole theory of politics, consciously or unconsciously, seems to be that government should originate at the bottom and work upward instead of originating at the top and working downward; that the people and not the leaders should choose the issues and determine them.

SOME TAX-RATES.

We are hearing considerable about tax rates high and low at the present time. Our own happens to be the highest we ever heard of except that of Brockton which is over $21 and that of Dayton, Ohio, so meticulously dilated upon by Robert E. Crowley. It is a smooth paying tax rate for Dayton is smooth paved almost entirely and we have a taste of the asphaltum tax rate, $14.60, just four dollars more than the tax rate of Lawrence. The city of Haverhill has a tax rate of $17.80, Springfield's tax rate is $17.60 and Boston's $13.10 just half a dollar less than that of last year. The city of Lowell once enjoyed a reasonably low tax rate but the municipal reformers started to tinker the charter to establish economy on a true basis and now we are reaping the fruit of their wisdom.

The democrats of Iowa and Kentucky have held their state conventions and in both cases the Chicago platform and William J. Bryan were endorsed. Yet the papers that are paid for being in the interests of the republican party will assert that they have thrown aside the free silver issue. Both states condemned the policy of entering upon a war of conquest and of spilling American blood in the ignoble cause of oppressing a people who are struggling to be free, a people that had cast off the yoke of another nation and declared their independence before the United States was buncoed into buying what didn't exist—Spain's sovereignty in the Philippine islands.

The news from the Philippines brings tidings of the capture of the town of San Mateo. As this place is but 10 miles distant from Manila this item is calculated to give the American public some idea of how little headway was made in the four months of ardnous and active campaigning before the rainy season set in, toward the expansion of our territorial possessions on the island of Luzon, despite all the glowing and lying official reports with which the people of the United States were for months being gulled.—Fall River Globe.

Chief Wade has refused to enforce the stationary firemen's license act on the strength of the opinion of the attorney general. When did Knowlton's opinion supersede the statutes?

The Citizen has scored a scoop on the Sun in sending one of its bright young men to Naples to interview Admiral Dewey but the Sun will outdo the Citizen by sending a representative over to have a social chat with Her Majesty Queen Victoria. Yes, sir, if we have to hire a special ship for the purpose we are going to get the best of the Citizen. The Mail is not in the game at all.

The New York Journal draws the line between imperialism and expansion. It is for the latter and against the former, which it says is the exploitation of the ruled for the benefit of the rulers. It is getting into line with the prevailing sentiment of the party on this point.

Here is a characteristic piece of inconsistency from the Morning Mail:

"Nobody ever will build a boat which will beat any other boat in any kind of weather."

"We believe that we have a boat that can beat any foreign craft anywhere in any kind of weather.—Mail.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to have a grand open air band tournament at the Fair Grounds for suitable prizes, having as competitors Lowell bands, the Talbot Mills band of North Billerica and the Allen band of Billerica Centre. Out-of-town judges could be secured and favorites could not then be charged. It would settle the question of supremacy which is creating no end of discussion between local and suburban bands. A tip for such promoters as Con Desmond or the street railway company.

Oh, when a man is waiting
For a girl to don her hat,
An hour is fully three hours long
Indeed, 'tis all of that.
But when a man is writing,
In haste to catch the mail,
An hour will pass away before
A sheep could shake his tail.

We have known that the language of the eyes, flowers, handkerchief, postage stamps, and even the way a girl tied her ribbons and the long or short ends of her sashes meant something to the man who understood this mute language. Now a new way of communication has been established through the medium of the wax which seals your letters, and the dainty boxes containing various colored sticks of wax are not alone for show and just to look pretty, but each color has a meaning of its own, and properly applied conveys a message, which may be business, social or tender, as the sender desires. For instance, business a letter should be sealed with red—very approximately, too, it would seem, as red wax is always more or less connected with legal documents. When writing to a friend use gray. That is quiet and neutral and very similar to the emotions called forth by friendship. If you are writing to your lover and everything is smooth sailing, then use blue, but if you wish to hint to him that you have or think you have any cause for jealousy, then use the pretty yellow stick which comes in your box. In replying to a wedding invitation then white is de rigueur. For a letter of condolence it is optional with you whether you use black or violet. As many object seriously to the use of anything suggesting mourning, violet is very much more of a favorite. A dinner invitation calls for a seal of coffee-colored wax and when a man gets a letter sealed with green from the girl whom he admires, then he may take it as a faint suggestion that she shyly bids him hope.

THE TEST THAT TELLS

You can get all the Convincing Proof you want by reading Lowell Papers.

When the reader wants any article of value he naturally prefers to deal with someone he can depend upon. If mixed up in a law suit, a good, responsible lawyer is generally the first necessity sought. If lost on a prairie, directions from a settler could be relied upon; those from a stranger would be doubted. The test that tells the tale of merit is the test of friends and Doan's Kidney Pills.

Can you ask for better evidence?

Read this case:

Mrs. Thomas F. Burke of 14 Seventh street, says: "Both Mr. Burke and myself have used Doan's Kidney Pills. His case was a very serious one and of long standing. He went to a hospital for treatment and was benefited by it but later on the trouble returned. Learning about Doan's Kidney Pills he procured a box at Ellingwood's & Co's drug store. He derived so much positive benefit from the treatment that he wished he had known of Doan's Kidney Pills when the trouble began. Had he used them at that time much suffering and money would have been saved."

Doan's Kidney Pills are sold for 50c. per box by all dealers, or mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Necessity compels me to advertise and sell at peremptory sale to the highest bidders, without limit, reserve, or protection of any kind, a large portion of my real estate situated on Gorham and Moore streets. As I have no choice in the matter, the auctioneers have chosen Thursday, Aug. 24th, 1899, to dispose of the property. The sale will take place regardless of the weather. The order of the sale is as follows:

The several parcels will be sold subject to the taxes for 1897-1898 and the current year.

The block on Gorham street has a good sized store on first floor, and a five-room tenement on second floor; is supplied with gas, city water, water closet etc., is connected with the sewer; rents for $25 a month and is in prime condition.

Each house in Globe Terrace has seven rooms, water closet, city water, sewerage and cellar. The block is less than four years built; in convenient, excellently arranged, a yard all about it; each house is separate and in every way distinct from the others. The block when all rented brings an income of $12.50 a month.

The buildings were built and constructed upon honor and will stand the hardest kind of use for years to come. The lot is level, graded and fenced. The location of the property for business and renting purposes is first class and needs no comment here.

AT 4.15 O'CLOCK P. M.

2160 square feet of land on Moore street adjoining the Globe Hotel property at the corner of Gorham street. This lot has a frontage of 65 feet and is one of the best spots in the city of Lowell upon which to erect a block. There are few more desirable locations, seldom so good a shaped lot. No better situation to rent.

One of the lots has a frontage of [illegible] feet on Moore street and [illegible] feet on the new street and is a splendid piece of land to improve. Kelley, numbered 129 Moore street or opposite the stone residence of Albert E. Moore.

The are as are about 2250 feet and the opportunity to secure a nice lot of land in a fine neighborhood at a reasonable price is rather unusual. You must make all inquiries at the office of the auctioneers.

THAT MILL COMBINE

Capitalization of New Company is $35,000,000

The Robeson Mill May Later be Included in the Deal—The Brayton Interests Are Probably at the Head of the Deal

By Associated Press to The Sun.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 18.—Naturally the print cloth mills deal is the only topic of conversation about town today and while opinions differ as to the sucess of the project, the general idea among stock holders, so far as it can be gathered is favorable to selling at the prices given. While the terms of the syndicate will be cash, the question of whether or not, the securities of the syndicate will later be offered in full or part payment, is receiving much consideration. It is reported that the capitalization is to be $35,000,000. It is accepted that the securities are to consist of bonds, preferred and common stock, but nothing has been allowed to escape concerning the proportion of the various sorts of securities.

It is considered not unlikely that the Robeson mill will later be included in the deal.

The statement that the Brayton interests were at the head of the deal is now not considered of sufficient certainty to be considered. The size of the Brayton has so far advanced that it is confidentially stated that Brayton banks as the First National and B. M. C. are known, are to finance the deal. If it is successful, those same banks will have the bulk of the mill business.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER

SAYS UNITED STATES IS DELAYING SETTLMENT OF ALASKA DISPUTE.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

LONDON, Aug. 19—Sir Charles Tupper, formerly Canadian High Commissioner, in an interview with a representative of the Associated Press said:

"The United States is purposely delaying the settlement of the Alaska dispute on account of the pecuniary benefit accruing to miners and coast cities through delay, and has refused to have the boundary delimitated as is being done in Venezuela. No settlement could be reached through the extended commission suggested by the United States.

We have reached an impasse and have no intention of resuming negotiations in regard to the matters pending between Canada and America, until the Alaska question is settled.

THE MALONE FUNERAL

LARGELY ATTENDED AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH THIS FORENOON.

The funeral of the late John Joseph Malone took place this forenoon from St. Patrick's church and was very largely attended, many of the present and past members of the Xaverian brothers' school being present. The altar boys were all present, the deceased formerly performing acolyte duties at this church. A requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Richard S. Burke who later pronounced the final absolution at the grave. Frank Murphy was master of ceremonies. The choir rendered Schmidt's requiem mass and at the offertory, Director E. F. Faulkner rendered the hymn, "Pie Jesu" by Leybach. At the conclusion of the mass, the De Profundis psalm for the dead was sung by the choir. Miss Josephine Finn feelingly and effectively rendered the pathetic hymn by Handel, "Angels Ever Bright and Fair." The floral tributes were beautiful and in great profusion the most noticeable for their fragrance and design being the following: Large pillow with the inscription in blue immortelles, "Our Joe," from Uncle John; large floral harp from Selectmen James McManmon of Dracut, the well known florist; large cross from schoolmates and companions; large spray of asters, Mr. Frank Redhead. There were numerous other sprays, bouquets and baskets. The interment was in the Catholic cemetery under the direction of Undertaker Davey. The pall bearers were schoolmates and companions, namely John C. Martin, John Kennedy, William Davey, William Regan, Thomas O'Hearn, and Philip O'Hearn.

Miss May Boyers and Miss Carrie Freeman of Centralville, will tour the beaches on the Atlantic coast for the next two weeks on their bicycles.

STRIKER INJURED

Probably Set Upon by Scab Firemen

By Associated Press to The Sun.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 19—Samuel Hudson, a striking mill fireman, while on his way home late last evening, was set upon by half a dozen unknown men, knocked down, kicked in the ribs and otherwise brutally assaulted. Three ribs were broken, and he was probably injured internally. As robbery was not the motive, it is thought that the attack was made by some of the firemen who are filling the strikers' places in revenge for the prosecutions which have been instituted in the district court.

Omega Oil

There is no sense in wasting words about Neuralgia. We all know that it causes terrible suffering, and the darting, shooting pains are enough to drive you mad. What a sufferer wants is relief. He wants the pain to stop. He wants to be well and happy again. The way to get relief from Neuralgia is to rub Omega Oil into the spot where the trouble lies. First bathe the part with hot water to open up the pores. Then give it a good, thorough rubbing with Omega Oil. The oil will be taken up by the flesh, and penetrate to the aching nerves. It will give gratifying relief. It will soften, soothe, and comfort. It will overcome and banish the pain. Plenty of people will doubt this, but their doubting does not change the facts. Omega Oil cures all bodily aches and pains, and that's all there is to say. Your druggist has it or can get it for you.

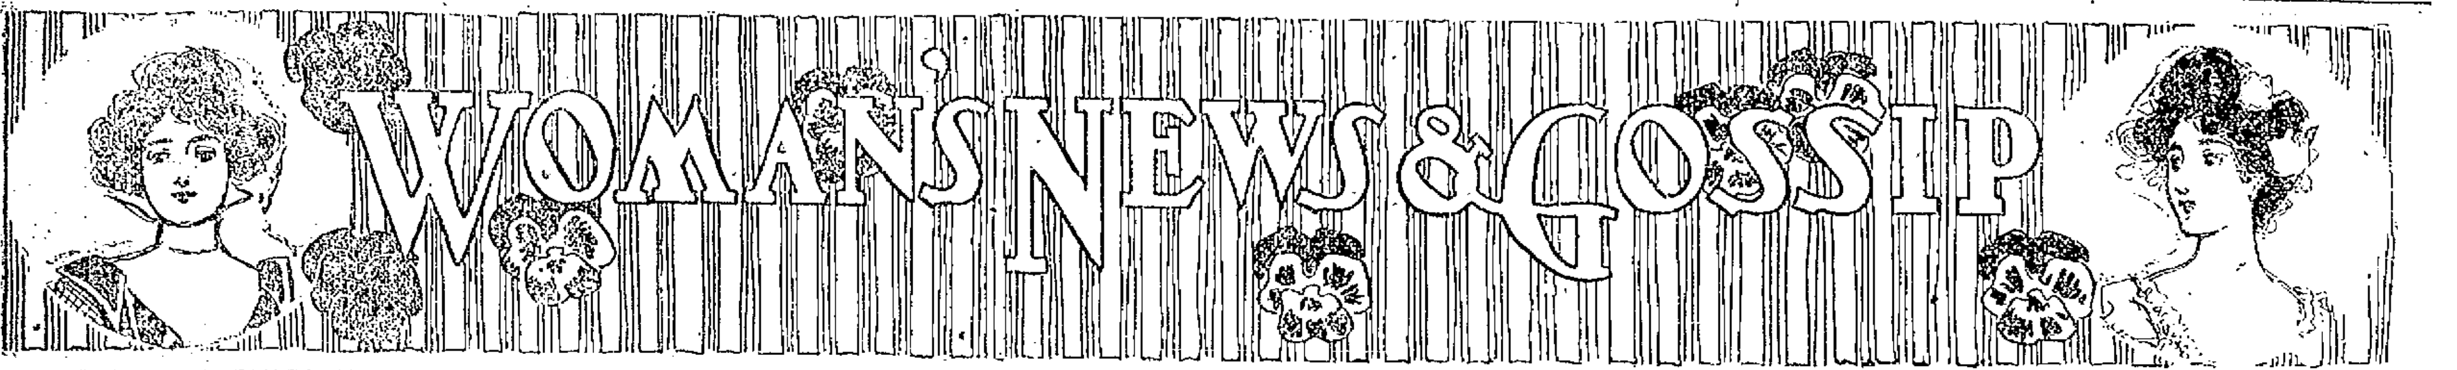
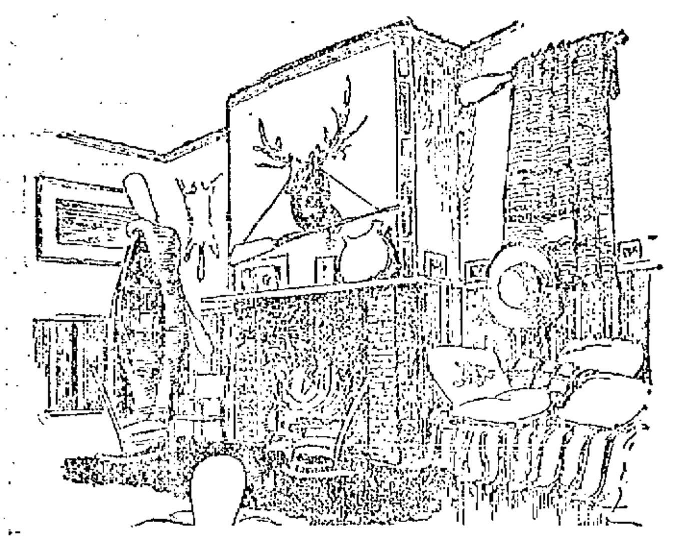
WOMAN'S NEWS & GOSSIP





A MEMENTO ROOM FURNISHED WITH THE MOST PICTURESQUE FEATURES OF A VACATION ALONG SHORE.

A GLIMPSE OF THE NEW HABIT SKIRT.

The Back will be Round and two Tunics will Fall Over a Very Deep Ruffle.

THE PLAID SHIRT WAIST.

It is Growing in Popularity and a Broad Plaid Tie is to be Worn With it.

GREY IN ALL SHADES FASHIONABLE

The waist, once all important, is playing second fiddle to the skirt, which has suddenly turned from a thing of utility and necessity only, into one of beauty and grace as well. The long, willowy line which could never be attained by compressing the waist line has been managed by compressing the hips, and the skirt has been cut and trained into something quite undreamed. The result is the slenderness long desired that "willowy grace" made immortal in the pages of Tennyson.

When hips disappeared this spring it became a matter of triumph to fit the skirt to the figure. No longer were gathers in the back possible, with that long, sweeping line which fashion demanded of the hips, and then the dressmakers took to laying the back of the skirt in folds, turned well under and flatly fastened, so as to draw the skirt even more tightly across the figure.

THE EUGENIE COUCH.

VERY ORNAMENTAL FOR A BEDROOM.

But the new skirts of fall show a still greater diminution of fullness. The new habit skirt is absolutely tight, and is fitted to the figure as though it were moulded in wax.

FITTED HIPS.

Just why it should be any more unreasonable to fit the hips than the shoulders it would be hard to tell, as the hip fullness was never either necessary or comfortable. The swathing, sweeping skirt, with its voluminous folds at the back of the belt, was always heavy and burdensome to a woman. Better, a thousand times, the skirt which has little fullness and is consequently light in weight. This kind of a skirt is easily managed, and, once tried, becomes a favorite. Indeed, at this writing it is difficult to imagine how the woman who has worn either the linen or the narrow, thin cloth skirt all summer can go back to the heavy weight, which, under the guise of a fashionable skirt, dragged her waist and back down in previous seasons.

So much for the hygiene of the matter.

From the fashionable side there comes word that the skirts will be fitted so closely across the figure that slenderness will be absolutely demanded, and the woman who has not got it must train for it. She must reduce. This does not, of course, mean "reduce" her health, but only her fat, thereby making herself undeniably more beautiful and generally more comfortable.

The habit skirt will be closed in the back, showing only a seam, and the opening will be upon the side. It will be fitted with a tunic, and very fashionable skirts will have two tunics, one falling below the other. The bottom of the skirt has its deep ruffle, or flounce, which is set upon the lining of the skirt, or is managed by making the skirt very full around the foot.

THE PATTERN.

Our artist has endeavored to give an idea of the habit skirt as sketched at one of the leading importers of New York a few days ago. With great good nature the modiste allowed her to stretch out the paper models and to make traceries of them in reduced size. "If your readers," said the modiste, "will kindly take these diagrams and enlarge them by laying them upon large pieces of paper and marking around them, they can obtain as good a pattern of the habit skirt as I could make myself. The slender effect is all gained by the tunics."

In drawing a pattern it is advised that the readers take a different copy of the paper for each separate part of the pattern in order not to mutilate the other designs. After drawing the enlarged pattern upon a piece of brown paper it might be advisable to enlarge the pattern again, which can be done in the same way as at first. If the work is done slowly and carefully the best of results can be obtained.

A rear view of the skirt shows two tunics, one falling over the other, with a deep flounce below.

The waist of silk or very light weight cloth is the one that is to be worn with the habit skirt, not a waist of the same material. It will be plain in the back, with the most trifling suggestion of a blouse, at the waist line. The waist, by the way, seems rather short in the back, but the front is pulled low into the belt, giving the curved waist line which is so popular.

The new silk waists show a variety of nice trimmings, lace being much used. Lace is set over the silk as a yoke, and it is also made to wear with the waist as a collarette. If desired the lace can be arranged in such a way that it can be taken off, either when a yoke or a collarette.

Stocks continue to increase in size. The latest show very wide ends finished with fringe.

There are many ways of tying and fastening the new broad silk stocks. One is by gathering the ends into a ring from which they hang down flat and broad. Very decorative rings of semi-precious gems come for this purpose.

NEW RIBBONS.

The latest importations in ribbons for neckwear are really wonderful in coloring and diversity of patterns. On white and bright colored grounds there are chine designs, and over these are narrow black and white stripes or dots. Then there are beautiful plaids, pale lilac crossed with peachblow pink and autumn green; white traced with narrow diagonal bands of black, beet-root red and ecru, and plover's gray plaided in sapphire blue and mauve. Many of these ribbons come wide enough for shirt waists, being half a yard in width. They cost anywhere from $2 to $5, and women who persist in having nothing but the best can easily pay $5 a yard for them.

Pointed sleeves are still the correct thing. The Princess May sleeve, a very chic design, is round at the inside of the wrist, tapering off into the sharpest of points at the outside. It is then finished with a frill of lace, or a puffing of the waist material is admissible.

In conclusion, it is imperative that a word be said about materials for the new habit skirts. These must in all cases be light in weight, as the heavy fabrics are clumsy and ungraceful arranged in tunic effects. Light flannels, lady's cloth, granite suiting and French cashmeres are seen in the newest colorings for these skirts, and can be trimmed most attractively.

A pale nickel gray, inlaid with American blue, is the very newest coloring in flannels for early autumn wear, while lime-flower green promises to prove a formidable rival for ultra-fashionable colors in the other materials.

HELEN WARD.

A SURE CURE FOR SLEEPLESSNESS.

The latest cure for insomnia is cheap, healthy and efficacious. The remedy was suggested by an old doctor, to whom a despairing young woman had come for advice. "Of course," said the doctor, "I could give you plenty of drugs that would put you to sleep, but in the case of a young woman that is always to be avoided. The reason you cannot sleep is because your nerves are all unstrung. That does not necessarily mean that you must put your nervous system to sleep by the use of drugs. What you want is mild excitement that will lift your nervous system out of the rut it has fallen into. The best thing in the world to do that is a long trolley ride. If the route is eight or ten miles long so much the better. One thing is certain, you will either sleep during the ride or as soon as it is over."

EUGENIE BED.

A Eugenie bed is an ornament of which any sleeping room might be proud. Its foundation is a wooden bedstead, or, to be more modern, a brass one, fitted with the best of springs and mattresses enough to make the bed very soft and high.

The steps leading up to this stately couch are made of wood, and can be formed in the most primitive way. Over all a rug is thrown. A canopy is draped from the head board and caught back again from an extended frame which is built out to support it.

HOW TO KEEP EGGS.

To preserve eggs for winter use, pour six quarts of boiling water on to three pounds of lime, one ounce of cream of tartar, and half a pound of salt. Leave until cold, and then pour it over the fresh eggs, which are carefully arranged in jars, and see that there are none uncovered. Tie the jars over with thick paper, and stand on a shelf in a cool larder or storeroom.

A VISIT TO SARA BERNHARDT.

She tells our Correspondent About her Life, her Successes and the Many Things she Hopes yet to Accomplish.

By Annette Rierdon Reed.

"I will see you at 3." So ran a line from Madame Bernhardt to me, and at 3 I was well on my journey to the fashionable part of Paris, where the queen of the drama, "Sara, the Divine," as they call her in Paris, lives.

Approaching Bernhardt's house through the tiny courtyard, I saw hanging alongside the door a big bunch of purple grapes, and behind the grapes was the door signal. In answer to my touch the neatest of French maids opened the door and showed me across to a very pretty square hallway with stairs leading up. The hallway is used by Madame as a reception room.

Scarcely had I seated myself when I saw a figure upon the stairs. It was Bernhardt. She had been standing upon the top step reading by the uncertain light of a colored lamp, but as she saw me she came down the steps with outstretched hands and a hearty "I am so glad to see you!"

Of course she spoke in French, for Bernhardt does not know English. She has always declared that she would not learn it for fear it would spoil her French. A charming idiosyncrasy, truly, and one that is appreciated by both French and English audiences. If foreign stars, says a well-known critic, would cling to their own language we should not be put to the mortification of hearing our own tongue murdered upon the stage. Speak correctly or not at all should be the rule for public speakers. But we Americans are so good natured!

I thought of all this as Bernhardt's smooth, musical tongue struck upon my ear, and as she came forward with both warm hands outstretched. She shook mine cordially and pulled me toward a curling tete-a-tete, one of the sort in which you face each other, though sitting on opposite sides.

"You see me at a disadvantage," declared Madame, laughingly, "for I am alone. My friend who has been visiting me is away, and I like never to be alone. This house was built for many guests, and I am never without some one."

"Your son?"

"Oh, now," said Madame, touching the lace upon the gown as though she would place her hand upon her heart; "you mention the dearest and kindest fellow in the world. I love Maurice and he loves me. He is the most devoted of sons. Every day he comes, and many times some days, to see how I am. Am I lonely he does not leave me. Am I sad he brings me bright flowers and pets and books. He is a darling, Maurice."

As Madame spoke she glanced around the room which was filled with many beautiful objects, perhaps the gifts of Maurice. There were many small clocks, for I learned afterward that she is very fond of time-pieces, and there were vases and easy chairs and rugs. Yet the room was relieved from Bohemianity by the similarity of the style of ornaments, which all belonged to the pure French renaissance, and were not scattered articles of virtu and bric-a-brac of all nations.

"I am resting now," said Madame, "for in a few days I start upon my tour of the provinces. I shall play my Hamlet entirely, for it is the greatest success of my life. Yes, I like to play it. There is a novelty about it. Shall I go to America? I hope so, for I love your people. They are so appreciative. I could play for them forever."

And now you must have a pen picture of Bernhardt. She is petite, though so slight that you take her for taller than she is. I do not think she is over five feet three. She weighs about 115 pounds, and her hair is of a light shade of natural red. It is curly, and she wears it in a French coil from which ripples curl around her face.

Her complexion is pink and her teeth are white and even. Her hands are the long, slim ones of an artist, but so delicate that you wonder how she could ever have handled the large figures which she will tell you that she modeled.

"The future? Of that I cannot speak accurately," said Madame, "but I shall play here next year in my own theatre, which I am building now. But my next play? That is not decided yet."

Bernhardt can be haughty, and there is just a suggestion of haughtiness as she speaks. She has the habit of carrying her head well back and speaking with her eyes cast down slightly, yet looking down at you instead of up. It is a stage trick, very pretty and effective, which gives dignity. That is Bernhardt's way.

"You are very busy, Madame?" I asked.

"Oh, dear, yes. What can I say? I have promised to write my recollections and experiences for a publisher and to soon finish the book. I have contracted to complete my theatre by the opening of the Exposition, and that means the earning of the necessary money for it. Business reverses have brought me low in money, and I must be active. Then there is a new play to select and rehearse, and the company always needs much drilling. Ah, if it were not for Sardou, what would I have done?"

Madame sighed and bowed her head. It was a dramatic moment. Then a merry laugh burst from her lips, for she is a creature of moods. "But that is nothing. I am so glad that my Hamlet is a success."

At that moment there was a sound at the curtains, and the maid ushered in a caller. It was Madame's reception day, and I knew that I must not take up too much of her time.

"Come again," she murmured, as I departed, and then she stood up and held out both hands again and smiled upon me one of her wonderful dazzling smiles.

As I walked out into the warm August sunshine I pondered upon this wonderful woman, who, upon the sunset slope of life's mountain, still retains the face and figure of a girl. Absolutely babyish in complexion, youthful in eyes and expression, fresh in voice, lithe as a cat and possessed of all the strong qualities of manner, this woman, though over 55, is to-day the greatest living actress.

At the age when most of us are willing to settle down into old age she is planning new achievements, and at the time when many of us are counting our grandchildren she is counting the new deeds that lie before her for accomplishment. And she has grandchildren. Maurice is a great man of over thirty. But Bernhardt alone of all who surround her is fresh and youthful.

You have heard how this woman forty years ago went on the stage at the Theatre Francaise in a small part, and how she made a failure. She was so thin, so untaught, yet so earnest that the audience ridiculed her. For ten years she struggled, then came success.

In 1880 she was at the very height of her first fame, and in that year she modelled statuary, painted for the Salon, played to packed houses, successfully toured America and set all Paris gossiping with her eccentricities. One of these was to sleep in her coffin, which she continually decorated anew with handsome bits of lace and choice silk for the becomingness of the final moment.

Her latest and greatest success is in the role of Hamlet, the part which was played by Charlotte Cushman with indifferent success and by Anna Dickenson with failure. Other women have tried Hamlet and failed. Ellen Terry predicted defeat, though she hoped for the best. And no one presaged success. But Bernhardt's Hamlet is the wonder of the century in stageland.

As I passed away from Bernhardt's home I looked back. Madame was standing at the window, her back to the pane. The lovely, long, unbroken lines of her celestial blue robe showed through the glass, and her clear, red hair gleamed above. Around her neck was a string of many colored beads, which supported, I remembered, a lorgnette. As I looked Madame moved, and the long, sinewy line of her figure passed out of sight. "Wonderful woman," I said. And a passer-by stopped and echoed my words. Yes, Bernhardt is wonderful!

MAKING A SUMMER ROOM FOR WINTER.

Practical Suggestions for Bringing Nature Indoors When Jack Frost Shall Have Spread his Mantle Over Lake and Tree.

You will want to take summer home with you from mountain and shore, and you may be glad to get a hint on how to do it effectively so that you will still see summer days when it is snowing out of doors and dream sunny dreams when storms howl. Don't expect to do it cheaply, for summer days in winter come high; and don't expect to do it without work. Be willing to spend a little and to be industrious for the rest of this month, then shall you be able to go home bearing your summer with you.

There is no summer room unless it be a memento room. You must take back with you the very things you used in summer, or their likeness. You will want to transform them to make them roomy and fit for the home, and you may want to use very modern arts for the purpose; but after all your room will savor of summer, and you will have that which your soul craves—a memento room.

Here is a shore room or mountain room, if there is a lake so that boating entered into your summer pleasures. Begin with the plainest thing you can gather in the way of furniture—an oar—and study how to make it decorative. You can use it when you get home for a portiere pole; other oars will support the window curtains. Beg, borrow and purloin oars and occupy your spare time sandpapering and polishing them. Oil makes a nice finish, and if the oars are worn down, so much the better. It gives them a pleasant look that is lacking from new oars. Any likely man will hew you a very presentable pine oar out of a pine board—and along the lake everybody can make oars—and so you can get half a dozen which you can strap together and lay aside to be sent home with your baggage.

THE CANOE.

If you have a good-sized room an old row boat, or a canoe, makes a very good and useful ornament. It must be polished inside and out and fitted with shelves, which are for bric-a-brac. Three or four shelves a foot apart will make a very presentable cabinet. Back it up with an oar, and on the oar, if you so desire, screw in tiny brass hooks for other hangings.

Paddles can be utilized even better than oars, being broader. A young woman who has been spending her vacation along Lake Superior will go home with a very pretty chair, the seat of which is fashioned from three broad, flat paddles, which are set upon three legs, a leg under each paddle. The back is paddle-shaped, thus making a very comfortable as well as decorative chair.

Mountain hats, while not, properly speaking, things of beauty, can be made usefully reminiscent by lining them with silk and shirring a silk bag inside so that fancy work can be kept in the hat. Think well before you hang up a useless article, for such seem to collect dust wonderfully, but where use and pleasant association can both be preserved there you will do the best with your memento room.

Take home many pillows. Gather pine needles by the sack and sew up the receptacle while the needles are fresh. The pillows will weigh a ton, but they will be so sweet that you will seek them in your tired moments for a year to come. And they are an excellent remedy for nervous headaches. Plain bed ticking will do for the pillow covers, but if you desire you can slip on new cases later. It is a pretty idea to use one's mountain dress in the making of a pillow.

A girl who has climbed all summer in a heavy blue denim skirt is about to cut out the best breadths of the skirt for pine needle pillows. Those who have been in the party will embroider their initials upon the pillow, while the male persuasion will indite a line or so of poetry in indelible ink.

Have you ever tried the experiment of making a couch cover from strips of old colored linen, such as they have been using for dress skirts this summer? A tiny strip of bright red linen is sewed in between the broader stripes of blue, tan, gray and white. These covers are lined with plain linen or with a striped lining made up in the same way as the outside, thus making a two-sided afghan. This sort of coverlid launders well and is immensely decorative, the bright red giving it a very Oriental appearance.

SMALL THINGS.

Try, too for your memento room, the experiment of knitting a rug, upon knitting needles, with plain knitting stitch. Use the tiniest strips of old summer finery, sewed in one long strip, as though you were making a rag carpet. Choose all dark colors except for dashes of scarlet.

The evergreens last all winter, and will not shed their needles except in exceptional cases, where the needles have already begun to fall, and there are such stand-bys as cat tails and dried golden rod. Dip the former in a weak solution of glue and dry the latter in the dark.

You can make pillows of down if you wish to embark upon an endless undertaking. For the down select thousands of thistles and place them in bags. Lay them away when fairly well dried and three months hence open the bag. You will find it filled with softest thistle down. So with cat tails. They will "feather out" and give you down, but you must gather millions of them.

For the more ambitious features of your memento room you must beg the spinning wheel from the old mill rooms, and you must get the old gun of the farmer and the skin of the fox which has been caught somewhere in your neighborhood. Get the "brush" at all events, for a tail is better than no fox.

Deer heads, antlers, pine cones and all these outdoor things keep summer all the year for you. Don't forget to dry a few ferns and mount them upon pasteboard. They will look very well in the small, old frames you have at home. Or you can make frames from twigs. Resurrect the old ways of using woodland twigs, and you will be surprised to find with what a goodly array of decorative articles you will start upon your homeward journey.

Many women occupy their time the last few weeks making rustic chairs of rough boughs.

SOUTHERN PERFUMERY.

As good perfumery from flowers is made at the South as is imported from abroad. A common method of extraction is to make layers of beef tallow and blooms, then cut up the tallow and soak it in alcohol, an air-tight box being first provided, with panes of glass that just fit into it. The tallow is laid upon the glass, and the blooms of the flowers, gathered early in the morning, as soon as the dew is dried off, are strewn thickly upon its surface; then a layer of mutton suet or beef tallow, cut into small pieces, is spread over the blooms; another pane of glass is placed on top of this; then a layer of tallow and blooms, as before, this operation being repeated until the box is full, when it is shut up tight and placed in a cool, dark, even-temperatured room, and in twenty-four to thirty-six hours the tallow will have absorbed all the odor of the blooms.

HOMELY MRS. KRUGER.

Mrs. Kruger, the wife of President Kruger, of the Transvaal, who is an extremely homely woman, does nearly all her own housework, cooking meals, making her own bed and always taking a hand in the family washing. When her husband has "state guests" to dinner the good lady will trust the task of waiting on the table to no one, and, donning a white apron, she performs the office of butler. Her husband has a private fortune of $25,000,000, but it's "Aunty" Kruger's boast that they live on their "coffee money"—a perquisite of $2,000 a year allowed them by the government.

HAYES AND RIVET

Will Probably Contest For Representative Nomination

RIVET BACKED BY GUILD MEN

Who Desire to Punish Hayes

There is the hottest kind of a tumult brewing in the ranks of the republican party and it will be good fun to sit one side and contemplate its progress.

The Sun will watch the progress and will keep you informed on the latest inside happenings, even as it exclusively tipped you on on the appointment of Louis Lebrun as turnkey at the Lowell jail by the Guild men, a few days ago.

Most of the fights of the republicans of Lowell leave some one particular bone of contention. But this one if it ever had an original bone has lost it in a general fight which augurs well for republican success, I think not.

Perhaps the original bone of contention was the action of George W. Poore, Esq., chairman of the republican city committee, in coming out for Hon. Curtis Guild so strongly, even after attending and addressing the launching of the Bates boom. Since then, however, the row has grown, until it takes in the deputy sheriff and one of the representative fights.

The Guild men believe that they have achieved a master stroke in securing the appointment of Louis Lebrun at the Lowell jail, and flushed with success, they now essay to punish Bill Hayes, the leader of the Bates movement in Lowell by defeating him for representative.

It's always about election time that this crowd show their love for the French American votes, but Bill Hayes has always been the "big hommeane" and could get about anything he wanted from them. When the fight grew hot between Bates and Guild, with Bill Hayes the recognezed leader of the former, and Jim Bennett, looking after the latter, Bill was happy in the knowledge of the fact that with Cyrille Constantanea, Camille Roussin, Sam Snow, Web Bugbee and their new "find," Louis Lebrun, back of him, the French-American vote would not be found wanting. On the other hand the colonel's only and questionable consolatio was that 360 more polls had been assessed in Ward Seven and being mostly democrats there might be a chance to at last suppress "Old Hundred."

But the fight went on until the Guild men who wanted to do Bates hit upon a scheme that up-to-date has been successful, and it was to take the influence of the new "find" Lebrun, and that of his friends away from the Bates leaders by appointing Lebrun, who was without employment, to the lucrative, easy and supposedly dignified position of turnkey at the Lowell jail. Now when this scheme was broached to the Baker-Stiles-Shaw wing of the county ring, it hit there just right for by it they saw a chance to knock out Cyrille for Deputy sheriff, for the latter once in office would soon work in his friends, Bill, Sam and Web and the famous ring would lose its exclusiveness.

Therefore they lost no time in appointing Councilman Lebrun and the latter will have gratitude enough to help them out in most any legitimate capacity.

Since the appointment of Lebrun, it is the general impression that it is now "all off" with Cyrille, for it is argued with only two jobs in the gifts of the sheriff this year, he can hardly be expected to give both of them to the French-American wing of the party and there will be doubtless considerable gnashing of teeth when some of the erstwhile hopeful candidates of French extraction realize the painful facts.

But the Guild men intend to go further. They are going to show Bill Hayes, that is they propose to show the genial William that he is no longer the thing in his district and are going to attempt to get the French vote away from him by springing Ex-Alderman Francis P. Rivet, Esq. as a candidate for the legislature in William's ward on the similiar snalibus guarantee plan. Ex-Alderman Rivet, up to a few days ago was attending the performance at Lakeview Theatre regularly, having an innocent and pleasant time, while no thought of politics disturbed his characteristic tranquillity. Now he has a bee in his bonnet, with every chance of the insect turning into a kissing bug and giving it to him "on ze neck."

While in the board of aldermen Mr. Rivet never did any harm to anybody, his political opponents had no reason to criticize adversely and he never made a very deep impression upon his constituents. If Rivet is the strongest man they will find to fight Hayes, they might as well throw up the sponge before their man is knocked out, for I have it on the best of authority that the French-Americans will be with Hayes to a man.

LABOR MEN ACTIVE

In Preparation for Labor Day Celebration

THE ENGINEERS CANNOT PARADE

Stationary Engineers Have an Interesting Session

Sunday will be a very busy day for the labor men of Lowell.

In the morning the Labor Day committee will meet at 10 o'clock in Building Laborers' hall and considerable important business will come before the meeting.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Chief Marshal John J. Mahoney, and his staff will meet to decide upon the regalia to be adopted for Labor day.

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council will be held at 2.30 o'clock, and it is expected that the drawing for positions in line Labor Day will come up at the meeting. Chief Marshal Mahoney will also announce his route for the parade.

MACHINISTS WILL NOT PARADE.

The Machinists' Union held a largely attended meeting last evening in Leather Workers' hall on Central street, and considerable business was transacted. Speakers from out-of-town were expected, but they failed to attend, but letters were received from them in which they said they would be here positively next Friday evening. It was voted to remain without permanent officers until after the charter is closed, Sept. 1. It was voted not to participate in the parade Labor Day, because the union is not yet fully organized and is without permanent officers.

Thirty candidates were admitted to membership and several applications were received.

STATIONARY ENGINEERS.

There was a busy session of Lowell Association of Stationary Engineers last night.

One candidate was initiated and seven applications were accepted. The association has received four applications for engineers, which they have been unable to fill. Word has been sent to Nashua and Lawrence to learn were any engineers out of work.

A new library on mechanical and steam literature will soon be started. The members are arranging for an outing and clam bake to be held in the near future.

The convention committee reported that it was the finest one ever held by state or national associations. The several concerns who had exhibits there all sent letters of approval of the way in which the displays were arranged.

Miss Rose Ducharme of O'Donnell & Gilbride's and Miss Agnes Young of S. T. Farrell's will have a two weeks' vacation at Nantasket beach, beginning Monday.

Mr. Joe Miller, the popular clerk of the Merrimack Clothing company, having returned from a pleasant two weeks at Newport, Vt., is finishing up his vacation at the north common.

Workmen are busily engaged at Huntington hall but as yet the job has not assumed a definite appearance.

Five beautiful sleeping rooms and bath all finished in hard wood on second floor, all open work nickel plumbing, laundry in cellar, set tubs, hot and cold water, an entrance from cellar to yard.

The house is heated by furnace with 19 registers; all the windows facing Methuen and Humphrey streets are all plate glass. There are three balconies leading from the sleeping rooms upstairs. A front piazza of artistic design runs the full length of the house and is eight feet wide. Every door and window is screened. Carpenters who have worked on this house tell me that it is one of the best built houses in Lowell. Parties looking for a nice home should call on the auctioneer who will be pleased to show the premises at any time.

The lot has a frontage of 50 feet on Methuen street and 139 feet on Humphrey street; there is plenty of room for a barn. It is high and dry and is all fenced in.

Location: This place is situated at the corner of Methuen and Humphrey streets and is one of the best in the city. It is in the immediate vicinity of many beautiful and costly residences. OFF FOR CAMP DUTY

Companies C and G and the Ambulance Corps

CAPT. AMOS R. LEIGHTON of Troop F, Cavalry.

With Troop F. Cavalry Started This Morning—Service in Memory of George Wenden Who Died at Sea—The Departure From the Depot This Morning

The armory last evening on the eve of going into muster was the scene of solemn and impressive ceremony in honor of an absent comrade, who accompanied the boys of the Sixth to Framingham on their last trip there but who has since then responded to the final summons, the last trumpet call of the great captain on high.

CAPT. CARR of Company G.

Reference is made to the late lamented Sergt. George C. Wenden of Co. C in whose honor memorial services were held last evening. Sergt. Wenden, it will be remembered, died on the hospital ship Relief about ten months ago on his passage home from Porto Rico and was buried at sea. A bank of beautiful flowers was placed on a table immediately beneath the portrait of Sergt. Wenden.

Company C's quarters were tastefully decorated in the national colors. The beautiful likeness of Sergt. Wenden which hangs on the wall was draped with the same material and from the bank of flowers two red lights beamed.

The company was well represented and there were also in attendance a number of Sergt. Wenden's most intimate friends. A quartette comprising Osmond Long, Harry Stocks, Burton H. Preston and A. L. Kerr sang appropriate music during the service.

Lieut. Rose called to order and in the course of his remarks said: "Tonight we are called to honor the memory of a man who was universally respected and loved. [illegible] he performed his duty in civic life as a man [illegible] of Sergt. Wenden's popularity and in war as a soldier. It is unfortunate for me that I never had the [illegible] but I have heard him spoken of so [illegible] and in such affectionate terms that I know well the nobility of his character.

"When I think of what Sergt. Wenden must have been to you I am reminded of other such men who died in the regiment with which I was associated during the war and I can thus imagine your feelings as you are gathered here tonight. Some of the memories of war are irrepressibly sad. I recall a time tonight when the sick list in our regiment jumped from 10 to 35 a day and in the middle of the night when I myself was tossing on a feverish bed, the sound of the dead wagon came to my ears and I thought of the indescribable sadness that was to follow for some poor family. I could not help wondering who was to be the next victim as the wagon with its ghastly burden passed along the road to the burial ground.

"But in thinking of the death of Sergt. George C. Wenden, there is a comfort in realizing that he was a noble man and a valiant soldier. And while we are not in a position to be able to erect a costly tombstone in his honor, his memory will always live among us and may it prove an inspiration to all of us in our military life."

The quartette then sang "We Shall Meet but We Shall Miss Him" and on its conclusion there were very few dry eyes in the room.

SERGT. CUNNINGHAM'S EULOGY.

Sergt. Cunningham had a word to say in eulogy of the soldier.

"I had known George Wenden eight years," he said, "and never met a man who had more good qualities. When we heard the news of his death we refused at first to believe it, as he had left the perfect picture of health and strength. In painful anxiety I went down town and noticed the announcement of his death on one of the bulletin boards. I knew then that it was all too true and with many misgivings I returned to inform the father. I will not attempt to describe what followed, gentlemen, but I want to say that you will never find a truer hearted man than George Wenden."

"My Country, 'Tis of Thee" and "Farewell" were sung by the quartette. Lieut. Colby T. Kittredge then spoke feelingly upon the relationship of Sergt. Wenden and the company.

Rev. J. M. Craig of the First Presbyterian church followed.

Rev. Mr. Craig spoke briefly on the terrors of war and the awaking after death to a broader life.

The quartette sang "They're Gathering Homeward," after which Arthur E. Salmon spoke briefly, though touchingly upon his association with Sergt. Wenden. The benediction by Rev. J. M. Craig was followed by the mournful taps played by Bugler Riggs. The two red lights were extinguished with the last notes of taps and the services were over.

The members of Troop F, Cavalry, under command of Captain Amos R. Leighton went over the road early this morning on horseback to Camp Framingham. The North Chelmsford squad consisting of 15 men left at 4 o'clock and joined the other squads at Saxonville.

At the armory in this city everything was hustle and bustle until the hour of departure for the depot. The advance guard went to camp Thursday night and yesterday the camp crew of Company C with the bantam Billy Decatur as mascot went down, namely, Percy Swazy, Frank McGlynn, James McKenzie, William Hatch, Cornelius Kelliher and Private Delorme.

Both companies, C and G, and the ambulance corps left the armory under command of Captain E. L. Carr and Captain Thomas Livingstone. There were very few absentees and only those remained behind who were incapacitated and unable to perform camp duty. It was 9.20 o'clock when the Lowell companies left the armory, going through Westford, Grand and Middlesex streets and at 9.30 a special was boarded for South Framingham, amid the cheering of hundreds of enthusiastic admirers who gathered about the Northern depot.

Battery C, of Lawrence, under command of Major William Steadman, passed through this city at 9.30 o'clock en route to Camp Framingham. They left Lawrence at 7.30 o'clock and had pretty rough going over the road. They made a stay of half an hour in Lowell. A large number of Lowellians will go down to Framingham tomorrow and during the week.

A BIG BLAZE.

Seven members of the fire department were sent to the bog near the Harvard Brewery Friday afternoon. It was burning fiercely and it took several hours to put out the glow. This is the second fire in the same place this month.

Pain-Killer.

FOR SEWER WORK

Money Has Been Appropriated for it

BUT WORK CAN'T YET PROCEED

Until the City Coucil Orders it

THE MAYOR SHOULD BE NOTIFIED

That the Sewer Money is Exhausted

The sewer employes are still loafing though they claim there is no necessity for them to loaf at the present time.

A week or more ago, they were laid off on the excuse that the appropriations for sewer work had run out.

Up to date Mayor Crowley has received no official knowledge from the committee on sewers that the funds have been exhausted but he should receive such notice at once and upon receiving it should immediately call a special meeting of the city government to pass the orders for the work to go ahead on the Humphrey street sewer.

Some time ago it was voted to appropriate $30,000 for a sewer in Humphrey street and it needs only action of the city government to complete the preliminaries and open up work until this amount shall be exhausted.

If the sewer committee will notify Mayor Crowley that the sewer approprations are run out, it will be his place to call a special meeting of the city council to start up the work on Humphrey street.

The members of the sewer committee should get a move on.

NEW AIR CHAMBER

Arrives for the Butler Veteran's Hand Tub

AND TEST TAKES PLACE TONIGHT

Coming Muster Will Beat Records

The new air chamber of the Butler Vets' engine has arrived and the members of that organization are happy once more. It comes from the Manchester Locomotive Works and is guaranteed to stand all kinds of pressure.

The tub will be fitted up this afternoon and this evening the Butlers will give the machine a trial at the rear of the police station. All members of the General Butler organization are earnestly requested to be on hand at 6.45 p. m.

Secretary J. H. Burns has received a list of entries for the Fall River tournament which takes place Aug. 24 and also a finely drawn blue print showing the playout grounds at South Park. The diagram shows the arrangement of the grounds, the police, emergency, dining, veteran firemen and all other accomodations for the day.

There will be a procession of fire companies in the morning at 9.30 o'clock.

The handsome silver cup won by the Springfield Association at Portland last year, as the best appearing company in the parade, will again be contested for. The Lowell men are confident that they will make a good try at that feature also.

Other prizes for the largest number of uniformed men and one for the company coming the longest distance, will also be offered.

Drawing for position will take place on the evening of Aug. 23 at the council chamber of the city hall, Fall River.

There is much regret expressed by the followers of the tubs at the Warrens and Unions of Pepperell being unable to enter, neither of these associations being members of the league. There would be much interest in the result of their work on neutral grounds.

The enries up to date are as follows: Providence, Somerville, Pawtucket, New Bedford, Newton, Boston, Salem, Hingham Barnicoat Shelburn Falls, Worcester, Woonsocket, Hyde Park, Roxbury, Phoenix of Marblehead, Central Falls, Rockland, Vixen of Lowell, Charlestown, Watch City of Waltham, East Providence, Portland, Arlington, Hartford, City of Lynn, Everett., Randolph, Pittsfield, Winnesimmets of Chelsea, Hancock of Brockton, Red Jackets of Cambridge, Fall River, Eagles of Lynn, Springfield.

There now seems to be no doubt of the fact that there will be 40 companies in line, making it the largest parade of the veteran firemen ever held and the playout is booked to develop more rivalry than ever before.

A Fall River druggist has offered a prize cup for the association with engine attending from the farthest distance.

Frank P. Bennett, editor of the Cotton and Wool Reporter has offered a silver cup for the best looking engine in line.

South Weymouth, Aug. 23 is the next muster. The Butlers will go down in a special car at 1 o'clock Thursday morning.

Miss Rose Doherty and Mrs. Sarah Ellis, both laundresses at St. John's hospital, leave on Monday for an extended vacation at Washington and Philadelphia stopping on their return at Magnolia and other points of interest along the New England coast.

DREYFUS PROTESTS

Against Denunciations Levelled Against Him

Major Ciugnet Declares That He is Convinced of the Prisoner's Guilt—Gives His Reasons for Believing the Prisoner is Guilty.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

RENNES, Aug. 19.—No special incident occurred this morning when the second trial by court-martial of Captain Alfred Dreyfus of the 14th artillery, charged with treason, was resumed at the Lycee.

The first witness called today was Major Cuignet, formerly attached to the ministry of war.

The witness who declared he was convinced of the prisoner's guilt, was cross-examined by M. Demange, counsel for the defence who succeeded in pointing out that several of his statements contradicted his previous depositions.

The president of the court, Colonel Jouaust, asked Dreyfus if he had anything to say, whereupon the prisoner arose and vehemently protested against the denunciations levelled against him, an innocent man.

General de Boisdeffre was the next witness called.

Following is the evidence in detail:

Major Cuignet, the first witness called, was not in uniform, as he is not at present attached to any corps. "Before beginning an account of the special investigations into the case which I was ordered to make by Ministers of War from M. Cavaigne to M. Defreceynete," said the witness, "I wish to mention a personal fact which, in conjunction with the evidence already heard will constitute fresh proof of the prisoner's indiscreet behavior when employed on the headquarter's staff. I was on the staff when Dreyfus was a probationer during the latter half of 1893. Among other duties I was connected with the railroad service and the mining of railroads with the view of interrupting traffic in case of need. It is hardly necessary to point out the secret character of such matters. Dreyfus was a probationer on the Eastern railroads; had been ordered to specially study the mining on them and possessed information relating solely to them.

At the offertory Miss Louise McLaughlin sang the hymn, "Pie Jesu," by Leybach. At the conclusion of the mass Director Donnelly feelingly rendered the pathetic hymn "He Wipes the Tears Away," and during its rendition many sobs were audible in the sacred edifice. Mrs. Josephine R. McKennedy presided at the organ and performed Batiste's Funeral March as the mourners entered the church and rendered with their return Chopin's march de funabre. The body was encased in a costly white satin brocaded casket, "open length," and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, including the following: A large pillow inscribed "Maggie," the last love token of the bereaved family; a massive broken wreath and sickle on a magnificent base, inscribed, "Rest," from the Ingrain Weavers' Union; spray of asters, Mr. Arthur Cummiskey; spray of roses, Miss Anna Cassidy; spray of asters, Miss English; spray of pinks, Miss Harriet J. ENFORCE THE LAW

The People Demand That Whiskey Sales be Stopped

The Supt. of Police Should Enforce the No-License Law or Tell Who Prevents Him—If the Board of Police is to Blame Mayor Crowley Must Remove Them—Some Flagrant Instances of Official Negligence

Tomorrow will be Sunday, a day on which the speak-easies of Lowell seem to do the most, and the very day on which the liquor squad of the Lowell police department seem to do the least. Last Sunday, the liquor squad covered themselves and the administration of the police department with disgrace. This gallant squad searched Lowell high and low for liquor last Sunday. They went into the highways, by-ways and back alleys. They searched bar-rooms, drug stores, cellars, attics, kitchens and parlors, and reported that they could not find a drop of liquor or the slightest evidence of sales in all this wide city. All this time the other branch of the police department was attending to business, by running in Sunday drunks to the number of thirty. Just think of it. On the same day that the liquor squad certified officially that there was not a drop of liquor sold in Lowell, their fellow officers brought in thirty drunks, as a proof that the liquor squad was either a pack of liars, fools, knaves or chumps.

Now, will Supt. Davis please explain to the public how such a farce could have been enacted on one day in the department of which he is the executive head? And while you are about it, Mr. Davis, will you kindly tell the people you work for and who pay you a good fat salary, whether you propose to allow things to drift along in the present disgraceful manner, as far as the sale of liquor is concerned. You say you want to stop the sale of whiskey in Lowell, Mr. Davis. Then why don't you do it? You have admitted that whiskey is sold in Lowell. Do you also admit that you cannot stop it, or at least reduce it so low that it will be practically stopped? You know it is getting worse and worse. Is that any reason why you and your department should get worse and worse? Why don't you go about it as if you meant business, Mr. Davis? Making speeches to the officers for the purpose of getting them printed in the papers is not stopping the sale of whiskey, and you know it, Mr. Davis.

Why don't you brace up like a man? Do what the people want you to do, and the people will sustain you. Why don't you look after that hotel under your very nose on Market street? Has anyone told you that they could get whiskey in that hotel without much difficulty? If so, have you taken the proper means to find out whether it is true or not? Is it true, Mr. Davis, that the whiskey dispensed in that hotel can actually be detected with the nose from the police station? When the wind is right, and you are sitting in

Charged With Illegally Keeping Liquor

SEVERAL SENTENCES FOR DRUNKENNESS

Young Carney's Racket Wound up Badly

The police court session this morning was a short one. There were four drunks. Judge Hadley was on the bench.

Agnes McLean was fined $5 for drunkenness, while Edward F. Haley for a similar offence was sent to jail for three months.

Henry J. Carney, the young man who broke into Lawyer Donahue's office and later when pursued by officers, tried to jump into the Central canal, was only charged with drunkenness. When he was arrested last night, he gave the name of James J. Carney but today he said his proper name was Henry J. He pleaded guilty of drunkenness.

Lieut. Brosnan related the circumstances of Carney's arrest to the court. The young man said he drank quite heavily yesterday and said he didn't know what he was doing last night.

The court sentenced him to jail for 20 days in order to let him sober off.

John F. Murphy was charged with drunkenness and illegally keeping liquor. Murphy pleaded not guilty to both charges. He said he was prepared for trial on the former but not on the latter charge.

Accordingly, the court ordered the case of illegal keeping continued until Tuesday next. Murphy was held in $300 for trial.

The case of drunkenness was tried. Officer Ingalls was the first to testify. He and Officer McCloughrey arrested Murphy about 1.30 o'clock this morning. Murphy was standing in front of his cider and wine store at the corner of Bridge and French streets when arrested. According to Officer Ingalls, the defendant was gloriously drunk and was very disorderly. The officer said he staggered and could hardly stand on his feet.

Officer McCloughrey, who assisted Officer Ingalls in making the arrest, testified that Murphy was drunk and was hardly able to stand up. He was disorderly. The officers said the door of Murphy's store was open.

John took the stand in his own behalf. He admitted he drank last night but said he was far from being drunk. He denied he was disorderly. While his store was open he said the place was not lighted.

The court found John F. guilty and imposed a fine of $3. While John paid, he was frank in saying it was an outrage of the worst kind.

Murphy's place was visited by Inspectors Donaldson and Maher last Saturday afternoon. The inspectors found John F. selling cider across the bar which in the first place is a violation of the law. But the inspectors went further. They seized a quantity of the cider and subsequently had it analyzed. It was found to be stronger than the law allows it to be sold. In consequence a complaint of illegal keeping of liquor was made against him.

The case of John A. Porter, illegally removing baggage, was placed on file.

A GREEK BARBER

Made a Fierce Fight Against Arrest

BY CONSTABLE McMANUS

For Non Payment of Poll Tax for 1893

Quite a scene was enacted on John street this morning about 10 o'clock, the principals being John Kitroning, the Greek barber who conducts a five cent establishment in the Morris block and Constables McManus and Mercier, and Police Officer Daniel J. Lane. It seems that Kitroring owed poll tax for 1898 which with interest and costs amounts now to $1.75. The constables knowing the barber to have money on hand, made a demand for the payment of the amount. This the barber refused to do and being threatened with arrest, said: "I would rather die than pay that bill." Finally seeing that the barber was determined not to pay the bill, the constable adopted the heroic measures of placing him in custody and taking him to jail. He fought desperately and Police Officer Dan Lane was called upon and Kitroring was subdued. He was taken to jail by the constables and will there remain for a period of twenty days at least. Before being released, however, he will be compelled to take the poor debtor's oath.

your office adorned with your beautiful uniform, can you smell it?

And by the way, Mr. Davis how many people have told you or your officers about a pitcher on the ice in the barroom of the American House, a hotel which is also very near the police station. People are talking about that pitcher. Have you ever tried to find out what they sell from that pitcher? Have you tried to get a man in there to get hold of that pitcher? If not, why not, Mr. Davis? Have you heard about the open sale of liquor, day and night and every day in the week, on Concord street? If you have not, then you had better look into it at once, or people will think you are in an official trance, Mr. Davis. Have you heard any complaints about that drug store in Belvidere where Officer Donaldson's son is in charge? Are you surprised to learn that Officer Donaldson's son is connected with a drug store, Mr. Davis? Perhaps you are and perhaps you are not, but how often do you inspect that particular drug store, and who do you send to do the inspecting? Have you heard the story that is going the rounds, of how your officers caught a dealer on Bridge street selling cider over the bar and how this dealer sent a man to the drug store where Donaldson's son is employed, and after purchasing a quantity of whiskey, held it as evidence and told the liquor squad to press the cider case if they dared? Is this story without foundation, or is it true, Mr. Davis? Can a liquor law violator defy your department, or is this only a fake story of the street?

Why don't you stop the selling of liquor on Suffolk street? Why don't you stop the selling that is going on in Merrimack square? Why don't you stop the selling on Worthen street, on upper Market street, on Lakeview avenue, on Fayette street, and on many other streets. Haven't you heard of these places, Mr. Davis? Well, if you haven't, you are slow, very slow.

And furthermore, Mr. Davis, why can't you do something with the Middlesex street hotels? Are you afraid of them? Are you afraid of the men on the liquor squad, so far that you don't dare compel them to do their duty or are you afraid of the board of police, lest they reprimand you for being too zealous? Out with it, Mr. Davis. The people will stand by you if you have courage and tell the truth.

Mr. Faulkner, chairman of the board, has told a prominent and respectable citizen who is interested in the suppression of the sale of liquor that the board of police alone should be held responsible if the law is not enforced. He says that the chief will do as he is told, no more, no less. If what Mr. Faulkner says is true, you are doing as you are told and no more.

Is this so, Mr. Davis? If it is so, then the people of Lowell want to know it. If you are not obeying the orders of the board, then you should resign your position at once and allow someone to be appointed in your place who will stop this illegal sale of liquor in Lowell. If you are obeying orders, then it is up to Mayor Crowley to remove the entire police board and appoint men who will instruct you to do your duty. The people want the truth in this liquor farce and they will get it. The mayor cannot lie back much longer and dodge the question, as he did in the city campaign. He cannot point to his record on the liquor question much longer and say that is sufficient. What the people of Lowell demand in the present crisis is not records but acts. Public sentiment is rising to fever heat on this liquor farce and public sentiment is strong enough to move the most stubborn mayor that ever sat in city hall. The people of Lowell are ripe for revolt at this moment and the mayor, board of police, and Supt. Davis may as well face the music now as later on. Indeed, it is better for all of them to face it now, rather than later on, when matters may be worse for them.

The people want the law enforced, and if they cannot get it enforced in one way, they will in another. They want the superintendent of police ordered to do his duty, or removed from office. They want the board of police to enforce the law or if they do not, they want Mayor Crowley to remove them from office and appoint new commissioners in their places. The people are still the supreme power in this city and if the police board fails in its duty and the mayor fails to remove them for cause when it becomes sufficient then the people will remove the mayor as they have the power to do, and put a man in his place who will stop open rum-selling in Lowell. Supt. Davis cannot fool the people; neither can the police board nor the mayor fool the people. The responsibility is rapidly narrowing down to the mayor's office and unless some people brace up and come to their senses, the mayor will be compelled to act whether he likes it or not. By the way, don't forget that tomorrow will be Sunday.

LULA DU DLEY.

Traveling alone through the country in the hope of curing herself of a love infatuation, 14-year-old Lula Dudley says she has pretty nearly succeeded in the object of her trip. So far she has travelled about 3000 miles and when she has added another thousand to the record she thinks she will be heart whole.

Lula's home is at 221 Arcinega avenue, San Antonio, Tex. Though she is still a mere child, she fell desperately in love not long ago. She wanted to get married but her parents would not let her and decided that a trip might cure her of her infatuation. So they started her off on a visit to an uncle in Clarksburg, W. Va. She went all alone and acted for herself throughout, going to such hotels as she chose and stopping off whereever she liked.

She nearly floored the clerks in most of the hotels she patronized when she walked in and registered as "Miss Dudley, Texas."

"I am travelling partly for pleasure and partly to forget an unfortunate love affair," she told one of them. "I have nearly succeeded and I think by the time I get home, I shall be all right. I see now that my parents were right in opposing my marriage and am glad they advised my travelling. I have enjoyed myself so much that I shall go to the Paris exposition next year and while abroad I shall finish my musical education. I don't want to go on the stage or adopt a professional life, but I have so much musical talent that I think it is my duty to develop it."

The child's parents are wealthy ranch owners near San Antonio.

DONAHUE'S OFFICE

Entered and an Essay on Music Stolen

The Young Man Arrested and the Essay Recovered—Bicyclist Attacked by Highwaymen--Other Matters

A young man giving the name of James J. Carney was arrested in the rear of D. J. Donahue's office in the Mansur Block last night.

In his efforts to escape the officers he nearly jumped into the canal. On being searched at the police station some papers from Mr. Donahue's office were found in his possession including an essay on music, but nothing else of value. It was found that a pane of glass in Mr. Donahue's office window had been broken and that the glass in the private office door was also broken. The young man was intoxicated and did not know what he was doing. Mr. Donahue says that if Judge Hadley sentences Carney to read the essay on music it will be sufficent punshment.

ATTACKED BY HIGHWAYMEN.

Edward Bessey, the well known long-distance runner, was attacked by three highwaymen last night in the vicinity of the new Moody street school.

Mr. Bessey was running along easily when accosted, and in trying to stop him, the men threw him violently to the ground.

The fall caused painful bruises. Mr. Bessey struggled with the men and landed some effectve punches that the men will undoubtedly remember. He wore only his running suit.

Mr. Bessey says he thinks he could identify the men who attacked him. identigy the men who attacked him. There were three of them. Mr. Bessey is of the opinion, however that the motive of the men in attackng him was more for excitement than robbery. It was not the first time Bessey has been attacked by thugs. He was set upon by two men in Tewksbury about two years ago.

SIMPSON'S NOVEL METHOD OF MOVING

Lowell Boys in Philippines Write

A $300,000 MORTGAGE RECEIVED

Showing Benefit of Mortgage Stamp Law

Mayor Crowley was at Tyng's Island with the Jolly Martin Luthers yesterda and Secretary Prescott held forth in his absence. There is little for the mayor to do at City Hall these afternoons as all his callers visit him in the morning.

The committee on Labor Day will meet again next Wednesday and perfect arrangements for the city's share of the celebration.

The sale of the tickets for the raffle of Cheney's bicycle goes merrily on and the projectors of the scheme are hopeful for a good financial result. The ticket sellers have taken The Sun's advice and have not confined the sale to sewer privilges. A few of the street department bosses have purchased them. The "widow" in the case is said to be a real one and the wheel is said to have cost $50. Whether it's a charity or not, one man there'll be who will have no complaint to make, the one who draws the lucky number.

Arthur Salmon yesterday received a letter dated Manila from Private Alfred Champagne of C company, 13th Infantry Regulars. The writer informed him that he is a Lowell boy and enlisted from Boston. He states that Private Lennon of Lowell formerly of Company M. is in the same regiment with him and that both are in good health.

William H. Fuller who recently received the contract for the excavating and foundation work of the new High school annex on the city's lot at the corner of Paige and John streets has begun work on the job and has 17 teams at work there. The diggers have excavated a large amount of cobbles, making the work of difficult progress. Mr. Simpson who has had possession there under a lease recently settled his difficulty with the city, receiving, it is said, $100 and the frame building in which he was located. Mr. Simpson lost no time in getting off the land and did it a in novel manner. Securing a vacant lot on Second street in Centralville, he marked the different parts of his building so that he could put them together again and then tore down one half of the building moving the furniture and other articles that he had stored in that half into the other. Immediately after tearing the first half down he packed the lumber over to Centralville, put the parts together in place and in a few hours Mr. Simpson had half a building in Centralville and half in Paige street. He then returned to Paige street and moved all his furniture from the Paige street half into the Centralville half and now he's tearing down the other half.

Assistant City Clerk McCarthy is enjoying his vacation this week and he needs to enjoy it for when he returns he will be confronted with a job that will take his breath away.

Among the duties of the assistant clerk is that of copying all mortgages of property recorded in Lowell and yesterday afternoon the city clerk's office received the official mortgage of the United States Bobbin and Shuttle Co., to the Industrial Trust Co., for $300,000 the largest mortgage to appear in the local records for some time. The president of the U. S. Bobbin and Shuttle Co., is Walter L. Parker of this city whose plant is located on Western avenue. The Sun having announced exclusively some time ago the intention of this company to join the trust.

The deal was affected Aug. 1.

As some of the property mentioned in the mortgage is located in this city it is necessary to have it recorded in the office of the local city clerk and as the concern has property in Manchester, Woonsocket, R. I., and other places the mortgage will be a much copied affair, after going the rounds.

It is a large and closely printed document, 60 pages in exent and of dry legal matter, the most exasperating of all kinds to copy. To an uninitiated observer, it is mainly interesting for the great amount of internal revenue stamps upon its first page, for according to a recent revenue law, all mortgages of $1500 or over require revenue stamps, a 25-cent stamp for a $1500 mortgage and an additional 25 cens for every $500 additional amount. By just such a mortgage as this, one gets a good idea of the great income derived by means of the internal revenue laws.

On the mortgage received yesterday afternoon are two $50 stamps; four $10; one $5; one $3; one $1; and one 50-cent stamp; a total of $149.50, the most costly paper for its size seen in a long time.

But a $300,000 mortgage will not be the largest on the clerk's books for that of the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill street railroad to the American Loan and Trust company exceeds anything on the books, the amount of this mortgage being $1,000,000. This mortgage was no easy job for the copyist, for it takes up nearly 40 pages of the record. This was recorded before the law requiring stamps on mortgages was passed otherwise it would require stamps to the amount of $950.

KID McCOY, Knocked Out in One Round by Jack McCormick.

ONE STIFF BLOW

From McCormick Laid out Kid McCoy

By Associated Press to The Sun.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Jack McCormick of Philadelphia knocked out Kid McCoy in a little more than two minutes last night. The bout was to have been for six rounds and it was generally thought that McCormick stood no show at all. The fight was so short and so quickly over that there was almost nothing to it but the punch that put McCoy to sleep. The fight was under strict Queensberry rules, hitting with one arm free permitted.

When the gong sounded, McCormick started in to rush things, relying on his greater weight and superior strength to offset McCoy's science. He received a straight left in the mouth the first time he tried it and a second later a savage left hook on the side of the head halted him a second time.

He then rushed twice more, carrying McCoy to the rope both times. The first time he hit McCoy over the kidneys with his right. The second time as they came from the ropes still clinched, McCoy freed his left and sent a hook to McCormick's cheek, dropping him to the floor. McCormick lay quiet, making a pretense of claiming a foul, although none had been committed.

With a sledge hammer blow of the right on the jaw, McCormack landed on McCoy, who failed to respond to the bell, and the fight was over.

TOOK TWO GAMES

Boston Won a Double Header From Louisville

MEEKIN AND "MIKE" SULLIVAN PITCHED

Hickman Did Great Work at the Bat

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—There was good sport at the South End grounds yesterday during the four hours consumed by the champions in taking a double header from the lively Louisville team.

In the first game, Meekin gave a superb exhibition of pitching and practically won his own game with the stick.

Lawyer Michael Sullivan donned the best togs for the second game as Ted Lewis failed to come around in shape to take his turn in the box and it is not proper to ask a star pitcher to work more than once or twice a week these days. Sully did well for a man out of the business and was given a splendid reception by the crowd after he won his game.

The playing was remarkably brilliant and the champions were forced to play their best to take two games from the visitors. There was sharp hitting and sharp fielding by nearly every man on both teams and the afternoon's performance was baseball of the finest quality.

Bill Clarke caught both games in the absence of Bergen, who was at home sick with a bad cold. Clarke was full of life and coached his pitchers in fine style. He closed a grand day's work by driving home the winning run in the last game.

The infielding was remarkable. Collins, Long and Tenney were at their best, while Clingman and Ritchie were fast and clever for the visitors. The outfielding of Stahl was never surpassed while Wagner was a close second. Stahl's was the best performance as he started more quickly and got short hit balls that few men could have reached. The colonel had longer runs, but more time to get there.

Clarke in left did some brilliant work. The longest hits were made easy by his fine starts and speedy runs. Hickman did well.

At the bat Hickman carried off the honors of the day with five safe ones out of seven chances. Tenney and Collins hit the ball very hard in the second game while Meekin and Stahl hit strongly in the first.

When you notice that Boston made only one mistake out of 81 chances you can imagine the kind of baseball they were playing.

In the second game Arlie Latham came behind the bat and was given a cold reception by the crowd. He, no doubt, did the best he could but was rattled and got mixed up several times. Sullivan was given a pretty raw deal on strikes at first. Latham did better as the game progressed but it was quite plain that umpiring for the Boston club will never be Latham's delight.

In the absence of Capt. Duffy, Tenney handled the team. He made the mistake of not taking Sullivan out after the seventh when the statesman was fast slowing up and in trouble.

Nichols and Willis could have worked the last two innings and made a game practically sure that was finally won out by a small margin.

Sullivan deserves praise for the way he went into the box. The uniform he wore was made for a smaller man. It was tore up the side before he could get working room. Mr. Sullivan was a picture as he walked out to pitch the first ball, the crowd cheered as he is well known to the fans, having a fine record in the big league before taking up the practice of law. He is more than six foot tall and built from the ground up. When Sully saw a fly ascend and called out, "I've got it," in a deep John L. Sullivan voice the other players kept hands off. At first it looked as if the old league pitcher was out of form but he soon settled down to a wide curve and held it to the last. They say that he is afraid to pitch a fast game fearing the consequences if he should hit a man. The lawyer received $50 for his two hours' work and was happy to see Boston win.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. LOWELL'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

THE FAMOUS YACHT AMERICA.

A correspondent asks if the yacht America belonged to Gen. Butler at the time it won the cup in England in 1851. The America, as has already been stated, did not belong to General Butler until long after her victory in England. She had a checkered career. The property of the New York Yacht club at the time of her victory, she was purchased later by an Englishman and for a time flew the British flag. During the war, a syndicate of rebel sympathizers bought the vessel on account of her speed and when cornered as a blockade runner in St. John's river, she was scuttled to escape capture. She was raised, however, and was afterwards used as a training ship at Annapolis. In 1870 she took part in the cup race but was beaten by the other American yachts, the Magic, the Idler and the Silvie. Three years later, the government sold her to General Butler with whose estate she passed into the possession of his son, Paul Butler, who still holds her as a precious keepsake for the victories she won.

A PALPABLE FALSEHOOD.

Mr. Bryan is evidently getting rattled. He is now trying to keep free silver out of sight for a while, to see what the effect will be. At four different meetings in Iowa this week the prospective candidate approved the course of the democrats of that state in dropping 16 to 1 and substituting therefor anti-trust and anti-expansion. The straddling of the money question is good evidence that the democratic managers are becoming panic stricken. They would not throw overboard their cargo unless as a last desperate resort to save the vessel from shipwreck.—Mail.

The above is one of the most audacious and barefaced lies that could possibly be invented. The democratic state convention of Iowa endorsed the Chicago platform in whole and in every detail adding to it such resolutions as were deemed expedient in relation to the Cuban and Philippine wars and to the alarming growth of trusts. Furthermore it endorsed William Jennings Bryan as the next democratic candidate for the presidency, something which that convention would not have done had he in the slightest degree wavered in his advocacy of the Chicago platform whose basic principle is the free and unlimited coinage of both metals at the ratio of 16 to 1.

We defy the Mail to produce any utterance of William Jennings Bryan in which he agreed to keep the free silver issue in the back ground. The Mail must have little regard for the intelligence of its readers when it makes statements that are plainly contradicted and belied by the press despatches in every newspaper in the country. It indicates what a dearth of material there is for an attack on this foremost of democrats when the blatant republican shouters impose such fabrications upon their readers.

CREELMAN ON CROKER.

Here is what the great newspaper correspondent, James Creelman, says of that able but much-abused political leader, Richard Croker:

"For hours and hours I have walked the deck of the St. Paul with Richard Croker, and listened to the voice of the powerful man whose political influence I have fought unceasingly for twenty years," says James Creelman. "It is easy to attack him at a distance, but to argue against his simple, almost primitive ideas of popular government is like swimming against the ocean tide. During the seven days of my association with Mr. Croker, I learned something of the immense personal force that lies behind his soft gray eyes and still softer voice. I talked with ex-Speaker Reed, with Senator Sewell, of New Jersey, with the bankers and men of wide experience among the passengers. But every time I resumed my walks on deck with Mr. Croker, I became more impressed with his common sense and his marvelous knowledge of men. He reasons almost like a child, directly from the facts to conclusions and from conclusions to facts, without any fine elaboration or strained effort. His statements are blunt, sometimes brutally so. Never for an instant during our whole week's vacation on the St. Paul did he wander away from his simple idea that political parties exist for the purpose of finding out what the people want and giving them what they want. His whole theory of politics, consciously or unconsciously, seems to be that government should originate at the bottom and work upward instead of originating at the top and working downward that the people and not the leaders should choose the issues and determine them.

SOME TAX-RATES.

We are hearing considerable about tax rates high and low at the present time. Our own happens to be the highest we ever heard of except that of Brockton which is over $21 and that of Dayton, Ohio, so unctuously dilated upon by Robert E. Crowley. It is a smooth paying tax rate for Dayton is smooth paved almost entirely and we have a taste of the asphalting tax rate, $19.00, just four dollars more than the tax rate of Lawrence. The city of Haverhill has a tax rate of $17.80, Springfield's tax rate is $16.60 and Boston's $13.10 just half a dollar less than that of last year. The city of Lowell once enjoyed a reasonably low tax rate but the municipal reformers started to tinker the charter to establish economy on a firm basis and now we are reaping the result of their wisdom.

The democrats of Iowa and Kentucky have held their state conventions and in both cases the Chicago platform and William J. Bryan were endorsed. Yet the papers that are paid for lieing in the interests of the republican party will assert that they have thrown aside the free silver issue. Both states condemned the policy of entering upon a war of conquest and of spilling American blood in the ignoble cause of oppressing a people who are struggling to be free, a people that had cast off the yoke of another nation and declared their independence before the United States was buncoed into buying what didn't exist—Spain's sovereignty in the Philippine islands.

The news from the Philippines brings tidings of the capture of the town of San Mateo. As this place is but 10 miles distant from Manila this item is calculated to give the American public some idea of how little headway was made in the four months of arduous and active campaigning before the rainy season set in, toward the expansion of our territorial possessions on the island of Luzon, despite all the glowing and lying official reports with which the people of the United States were for months being gulled.—Fall River Globe.

Chief Wade has refused to enforce the stationary firemen's license act on the strength of the opinion of the attorney general. When did Knowlton's opinion supersede the statutes?

The Citizen has scored a scoop on the Sun in sending one of its bright young men to Naples to interview Admiral Dewey but the Sun will outdo the Citizen by sending a representative over to have a social chat with Her Majesty Queen Victoria. Yes, sir, if we have to hire a special ship for the purpose we are going to get the best of the Citizen. The Mail is not in the game at all.

The New York Journal draws the line between imperialism and expansion. It is for the latter and against the former, which it says is the exploitation of the ruled for the benefit of the rulers. It is getting into line with the prevailing sentiment of the party on this point.

Here is a characteristic piece of inconsistency from the Morning Mail:

"Nobody ever will build a boat which will beat any other boat in any kind of weather."

"We believe that we have a boat that can beat any foreign craft anywhere in any kind of weather.—Mail.

It is said that J. M. Barrie has a larger revenue from the stage version of his "Little Minister," than many a successful professional man makes in a lifetime. Already it has yielded him more than $200,000; and to that sum may may safely be added another $50,000 for the publishing rights to the novel. Many a gold mine floated on a large capital has yielded much less than this little book of about 110,000 words.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to have a grand open air band tournament at the Fair Grounds for suitable prizes, having as competitors Lowell bands, the Talbot Mills band of North Billerica and the Allen band of Billerica Centre. Out-of-town judges could be secured and favorites could not then be charged. It would settle the question of supremacy which is creating no end of discussion between local and suburban bands. A tip for such promoters as Con Desmond or the street railway company.

Oh, when a man is waiting
For a girl to don her hat,
An hour is fully three hours long
Indeed, it's all of that.
But when a man is writing,
In haste to catch the mail,
An hour will pass away before
A sheep could shake his tail.

We have known that the language of the eyes, flowers, handkerchief, postage stamps, and even the way a girl tied her ribbons and the long or short ends of her sashes meant something to the man who understood this mute language. Now a new way of communication has been established through the medium of the wax which seals your letters, and the dainty boxes containing various colored sticks of wax are not alone for show and just to look pretty, but each color has a meaning of its own, and properly applied conveys a message, which may be business, social or tender, as the sender desires. For instance, business a letter should be sealed with red—very approximately, too, it would seem, as red wax is always more or less connected with legal documents. When writing to a friend use gray. That is quiet and neutral and very similar to the emotions called forth by friendship. If you are writing to your lover and everything is smooth sailing, then use blue, but if you wish to hint to him that you have or think you have any cause for jealousy, then use the pretty yellow stick which comes in your box. In replying to a wedding invitation then white is de rigueur. For a letter of condolence it is optional with you whether you use black or violet. As many object seriously to the use of anything suggesting mourning, violet is very much more of a favorite. A dinner invitation calls for a seal of coffee-colored wax and when a man gets a letter sealed with green from the girl whom he admires, then he may take it as a faint suggestion that she shyly bids him hope.

THE TEST THAT TELLS

You can get all the Convincing Proof you want by reading Lowell Papers.

When the reader wants any article of value he naturally prefers to deal with someone he can depend upon. If mixed up in a law suit, a good, responsible lawyer is generally the first necessity sought. If lost on a prairie, directions from a settler could be relied upon; those from a stranger would be doubted. The test that tells the tale of merit is the test of friends and Doan's Kidney Pills.

Can you ask for better evidence?

Read this case:

Mrs. Thomas F. Burke of 14 Seventh street, says: "Both Mr. Burke and myself have used Doan's Kidney Pills. His case was a very serious one and of long standing. He went to a hospital for treatment and was benefited by it but later on the trouble returned. Learning about Doan's Kidney Pills he procured a box at Ellingwood's & Co.'s drug store. He derived so much positive benefit from the treatment that he wished he had known of Doan's Kidney Pills when the trouble began. Had he used them at that time much suffering and money would have been saved."

Doan's Kidney Pills are sold for 50c. per box by all dealers, or mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Sales for Week Ending Aug. 26, '99

Necessity compels me to advertise and sell at peremptory sale to the highest bidders, without limit, reserve, or protection of any kind, a large portion of my real estate situated on Gorham and Moore streets. As I have no choice in the matter, the auctioneers have chosen Thursday, Aug. 24th, 1899, to dispose of the property. The sale will take place regardless of the weather. The order of the sale is as follows:

The several parcels will be sold subject to the taxes for 1897-1898 and the current year.

AT 4 O'CLOCK P. M.

The TWO-STORY BLOCK, 978-980 Gorham street adjoining the Globe Hotel property at the corner of Moore street. The large, modern and nearly new FIVE-HOUSE BLOCK numbered 2, 4, 6, 8, and 10 Globe Terrace, and 8611 square feet of land.

The block on Gorham street has a good sized store on first floor, and a five-room tenement on second floor; is supplied with gas, city water, water closet etc., is connected with the sewer; rents for $21 a month and is in prime condition.

Each house in Globe Terrace has seeven rooms, water closet, city water, sewerage and cellar. The block is less than four years built; is convenient, excellently arranged, a yard all about it; each house is separate and in every way distinct from the others. The block when all rented brings an income of $42.50 a month.

The buildings were built and constructed upon honor and will stand the hardest kind of use for years to come. The lot is level, graded and fenced. The location of the property for business and renting purposes is first class and needs no comment here.

AT 4.15 O'CLOCK P. M.

3760 square feet of land on Moore street adjoining the Globe Hotel property at the corner of Gorham street. This lot has a frontage of 65 feet and is one of the best spots in the city of Lowell upon which to erect a block. There are few more desirable locations, seldom so good a shaped lot. No better situation to rent.

AT 4.30 O'CLOCK P. M.

2765 square feet of land on Moore street just east and adjoining the last 6 feet and in nearly every respect is described lot. It has a frontage of 3 the equal of the preceding lot.

There are many lots of land in the market to-day, but none that will prove so attractive upon investigation as the two this sale offers.

AT 5 O'CLOCK P. M.

Six lots of land on Moore street and a new street running from Moore street to the Boston and Maine railroad. One of the lots has a frontage of 55 feet on Moore street and 160 feet on the new street and is a splendid piece of land to improve. The others have frontages of 50 feet and face the new street, the lots are situated between the residences of B. F. Crosby, numbered 111 and Dr. W. J. Kelley, numbered 129 Moore street or opposite the stone residence of Albert E. Moors.

The areas are about 5700 feet and the opportunity to secure a nice lot of land in a fine neighborhood at a reasonable price is rather unusual. You must make all inquiries at the office of the auctioneers.

The purchaser of the Gorham street property must deposit with or secure to the auctioneers $500 as soon as the lot is struck off; the purchasers of the two lots on Moore street must each do the same with $150 and the purchasers of the six lots on Moore and the new street must each do the same with $50 or $100. Other terms liberal.

THAT MILL COMBINE

Capitalization of New Company is $35,000,000

The Robeson Mill May Later be Included in the Deal—The Brayton Interests Are Probably at the Head of the Deal

By Associated Press to The Sun.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 18.—Naturally the print cloth mills deal is the only topic of conversation about town today and while opinions differ as to the sucess of the project, the general idea among stock holders, so far as it can be gathered is favorable to selling at the prices given. While the terms of the syndicate will be cash, the question of whether or not, the securities of the syndicate will later be offered in full or part payment, is receiving much consideration. It is reported that the capitalization is to be $35,000,000. It is accepted that the securities are to consist of bonds, preferred and common stock, but nothing has been allowed to escape concerning the proportion of the various sorts of securities.

It is considered not unlikely that the Robeson mill will later be included in the deal.

The statement that the Brayton interests were at the head of the deal is now not considered of sufficient certainty to be considered. The size of the Brayton has so far advanced that it is confidentially stated that Brayton banks as the First National and B. M. C. are known, are to finance the deal. If it is successful, those same banks will have the bulk of the mill business.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Sir Charles Tupper, formerly Canadian High Commissioner, in an interview with a representative of the Associated Press said: "The United States is purposely delaying the settlement of the Alaska dispute on account of the pecuniary benefit accruing to miners and coast cities through delay, and has refused to have the boundaray delimitated as is being done in Venezuela. No settlement could be reached through the evcnsided commission suggested by the United States.

We have reached an impasse and have no intention of resuming negotiations in regard to the matters pending between Canada and America, until the Alaska question is settled.

THE MALONE FUNERAL

LARGELY ATTENDED AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH THIS FORENOON.

The funeral of the late John Joseph Malone took place this forenoon from St. Patrick's church and was very largely attended, many of the present and past members of the Xaverian brothers' school being present. The altar boys were all present, the deceased formerly performing acolyte duties at this church. A requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Richard S. Burke who later pronounced the final absolution at the grave. Frank Murphy was master of ceremonies. The choir rendered Schmidt's requiem mass and at the offertory, Director E. F. Faulkner rendered the hymn, "Pie Jesu" by Leybach. At the conclusion of the mass, the De Profundis psalm for the dead was sung by the choir. Miss Josephine Flinn feelingly and effectively rendered the pathetic hymn by Handel, "Angels Ever Bright and Fair." The floral tributes were beautiful and in great profusion the most noticeable for their fragrance and design being the following: Large pillow with the inscription in blue immortelles, "Our Joe," from Uncle John; large floral harp from Selectmen James McMannon of Dracut, the well known florist; large cross from schoolmates and companions; large spray of asters, Mr. Frank Redhead. There were numerous other sprays, bouquets and baskets. The interment was in the Catholic cemetery under the direction of Undertaker Davey. The pall bearers were schoolmates and companions, namely John C. Martin, John Kennedy, William Dacey, William Regan, Thomas O'Hearn, and Philip O'Hearn.

Miss May Boyers and Miss Carrie Freeman of Centralville, will tour the beaches on the Atlantic coast for the next two weeks on their bicycles.

STRIKER INJURED

Probably Set Upon by Scab Firemen

By Associated Press to The Sun.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 19—Samuel Hudson, a striking mill fireman, while on his way home late last evening, was set upon by half a dozen unknown men, knocked down, kicked in the ribs and otherwise brutally assaulted. Three ribs were broken, and he was probably injured internally. As robbery was not the motive, it is thought that the attack was made by some of the firemen who are filling the strikers' places in revenge for the prosecutions which have been instituted in the district court.

Omega Oil

There is no sense in wasting words about Neuralgia. We all know that it causes terrible suffering, and the darting, shooting pains are enough to drive you mad. What a sufferer wants is relief. He wants the pain to stop. He wants to be well and happy again. The way to get relief from Neuralgia is to rub Omega Oil into the spot where the trouble lies. First bathe the part with hot water to open up the pores. Then give it a good, thorough rubbing with Omega Oil. The oil will be taken up by the flesh, and penetrate to the aching nerves. It will give gratifying relief. It will soften, soothe, and comfort. It will overcome and banish the pain. Plenty of people will doubt this, but their doubting does not change the facts. Omega Oil cures all bodily aches and pains, and that's all there is to say. Your druggist has it or can get it for you.

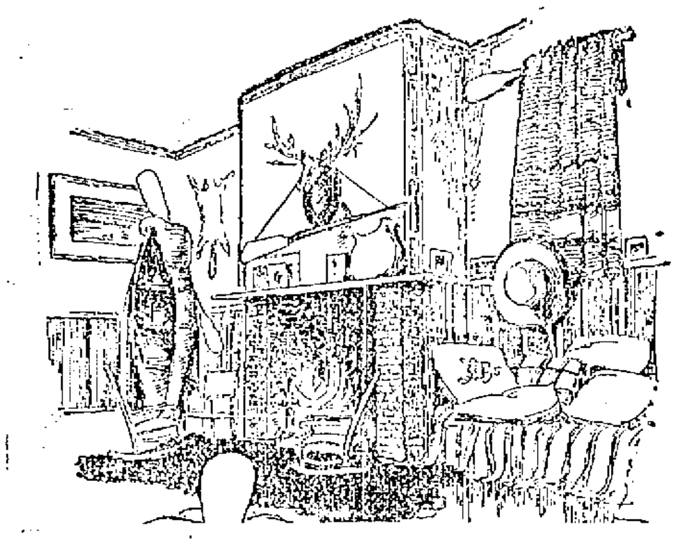
WOMAN'S NEWS & GOSSIP



A MEMENTO ROOM FURNISHED WITH THE MOST PICTURESQUE FEATURES OF A VACATION ALONG SHORE.

A GLIMPSE OF THE NEW HABIT SKIRT.

The Back will be Round and two Tunics will Fall Over a Very Deep Ruffle.

THE PLAID SHIRT WAIST.

It is Growing in Popularity and a Broad Plaid Tie is to be Worn With it.

GREY IN ALL SHADES FASHIONABLE.

The waist, once all important, is playing second fiddle to the skirt, which has suddenly turned from a thing of utility and necessity only, into one of beauty and grace as well. The long, willowy line which could never be attained by compressing the waist line has been managed by compressing the hips, and the skirt has been cut and trained into something quite undreamed. The result is the slenderness long desired that "willowy grace" made immortal in the poems of Tennyson.

When hips disappeared this spring it became a matter of triumph to fit the skirt to the figure. No longer were gathers in the back possible, with that long, sweeping line which fashion demanded of the hips, and then the dressmakers took to laying the back of the skirt in folds, turned well under and flatly fastened, so as to draw the skirt even more tightly across the figure.

THE EUGENIE COUCH.

VERY ORNAMENTAL FOR A BED-ROOM.

But the new skirts of fall show a still greater diminution of fullness. The new habit skirt is absolutely tight, and is fitted to the figure as though it were moulded in wax.

FITTED HIPS.

Just why it should be any more unreasonable to fit the hips than the shoulders it would be hard to tell, as the hip fullness was never either necessary or comfortable. The swathing, sweeping skirt, with its voluminous folds at the back of the belt, was always heavy and burdensome to a woman. Better, a thousand times, the skirt which has little fullness and is consequently light in weight. This kind of a skirt is easily managed, and, once tried, becomes a favorite. Indeed, at this writing it is difficult to imagine how the woman who has worn either the linen or the narrow, thin cloth skirt all summer can go back to the heavy weight, which, under the guise of a fashionable skirt, dragged her waist and back down in previous seasons.

So much for the hygiene of the matter.

From the fashionable side there comes word that the skirts will be fitted so closely across the figure that slenderness will be absolutely demanded, and the woman who has not got it must train for it. She must reduce. This does not, of course, mean "reduce" her health, but only her fat, thereby making herself undeniably more beautiful and generally more comfortable.

The habit skirt will be closed in the back, showing only a seam, and the opening will be upon the side. It will be fitted with a tunic, and very fashionable skirts will have two tunics, one falling below the other. The bottom of the skirt has its deep ruffle, or flounce, which is set upon the lining of the skirt, or is managed by making the skirt very full around the foot.

THE PATTERN.

Our artist has endeavored to give an idea of the habit skirt as sketched at one of the leading importers of New York a few days ago. With great good nature the modiste allowed her to stretch out the paper models and to make traceries of them in reduced size. "If your readers," said the modiste, "will kindly take these diagrams and enlarge them by laying them upon large pieces of paper and marking around them, they can obtain as good a pattern of the habit skirt as I could make myself. The slender effect is all gained by the tunics."

In drawing a pattern it is advised that the readers take a different copy of the paper for each separate part of the pattern in order not to mutilate the other designs. After drawing the enlarged pattern upon a piece of brown paper it might be advisable to enlarge the pattern again, which can be done in the same way as at first. If the work is done slowly and carefully the best of results can be obtained.

A rear view of the skirt shows two tunics, one falling over the other, with a deep flounce below.

The waist of silk or very light weight cloth is the one that is to be worn with the habit skirt, not a waist of the same material. It will be plain in the back, with the most trifling suggestion of a blouse, at the waist line. The waist, by the way, seems rather short in the back, but the front is pulled low into the belt, giving the curved waist line which is so popular.

The new silk waists show a variety of nice trimmings, lace being much used. Lace is set over the silk as a yoke, and it is also made to wear with the waist as a collarette. If desired the lace can be arranged in such a way that it can be taken off, either when a yoke or a collarette.

Stocks continue to increase in size. The latest show very wide ends finished with fringe.

There are many ways of tying and fastening the new broad silk stocks. One is by gathering the ends into a ring from which they hang down flat and broad. Very decorative rings of semi-precious gems come for this purpose.

NEW RIBBONS.

The latest importations in ribbons for neckwear are really wonderful in coloring and diversity of patterns. On white and bright colored grounds there are chine designs, and over these are narrow black and white stripes or dots. Then there are beautiful plaids, pale lilac crossed with peachblow pink and autumn green; white traced with narrow diagonal bands of black, beet-root red and ecru, and player's gray plaided in sapphire blue and mauve. Many of these ribbons come wide enough for shirt waists, being half a yard in width. They cost anywhere from $2 to $5, and women who persist in having nothing but the best can easily pay $5 a yard for them.

Pointed sleeves are still the correct thing. The Princess May sleeve, a very chic design, is round at the inside of the wrist, tapering off into the sharpest of points at the outside. It is then finished with a frill of lace, or a puffing of the waist material is admissible.

In conclusion, it is imperative that a word be said about materials for the new habit skirts. These must in all cases be light in weight, as the heavy fabrics are clumsy and ungraceful arranged in tunic effects. Light flannels, ladies' cloth, granite suiting and French cashmeres are seen in the newest colorings for these skirts, and can be trimmed most attractively.

A pale nickel gray, mingled with American blue, is the very newest coloring in flannels for early autumn wear, while lime-flower green promises to prove a formidable rival for ultra-fashionable colors in the other materials.

HELEN WARD.

A SURE CURE FOR SLEEPLESSNESS.

The latest cure for insomnia is cheap, healthy and efficacious. The remedy was suggested by an old doctor, to whom a despairing young woman had gone for advice. "Of course," said the doctor, "I could give you plenty of drugs that would put you to sleep, but in the case of a young woman that is always to be avoided. The reason you cannot sleep is because your nerves are all unstrung. That does not necessarily mean that you must put your nervous system to sleep by the use of drugs. What you want is mild excitement that will lift your nervous system out of the rut it has fallen into. The best thing in the world to do that is a long trolley ride. If the route is eight or ten miles long so much the better. One thing is certain, you will either sleep during the ride or as soon as it is over."

EUGENIE BED.

A Eugenie bed is an ornament of which any sleeping room might be proud. Its foundation is a wooden bedstead, or, to be more modern, a brass one, fitted with the best of springs and mattresses enough to make the bed very soft and high.

The steps leading up to this stately couch are made of wood, and can be formed in the most primitive way. Over all a rug is thrown. A canopy is draped from the head board and caught back again from an extended frame which is built out to support it.

HOW TO KEEP EGGS.

To preserve eggs for winter use, pour six quarts of boiling water on to three pounds of lime, one ounce of cream of tartar, and half a pound of salt. Leave until cold, and then pour it over the fresh eggs, which are carefully arranged in jars, and see that there are none uncovered. Tie the jars over with thick paper, and stand on a shelf in a cool larder or storeroom.

A VISIT TO SARA BERNHARDT.

She tells our Correspondent About her Life, her Successes and the Many Things she Hopes yet to Accomplish.

By Annette Rierdon Reed.

"I will see you at 3." So ran a line from Madame Bernhardt to me, and at 3 I was well on my journey to the fashionable part of Paris, where the queen of the drama, "Sara, the Divine," as they call her in Paris, lives.

Approaching Bernhardt's house through the tiny courtyard, I saw hanging alongside the door a big bunch of purple grapes, and behind the grapes was the door signal. In answer to my touch the neatest of French maids opened the door and showed me across to a very pretty square hallway with stairs leading up. The hallway is used by Madame as a reception room.

Scarcely had I seated myself when I saw a figure upon the stairs. It was Bernhardt. She had been standing upon the top step reading by the uncertain light of a colored lamp, but as she saw me she came down the steps with outstretched hands and a hearty "I am so glad to see you!"

Of course she spoke in French, for Bernhardt does not know English. She has always declared that she would not learn it for fear it would spoil her French. A charming idiosyncrasy, truly, and one that is appreciated by both French and English audiences. If foreign stars, says a well-known critic, would cling to their own language we should not be put to the mortification of hearing our own tongue murdered upon the stage. Speak correctly or not at all should be the rule for public speakers. But we Americans are so good natured!

I thought of all this as Bernhardt's smooth, musical tongue struck upon my ear, and as she came forward with both warm hands outstretched. She shook mine cordially and pulled me toward a curling tete-a-tete, one of the sort in which you face each other, though sitting on opposite sides.

"You see me at a disadvantage," declared Madame, laughingly, "for I am alone. My friend who has been visiting me is away, and I like never to be alone. This house was built for many guests, and I am never without some one."

"Your son?"

"Oh, now," said Madame, touching the lace upon the gown as though she would place her hand upon her heart; "you mention the dearest and kindest fellow in the world. I love Maurice and he loves me. He is the most devoted of sons. Every day he comes, and many times some days, to see how I am. Am I lonely he does not leave me. Am I sad he brings me bright flowers and pets and books. He is a darling, Maurice."

As Madame spoke she glanced around the room which was filled with many beautiful objects, perhaps the gifts of Maurice. There were many small clocks, for I learned afterward that she is very fond of time-pieces, and there were vases and easy chairs and rugs. Yet the room was relieved from Bohemianity by the similarity of the style of ornaments, which all belonged to the pure French renaissance, and were not scattered articles of virtu and bric-a-brac of all nations.

"I am resting now," said Madame, "for in a few days I start upon my tour of the provinces. I shall play my Hamlet entirely, for it is the greatest success of my life. Yes, I like to play it. There is a novelty about it. Shall I go to America? I hope so, for I love your people. They are so appreciative, I could play for them forever."

And now you must have a pen picture of Bernhardt. She is petite, though so slight that you take her for taller than she is. I do not think she is over five feet three. She weighs about 115 pounds, and her hair is of a light shade of natural red. It is curly, and she wears it in a French coil from which ripples curl around her face.

Her complexion is pink and her teeth are white and even. Her hands are the long, slim ones of an artist, but so delicate that you wonder how she could ever have handled the large figures which she will tell you that she modeled.

"The future? Of that I cannot speak accurately," said Madame, "but I shall play here next year in my own theatre, which I am building now. But my next play? That is not decided yet."

Bernhardt can be haughty, and there is just a suggestion of haughtiness as she speaks. She has the habit of carrying her head well back and speaking with her eyes cast down slightly, yet looking down at you instead of up. It is a stage trick, very pretty and effective, which gives dignity. That is Bernhardt's way.

"You are very busy, Madame?" I asked.

"Oh, dear, yes. What can I say? I have promised to write my recollections and experiences for a publisher and to soon finish the book. I have contracted to complete my theatre by the opening of the Exposition, and that means the earning of the necessary money for it. Business reverses have brought me low in money, and I must be active. Then there is a new play to select and rehearse, and the company always needs much drilling. Ah, if it were not for Sardou, what would I have done?"

Madame sighed and bowed her head. It was a dramatic moment. Then a merry laugh burst from her lips, for she is a creature of moods. "But that is nothing. I am so glad that my Hamlet is a success."

At that moment there was a sound at the curtains, and the maid ushered in a caller. It was Madame's reception day, and I knew that I must not take up too much of her time.

"Come again," she murmured, as I departed, and then she stood up and held out both hands again and smiled upon me one of her wonderful dazzling smiles.

As I walked out into the warm August sunshine I pondered upon this wonderful woman, who, upon the sunset slope of life's mountain, still retains the face and figure of a girl. Absolutely babyish in complexion, youthful in eyes and expression, fresh in voice, lithe as a cat and possessed of all the strong qualities of manner, this woman, though over 55, is to-day the greatest living actress.

At the age when most of us are willing to settle down into old age she is planning new achievements, and at the time when many of us are counting our grandchildren she is counting the new deeds that lie before her for accomplishment. And she has grandchildren. Maurice is a great man of over thirty. But Bernhardt alone of all who surround her is fresh and youthful.

You have heard how this woman forty years ago went on the stage at the Theatre Francaise in a small part, and how she made a failure. She was so thin, so untaught, yet so earnest that the audience ridiculed her. For ten years she struggled, then came success.

In 1880 she was at the very height of her first fame, and in that year she modeled statuary, painted for the Salon, played to packed houses, successfully toured America and set all Paris gossiping with her eccentricities. One of these was to sleep in her coffin, which she continually decorated anew with handsome bits of lace and choice silk for the becomingness of the final moment.

Her latest and greatest success is in the role of Hamlet, the part which was played by Charlotte Cushman with indifferent success and by Anna Dickenson with failure. Other women have tried Hamlet and failed. Ellen Terry predicted defeat, though she hoped for the best. And no one presaged success. But Bernhardt's Hamlet is the wonder of the century in stageland.

As I passed away from Bernhardt's home I looked back. Madame was standing at the window, her back to the pane. The lovely, long, unbroken lines of her celestial blue robe showed through the glass, and her clear, red hair gleamed above. Around her neck was a string of many colored beads, which supported, I remembered, a lorgnette. As I looked Madame moved, and the long, sinewy line of her figure passed out of sight. "Wonderful woman," I said. And a passer-by stopped and echoed my words. Yes, Bernhardt is wonderful!

MAKING A SUMMER ROOM FOR WINTER.

Practical Suggestions for Bringing Nature Indoors When Jack Frost Shall Have Spread his Mantle Over Lake and Tree.

You will want to take summer home with you from mountain and shore, and you may be glad to get a hint on how to do it effectively so that you will still see summer days when it is snowing out of doors and dream sunny dreams when storms howl. Don't expect to do it cheaply, for summer days in winter come high; and don't expect to do it without work. Be willing to spend a little and to be industrious for the rest of this month, then shall you be able to go home bearing your summer with you.

There is no summer room unless it be a memento room. You must take back with you the very things you used in summer, or their likeness. You will want to transform them to make them roomy and fit for the home, and you may want to use very modern arts for the purpose; but after all your room will savor of summer, and you will have that which your soul craves—a memento room.

Here is a shore room or mountain room, if there is a lake so that boating entered into your summer pleasures. Begin with the plainest thing you can gather in the way of furniture—an oar—and study how to make it decorative. You can use it when you get home for a portiere pole; other oars will support the window curtains. Beg, borrow and purloin oars and occupy your spare time sandpapering and polishing them. Oil makes a nice finish, and if the oars are worn down, so much the better. It gives them a pleasant look that is lacking from new oars. Any likely man will hew you a very presentable pine oar out of a pine board—and along the lake everybody can make oars—and so you can get half a dozen which you can strap together and lay aside to be sent home with your baggage.

THE CANOE.

If you have a good-sized room an old row boat, or a canoe, makes a very good and useful ornament. It must be polished inside and out and fitted with shelves, which are for bric-a-brac. Three or four shelves a foot apart will make a very presentable cabinet. Back it up with an oar, and on the oar, if you so desire, screw in tiny brass hooks for other hangings.

Paddles can be utilized even better than oars, being broader. A young woman who has been spending her vacation along Lake Superior will go home with a very pretty chair, the seat of which is fashioned from three broad, flat paddles, which are set upon three legs, a leg under each paddle. The back is paddle-shaped, thus making a very comfortable as well as decorative chair.

Mountain hats, while not, properly speaking, things of beauty, can be made usefully reminiscent by lining them with silk and shirring a silk bag inside so that fancy work can be kept in the hat. Think well before you hang up a useless article, for such seem to collect dust wonderfully, but where use and pleasant association can both be preserved there you will do the best with your memento room.

Take home many pillows. Gather pine needles by the sack and sew up the receptacle while the needles are fresh. The pillows will weigh a ton, but they will be so sweet that you will seek them in your tired moments for a year to come. And they are an excellent remedy for nervous headaches. Plain bed ticking will do for the pillow covers, but if you desire you can slip on new cases later. It is a pretty idea to use one's mountain dress in the making of a pillow.

A girl who has climbed all summer in a heavy blue denim skirt is about to cut out the best breadths of the skirt for pine needle pillows. Those who have been in the party will embroider their initials upon the pillow, while the male persuasion will indite a line or so of poetry in indelible ink.

Have you ever tried the experiment of making a couch cover from strips of old colored linen, such as they have been using for dress skirts this summer?

A tiny strip of bright red linen is sewed in between the broader stripes of blue, tan, gray and white. These covers are lined with plain linen or with a striped lining made up in the same way as the outside, thus making a two-sided afghan. This sort of coverlid launders well and is immensely decorative, the bright red giving it a very Oriental appearance.

SMALL THINGS.

Try, too for your memento room, the experiment of knitting a rug, upon knitting needles, with plain knitting stitch. Use the tiniest strips of old summer finery, sewed in one long strip, as though you were making a rag carpet. Choose all dark colors except for dashes of scarlet.

The evergreens last all winter, and will not shed their needles except in exceptional cases, where the needles have already begun to fall, and there are such stand-bys as cat tails and dried golden rod. Dip the former in a weak solution of glue and dry the latter in the dark.

You can make pillows of down if you wish to embark upon an endless undertaking. For the down select thousands of thistles and place them in bags. Lay them away when fairly well dried and three months hence open the bag. You will find it filled with softest thistle down. So with cat tails. They will "feather out" and give you down, but you must gather millions of them.

For the more ambitious features of your memento room you must beg the spinning wheel from the old mill rooms, and you must get the old gun of the farmer and the skin of the fox which has been caught somewhere in your neighborhood. Get the "brush" at all events, for a tail is better than no fox.

Deer heads, antlers, pine cones and all these outdoor things keep summer all the year for you. Don't forget to dry a few ferns and mount them upon pasteboard. They will look very well in the small, old frames you have at home. Or you can make frames from twigs. Resurrect the old ways of using woodland twigs, and you will be surprised to find with what a goodly array of decorative articles you will start upon your homeward journey.

Many women occupy their time the last few weeks making rustic chairs of rough boughs.

SOUTHERN PERFUMERY.

As good perfumery from flowers is made at the South as is imported from abroad. A common method of extraction is to make layers of beef tallow and blooms, then cut up the tallow and soak it in alcohol, an air-tight box being first provided, with panes of glass that just fit into it. The tallow is laid upon the glass, and the blooms of the flowers, gathered early in the morning, as soon as the dew is dried off, are strewn thickly upon its surface; then a layer of mutton suet or beef tallow, cut into small pieces, is spread over the blooms; another pane of glass is placed on top of this; then a layer of tallow and blooms, as before, this operation being repeated until the box is full, when it is shut up tight and placed in a cool, dark, even-temperatured room, and in twenty-four to thirty-six hours the tallow will have absorbed all the odor of the blooms.

HOMELY MRS. KRUGER.

Mrs. Kruger, the wife of President Kruger, of the Transvaal, who is an extremely homely woman, does nearly all her own housework, cooking meals, making her own bed and always taking a hand in the family washing. When her husband has "state guests" to dinner the good lady will trust the task of waiting on the table to no one, and, donning a white apron, she performs the office of butler. Her husband has a private fortune of $25,000,000, but it's "Auntie" Kruger's boast that they live on their "coffee money"—a perquisite of $2,000 a year allowed them by the government.

HAYES AND RIVET

Will Probably Contest For Representative Nomination

RIVET BACKED BY GUILD MEN

Who Desire to Punish Hayes

There is the hottest kind of a tumult brewing in the ranks of the republican party and it will be good fun to sit one side and contemplate its progress.

The Sun will watch the progress and will keep you informed on the latest inside happenings, even as it exclusively tipped you off on the appointment of Louis Lebrun as turnkey at the Lowell jail by the Guild men, a few days ago.

Most of the fights of the republicans of Lowell leave some one particular bone of contention. But this one if it ever had an original bone has lost it in a general fight which augurs well for republican success, I think not.

Perhaps the original bone of contention was the action of George W. Poore, Esq., chairman of the republican city committee, in coming out for Hon. Curtis Guild so strongly, even after attending and addressing the launching of the Bates boom. Since then, however, the row has grown, until it takes in the deputy sheriff and one of the representative fights.

The Guild men believe that they have achieved a master stroke in securing the appointment of Louis Lebrun at the Lowell Jail, and flushed with success, they now essay to punish Bill Hayes, the leader of the Bates movement in Lowell by defeating him for representative.

It's always about election time that this crowd show their love for the French American votes, but Bill Hayes has always been the "big honneeme" and could get about anything he wanted from them. When the fight grew hot between Bates and Guild, with Bill Hayes the recognized leader of the former, and Jim Bennett, looking after the latter, Bill was happy in the knowledge of the fact that with Cyrille Constantanea, Camille Roussin, Sam Snow, Web Bugbee and their new "find," Louis Lebrun, back of him, the French-American vote would not be found wanting. On the other hand the colonel's only and questionable consolatio was that 300 more polls had been assessed in Ward Seven and being mostly democrats there might be a chance to at last suppress "Old Hundred."

But the fight went on until the Guild men who wanted to do Bates hit upon a scheme that up-to-date has been successful, and it was to take the influence of the new "find" Lebrun, and that of his friends away from the Bates leaders by appointing Lebrun, who was without employment, to the lucrative, easy and supposedly dignified position of turnkey at the Lowell jail. Now when this scheme was broached to the Baker-Stiles-Shaw wing of the county ring, it hit there just right for by it they saw a chance to knock out Cyrille for Deputy sheriff, for the latter once in office would soon work in his friends, Bill, Sam and Web and the famous ring would lose its exclusiveness.

Therefore, they lost no time in appointing Councilman Lebrun and the latter will have gratitude enough to help them out in most any legitimate capacity.

Since the appointment of Lebrun, it s the general impression that it is now "all off" with Cyrille, for it is argued with only two jobs in the gifts of the sheriff this year, he can hardly be expected to give both of them to the French-American wing of the party and there will be doubtless considerable gnashing of teeth when some of the erstwhile hopeful candidates of French extraction realize the painful facts.

But the Guild men intend to go further. They are going to show Bill Hayes, that is they propose to show the genial William that he is no longer the thing in his district and are going to attempt to get the French vote away from him by springing Ex-Alderman Francis P. Rivet, Esq., as a candidate for the legislature in William's ward on the similar similibus curantur plan. Ex-Alderman Rivet, up to a few days ago was attending the performance at Lakeview Theatre regularly, having an innocent and pleasant time, while no thought of politics disturbed his characteristic tranquility. Now he has a bee in his bonnet, with every chance of the insect turning into a kissing bug and giving it to him "on ze neck."

While in the board of aldermen Mr. Rivet never did any harm to anybody, his political opponents had no reason to criticize adversely and he never made a very deep impression upon his constituents. If Rivet is the strongest man they will find to fight Hayes, they might as well throw up the sponge before their man is knocked out, for I have it on the best of authority that the French-Americans will be with Hayes to a man.

LABOR MEN ACTIVE

In Preparation for Labor Day Celebration

THE ENGINEERS CANNOT PARADE

Stationary Engineers Have an Interesting Session

Sunday will be a very busy day for the labor men of Lowell.

In the morning the Labor Day committee will meet at 10 o'clock in Building Laborers' hall and considerable important business will come before the meeting.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Chief Marshal John J. Mahoney, and his staff will meet to decide upon the regalia to be adopted for Labor day.

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council will be held at 2.30 o'clock, and it is expected that the drawing for positions in line Labor Day will come up at the meeting. Chief Marshal Mahoney will also announce his route for the parade.

MACHINSTS WILL NOT PARADE

The Machinists' Union held a largely attended meeting last evening in Leather Workers' hall on Central street, and considerable business was transacted. Speakers from out-of town were expected, but they failed to attend, but letters were received from them in which they said they would be here positively next Friday evening. It was voted to remain without permanent officers until after the charter is closed, Sept. 1. It was voted not to participate in the parade Labor Day, because the union is not yet fully organized and is without permanent officers.

Thirty candidates were admitted to membership and several applications were received.

STATIONARY ENGINEERS.

There was a busy session of Lowell Association of Stationary Engineers last night.

On candidate was initiated and seven applications were accepted. The association has received four applications for engineers, which they have been unable to fill. Word has been sent to Nashua and Lawrence to learn were any engineers out of work.

A new library on mechanical and steam literature will soon be started. The members are arranging for an outing and clam bake to be held in the near future.

The convention committee reported that it was the finest one ever held by state or national associations. The several concerns who had exhibits here all sent letters of approval of the way in which the displays were arranged.

Workmen are busily engaged at Huntington hall but as yet the job has not assumed a definite appearance.

Miss Rose Ducharme of O'Donnell & Gilbride's and Miss Agnes Young of S. T. Farrell's will have a two weeks' vacation at Nantasket beach, beginning Monday.

Mr. Joe Miller, the popular clerk of the Merrimack Clothing company, having returned from a pleasant two weeks at Newport, Vt., is finishing up his rustication at the north common.

The house is heated by furnace with 10 registers; all the windows facing Methuen and Humphrey streets are all plate glass. There are three balconies leading from the sleeping rooms upstairs. A front piazza of artistic design runs the full length of the house and is eight feet wide. Every door and window is screened. Carpenters who have worked on this house tell me that it is one of the best built houses in Lowell. Parties looking for a nice home should call on the auctioneer who will be pleased to show the premises at any time.

The lot has a frontage of 50 feet on Methuen street and 150 feet on Humphrey street; there is plenty of room for a barn. It is high and dry and is all fenced in.

Location: This place is situated at the corner of Methuen and Humphrey streets and is one of the best in the city. It is in the immediate vicinity of many beautiful and costly residences. OFF FOR CAMP DUTY

Companies C and G and the Ambulance Corps

CAPT. AMOS R. LEIGHTON of Troop F, Cavalry.

With Troop F. Cavalry Started This Morning—Service in Memory of George Wenden Who Died at Sea—The Departure From the Depot This Morning

The armory last evening on the eve of going into muster was the scene of solemn and impressive ceremony in honor of an absent comrade, who accompanied the boys of the Sixth to Framingham on their last trip there but who has since then responded to the final summons, the last trumpet call of the great captain on high.

CAPT. CARR of Company G.

Reference is made to the late lamented Sergt. George C. Wenden of Co. C in whose honor memorial services were held last evening. Sergt. Wenden, it will be remembered, died on the hospital ship Relief about ten months ago on his passage home from Porto Rico and was buried at sea. A bank of beautiful flowers was placed on a table immediately beneath the portrait of Sergt. Wenden.

Company C's quarters were tastefully decorated in the national colors. The beautiful likeness of Sergt. Wenden which hangs on the wall was draped with the same material and from the bank of flowers two red lights burned.

The company was well represented, and there were also in attendance a number of Sergt. Wenden's most intimate friends. A quartette comprising Osmond Long, Harry Stocks, Burton H. Preston and A. L. Kerr sang appropriate music during the service.

Lieut. Rose called to order and in the course of his remarks said: "Tonight we are called to honor the memory of a man who was universally respected and loved, a man who performed his duty in civic life as a man or of Sergt. Wenden's acquaintance, and in war as a soldier. It is unfortunate for me that I never had the hon- but I have heard him spoken of so much and in such affectionate terms that I know well the nobility of his character.

"When I think of what Sergt. Wenden must have been to you I am reminded of other such men who died in the regiment with which I was associated during the war and I can thus imagine your feelings as you are gathered here tonight. Some of the memories of war are irrepressibly sad. I recall a time tonight when the sick list in our regiment jumped from 19 to 35 a day and in the middle of the night when I myself was tossing on a feverish bed, the sound of the dead wagon came to my ears and I thought of the indescribable sadness that was to follow for some poor family. I could not help wondering who was to be the next victim as the wagon with its ghastly burden passed along the road to the burial ground.

"But in thinking of the death of Sergt. George C. Wenden, there is a comfort in realizing that he was a noble man and a valiant soldier. And while we are not in a position to be able to erect a costly tombstone in his honor, his memory will always live among us and may it prove an inspiration to all of us in our military life."

The quartette then sang "We Shall Meet but We Shall Miss Him" and on its conclusion there were very few dry eyes in the room.

SERGT. CUNNINGHAM'S EULOGY.

Sergt. Cunningham had a word to say in eulogy of the soldier.

"I had known George Wenden eight years," he said, "and never met a man who had more good qualities. When we heard the news of his death we refused at first to believe it, as he had left the perfect picture of health and strength. In painful anxiety I went down town and noticed the announcement of his death on one of the bulletin boards. I knew then that it was all too true and with many misgivings I returned to inform the father. I will not attempt to describe what followed, gentlemen, but I want to say that you will never find a truer hearted man than George Wenden."

"My Country, 'Tis of Thee" and "Farewell" were sung by the quartette. Lieut. Colby T. Kittredge then spoke feelingly upon the relationship of Sergt. Wenden and the company.

Rev. J. M. Craig of the First Presbyterian church followed.

Rev. Mr. Craig spoke briefly on the terrors of war and the awaking after death to a broader life.

The quartette sang "They're Gathering Homeward," after which Arthur E. Salmon spoke briefly, though touchingly upon his association with Sergt. Wenden. The benediction by Rev. J. M. Craig was followed by the mournful taps played by Bugler Riggs. The two red lights were extinguished with the last notes of taps and the services were over.

The members of Troop F. Cavalry, under command of Captain Amos R. Leighton went over the road early this morning on horseback to Camp Framingham. The North Chelmsford squad consisting of 15 men left at 4 o'clock and joined the other squads at Saxonville.

At the armory in this city everything was bustle and bustle until the hour of departure for the depot. The advance guard went to camp Thursday night and yesterday the camp crew of Company C with the bantam Billy Decatur as mascot went down, namely, Percy Swazy, Frank McGlynn, James McKenzie, William Hatch, Cornelius Kelliher and Private Delorme.

Both companies, C and G, and the ambulance corps left the armory under command of Captain Ed. Carr and Captain Thomas Livingstone. There were very few absentees and only those remained behind who were incapacitated and unable to perform camp duty. It was 9.20 o'clock when the Lowell companies left the armory, going through Westford, Grand and Middlesex streets and at 9.35 a special was boarded for South Framingham, amid the cheering of hundreds of enthusiastic admirers who gathered about the Northern depot.

Battery C, of Lawrence, under command of Major William Steadman, passed through this city at 9.50 o'clock en route to Camp Framingham. They left Lawrence at 7.30 o'clock and had pretty rough going over the road. They made a stay of half an hour in Lowell. A large number of Lowellians will go down to Framingham tomorrow and during the week.

A BIG BLAZE.

Seven members of the fire department were sent to the bog near the Harvard Brewery Friday afternoon. It was burning fiercely and it took several hours to put out the glow. This is the second fire in the same place this month.

STEAD'S CHARGES

Involve Secretary of State Joseph Chamberlain

Storm of Indignation Raised in London Over the Kaffir Kraal at Earl's Court Exhibition—Congressman Loud Investigating the Railroad Mails System in England

By Associated Press to The Sun.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The Earl of Denbigh, speaking of a Primrose meeting during the week, voiced the general feeling of the government's supporters by saying:

"If the break up of the British empire is wanted, all we have to do is to show a weak front in South Africa. Great Britain has to win the next trick, whether by diplomacy or other means."

Mr. William T. Stead, in the Review of Reviews, makes a startling insinuation against Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the secretary of state for the colonies He says that f the liberal leaders. Sir He says that if the Liberal leaders, Sir William Vernon Harcourt and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, two years ago, had not "made themselves parties to a most scandalous fraud in the way of whitewashing, ever perpetrated upon the public, Mr Chamberlain would not be in the colonial office today."

Mr. Stead refers, apparently to the Jameson raid in the Transvaal and intimates that Mr. Chamberlain is entirely responsible for the present crisis adding:

"What is now demanded, almost avowed is destruction of the domination of the Boer oligarchy."

Continuing, Mr. Stead berated Sir Alfred Milner, the British high commissioner in South Africa and says if he was away from the Transvaal there would be no threatenings of war in South Africa.

STORM OF INDIGNATION.

A matter of another kind has raised a storm of indignation in London. At he Earl's court exhibition is a Kaffir kraal, somewhat similar to the Dahomey camp at the Chicago World's Fair. In spite of the fact that the Kraal is managed by an influential company called the Savage South Africa Limited it is alleged that the vilest orgies take place there. But the greatest storm was raised by the innocent and coarse attention showered by Englishmen on these half-naked Kaffirs, instigated by curiosity, kindness or other motives. Fashionable women go into the black men's huts and give them presents. The Kaffirs put the worst possible interpretation upon feminine adoration.

The extent of this black worship has been out prominent by the marriage of a prince a former inmate of the Kraal to an English girl, well connected. The papers denounce the show and publish long editorials upon the evil effect it will have upon the status of white women living in South Africa. Among the shareholders of the concern are Earl Grey, Mr. John Hays Hammond, Lord French, Major Barton and several intimate friends of Mr. Cecil Rhodes. One of the most influential directors is reported to have resigned on account of the scandal. It is probable that the Kraal will probably either be closed or better regulated. This little band of savages has brought home to the English people for the first time the seriousness of mixed marriages.

CONGRESSMAN LOUD.

Congressman Loud of California, the chairman of the house committee on post offices and post roads, has been here during the past week examining the railroad mails system. Every facility has been afforded him by the Duke of Norfolk, the postmaster general. "But," Mr. Loud said to a representative of the Associated Press, 'the result, so far, has been somewhat disappointing. Statistics as to weight and distance are not kept here A comparison of the cost is thus impossible. I am going with Mr. Bradley of the New York post office to examine the systems of Berlin and Paris.

DREYFUS PROTESTS

Against Denunciations Levelled Against Him

Major Cuignet Declares That He is Convinced of the Prisoner's Guilt—Gives His Reasons for Believing the Prisoner is Guilty.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

RENNES, Aug. 19.—No special incident occurred this morning when the second trial by court-martial of Captain Alfred Dreyfus of the 14th artillery, charged with treason, was resumed at the Lycee.

The first witness called today was Major Cuignet, formerly attached to the ministry of war.

The witness who declared he was convinced of the prisoner's guilt, was cross-examined by M. Demange, counsel for the defence who succeeded in pointing out that several of his statements contradicted his previous depositions.

The president of the court, Colonel Jouaust, asked Dreyfus if he had anything to say, whereupon the prisoner arose and vehemently protested against the denunciations levelled against him, an innocent man.

General de Boisdeffre was the next witness called.

Following is the evidence in detail:

Major Cuignet, the first witness called, was not in uniform, as he is not at present attached to any corps. "Before beginning an account of the special investigations into the case which I was ordered to make by Ministers of War from M. Cavaignac to M. Defreceynete," said the witness, "I wish to mention a personal fact which, in conjunction with the evidence already heard will constitute fresh proof of the prisoner's indiscreet behavior when employed on the headquarter's staff. I was on the staff when Dreyfus was a probationer during the latter half of 1893. Among other duties I was connected with the railroad service and the mining of railroads with the view of interrupting traffic, in case of need. It is hardly necessary to point out the secret character of such matters. Dreyfus was a [illegible] on the Eastern railroads; had been ordered to specially study the mining on them and possessed information relating solely to them.

One day Dreyfus asked me to give him the general scheme of mining which I possessed, giving as a reason for his request that he was anxious to increase his knowledge and that it was necessary for him to know the general scheme in order to properly carry out the work entrusted to him. I replied that I did not see the necessity of giving him the scheme and that in any case, he had better apply to his own chief, Major Bertin. Dreyfus pretended that Bertin would not impart any information. Day after day he pestered me so that finally, having no reason to distrust him, I began giving him explanations. Dreyfus displayed the keenest interest and took copious notes. When later his house was searched, these notes were not discoverable I don't know what became of them. But it is difficult to believe they were destroyed, considering the importance he seemed to attach to the information and the persistence shown in securing it."

After launching the above declaration which he apparently considered to be weighty evidence of the treachery of Dreyfus, Major Cuignet proceeded to recount in detail the task which General Gonze assigned to him in May, 1898 of classifying the documents in the Dreyfus, Esterhazy and Picquart's cases.

"The first question I will ask here is" said the witness, "Is Dreyfus guilty?" My conviction of his guilt is based on these grounds:

"First—His confession to Captain Lebrun-Renault.

'Second—The technical nature of the contents of the Bordereau.

"Third—The results of the examination of the secret dossier.

"I will add to these three points the evidence of the expert Bertillon (laughter) and as indirect proof, the means employed by the Dreyfus family to secure the prisoner's rehabilitation.

"I protest that a campaign has been undertaken against justice, truth and our country."

The major's outburst of heroics evoked cynical smiles and indications of dissent coupled with marks of assent from the assembled generals.

The witness next spoke of the secret dossier of the war ministry containing information relating to the interview between M. Trarieux, former minister of justice and Count Tornielli, the Italian ambassador, "which country," said Cuignet, "benefited by the treachery."

Regarding the confessions said to have been made to Captain Lebrun-Renault, witness said he still believed they were authentic, adding: "If people don't believe the confessions to Captain Lebrun-Renault they will believe no human testimony."

Continuing, the witness re-asserted that the Bordereau was written by Dreyfus toward the end of August and incidentally the major protested against Du Paty de Clam. He then returned to the secret dossier of the war office, from which he declared, the court was sure to draw important deductions.

LARGE GATHERING

ATTENDS THE PICNIC OF IMMACULATE CONCEPTION PARISH.

A picnic to aid the building fund for the new convent for the Sisters of the Immaculate Conception church is being held at Mountain Rock Grove this afternoon and evening.

The affair will surely prove a complete success in every way.

There is an unusually large attendance and it is needless to say that a goodly sum will be realized for its worthy object.

The object of the picnic is to aid in gathering a fund sufficient to discharge the cost of erecting a new convent for the sisters engaged in the work of educating and properly directing the minds of the children attending the school of the Immaculate Conception.

Many new and novel features in the form of sports will be introduced during the afternoon. The chief feature of the sports will be the ball game, which is being played between the Emmetts and the Samrocks for a purse of $50.

In the evening dancing will be enjoyed.

The committee in charge and to their incessant efforts is due much credit for the success of the affair, is as follows:

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The latest franchise kite from Pretoria has failed of its expected effect. It is merely regarded as a desire to gain time. There is no cessation of the war preparations on either side. ENFORCE THE LAW

The People Demand That Whiskey Sales be Stopped

The Supt. of Police Should Enforce the No-License Law or Tell Who Prevents Him—If the Board of Police is to Blame Mayor Crowley Must Remove Them—Some Flagrant Instances of Official Negligence

Tomorrow will be Sunday, a day on which the speak-easies of Lowell seem to do the most, and the very day on which the liquor squad of the Lowell police department seem to do the least. Last Sunday, the liquor squad covered themselves and the administration of the police department with disgrace. This gallant squad searched Lowell high and low for liquor last Sunday. They went into the highways, by-ways and back alleys. They searched bar-rooms, drug stores, cellars, attics, kitchens and parlors, and reported that they could not find a drop of liquor or the slightest evidence of sales in all this wide city. All this time the other branch of the police department was attending to business, by running in Sunday drunks to the number of thirty. Just think of it. On the same day that the liquor squad certified officially that there was not a drop of liquor sold in Lowell, their fellow officers brought in thirty drunks, as a proof that the liquor squad was either a pack of liars, fools, knaves or chumps.

Now, will Supt. Davis please explain to the public how such a farce could have been enacted on one day in the department of which he is the executive head? And while you are about it, Mr. Davis, will you kindly tell the people you work for and who pay you a good fat salary, whether you propose to allow things to drift along in the present disgraceful manner, as far as the sale of liquor is concerned. You say you want to stop the sale of whiskey in Lowell, Mr. Davis. Then why don't you do it? You have admitted that whiskey is sold in Lowell. Do you also admit that you cannot stop it, or at least reduce it so low that it will be practically stopped? You know it is getting worse and worse. Is that any reason why you and your department should get worse and worse? Why don't you go about it as if you meant business, Mr. Davis? Making speeches to the officers for the purpose of getting them printed in the papers is not stopping the sale of whiskey, and you know it, Mr. Davis.

Why don't you brace up like a man? Do what the people want you to do, and the people will sustain you. Why don't you look after that hotel under your very nose on Market street? Has anyone told you that they could get whiskey in that hotel without much difficulty? If so, have you taken the proper means to find out whether it is true or not? Is it true, Mr. Davis, that the whiskey dispensed in that hotel can actually be detected with the nose from the police station? When the wind is right, and you are sitting in

Charged With Illegally Keeping Liquor

SEVERAL SENTENCES FOR DRUNKENNESS

Young Carney's Racket Wound up Badly

The police court session this morning was a short one. There were four drunks. Judge Hadley was on the bench.

Agnes McLean was fined $5 for drunkenness, while Edward F. Haley for a similar offence was sent to jail for three months.

Henry J. Carney, the young man who broke into Lawyer Donahue's office and later when pursued by officers, tried to jump into the Central canal, was only charged with drunkenness. When he was arrested last night, he gave the name of James J. Carney but today he said his proper name was Henry J. He pleaded guilty of drunkenness.

Lieut. Brosnan related the circumstances of Carney's arrest to the court. The young man said he drank quite heavily yesterday and said he didn't know what he was doing last night.

The court sentenced him to jail for 20 days in order to let him sober off.

John F. Murphy was charged with drunkenness and illegally keeping liquor. Murphy pleaded not guilty to both charges He said he was prepared for trial on the former but not on the latter charge.

Accordingly, the court ordered the case of illegal keeping continued until Tuesday next. Murphy was held in $300 for trial.

The case of drunkenness was tried. Officer Ingalls was the first to testify. He and Officer McCloughrey arrested Murphy about 1.30 o'clock this morning. Murphy was standing in front of his cider and wine store at the corner of Bridge and French streets when arrested. According to Officer Ingalls, the defendant was gloriously drunk and was very disorderly. The officer said he staggered and could hardly stand on his feet.

Officer McCloughrey, who assisted Officer Ingalls in making the arrest, testified that Murphy was drunk and was hardly able to stand up. He was disorderly. The officers said the door of Murphy's store was open.

John took the stand in his own behalf. He admitted he drank last night but said he was far from being drunk. He denied he was disorderly. While his store was open he said the place was not lighted.

The court found John F. guilty and imposed a fine of $3. While John paid, he was frank in saying it was an outrage of the worst kind.

Murphy's place was visited by Inspectors Donaldson and Maher last Saturday afternoon. The inspectors found John F. selling cider across the bar which in the first place is a violation of the law. But the inspectors went further. They seized a quantity of the cider and subsequently had it analyzed. It was found to be stronger than the law allows it to be sold. In consequence a complaint of illegal keeping of liquor was made against him.

The case of John A. Porter, illegally removing baggage, was placed on file.

A GREEK BARBER

Made a Fierce Fight Against Arrest

BY CONSTABLE McMANUS

For Non Payment of Poll Tax for 1898

Quite a scene was enacted on John street this morning about 10 o'clock, the principals being John Kitcoring, the Greek barber who conducts a five cent establishment in the Morris block and Constables McManus and Mercier, and Police Officer Daniel J. Lane. It seems that Kitcoring owed poll tax for 1898 which with interest and costs amounts now to $4.75. The constables knowing the barber to have money on hand, made a demand for the payment of the amount. This the barber refused to do and being threatened with arrest, said: "I would rather die than pay that bill." Finally seeing that the barber was determined not to pay the bill, the constable adopted the heroic measures of placing him in custody and taking him to jail. He fought desperately and Police Officer Dan Lane was called upon and Kitcoring was subdued. He was taken to jail by the constables and will there remain for a period of twenty days at least. Before being released, however, he will be compelled to take the poor debtor's oath.

ENFORCE THE LAW.

your office adorned with your beautiful uniform, can you smell it?

And by the way, Mr. Davis how many people have told you or your officers about a pitcher on the ice in the barroom of the American House, a hotel which is also very near the police station. People are talking about that pitcher. Have you ever tried to find out what they sell from that pitcher? Have you tried to get a man in there to get hold of that pitcher? If not, why not, Mr. Davis? Have you heard about the open sale of liquor, day and night and every day in the week, on Concord street? If you have not, then you had better look into it at once, or people will think you are in an official trance, Mr. Davis. Have you heard any complaints about that drug store in Belvidere where Officer Donaldson's son is in charge? Are you surprised to learn that Officer Donaldson's son is connected with a drug store, Mr. Davis? Perhaps you are and perhaps you are not, but how often do you inspect that particular drug store, and who do you send to do the inspecting? Have you heard the story that is going the rounds, of how your officers caught a dealer on Bridge street selling cider over the bar and how this dealer sent a man to the drug store where Donaldson's son is employed, and after purchasing a quantity of whiskey, held it as evidence and told the liquor squad to press the cider case if they dared? Is this story without foundation, or is it true, Mr. Davis? Can a liquor law violator defy your department, or is this only a fake story of the street?

Why don't you stop the selling of liquor on Suffolk street? Why don't you stop the selling that is going on in Merrimack square? Why don't you stop the selling on Worthen street, on upper Market street, on Lakeview avenue, on Fayette street, and on many other streets. Haven't you heard of these places, Mr. Davis? Well, if you haven't, you are slow, very slow.

And furthermore, Mr. Davis, why can't you do something with the Middlesex street hotels? Are you afraid of them? Are you afraid of the men on the liquor squad, so far that you don't dare compel them to do their duty or are you afraid of the board of police, lest they reprimand you for being too zealous? Out with it, Mr. Davis. The people will stand by you if you have courage and tell the truth.

Mr. Faulkner, chairman of the board, has told a prominent and respectable citizen who is interested in the suppression of the sale of liquor that the board of police alone should be held responsible if the law is not enforced. He says that the chief will do as he is told, no more, no less. If what Mr. Faulkner says is true, you are doing as you are told and no more.

Is this so, Mr. Davis? If it is so, then the people of Lowell want to know it. If you are not obeying the orders of the board, then you should resign your position at once and allow someone to be appointed in your place who will stop this illegal sale of liquor in Lowell. If you are obeying orders, then it is up to Mayor Crowley to remove the entire police board and appoint men who will instruct you to do your duty. The people want the truth in this liquor farce and they will get it. The mayor cannot lie back much longer and dodge the question, as he did in the city campaign. He cannot point to his record on the liquor question much longer and say that is sufficient. What the people of Lowell demand in the present crisis is not records but acts. Public sentiment is rising to fever heat on this liquor farce and public sentiment is strong enough to move the most stubborn mayor that ever sat in city hall. The people of Lowell are ripe for revolt at this moment and the mayor, board of police, and Supt. Davis may as well face the music now as later on. Indeed, it is better for all of them to face it now, rather than later on, when matters may be worse for them.

The people want the law enforced, and if they cannot get it enforced in one way, they will in another. They want the superintendent of police ordered to do his duty or removed from office. They want the board of police to enforce the law or if they do not, they want Mayor Crowley to remove them from office and appoint new commissioners in their places. The people are still the supreme power in this city and if the police board fails in its duty and the mayor fails to remove them for cause when it becomes sufficient then the people will remove the mayor as they have the power to do, and put a man in his place who will stop open rum-selling in Lowell. Supt. Davis cannot fool the people; neither can the police board nor the mayor fool the people. The responsibility is rapidly narrowing down to the mayor's office and unless some people brace up and come to their senses, the mayor will be compelled to act whether he likes it or not. By the way, don't forget that tomorrow will be Sunday.

LULA DU DLEY.

Traveling alone through the country in the hope of curing herself of a love infatuation, 14-year-old Lula Dudley says she has pretty nearly succeeded in the object of her trip. So far she has travelled about 3000 miles and when she has added another thousand to the record she thinks she will be heart whole.

Lula's home is at 221 Arcinega avenue, San Antonio, Tex. Though she is still a mere child, she fell desperately in love not long ago. She wanted to get married but her parents would not let her and decided that a trip might cure her of her infatuation. So they started her off on a visit to an uncle in Clarksburg, W. Va. She went all alone and acted for herself throughout, going to such hotels as she chose and stopping off wherever she liked.

She nearly floored the clerks in most of the hotels she patronized when she walked in and registered as "Miss Dudley, Texas."

"I am travelling partly for pleasure and partly to forget an unfortunate love affair," she told one of them. "I have nearly succeeded and I think by the time I get home, I shall be all right. I see now that my parents were right in opposing my marriage and am glad they advised my travelling. I have enjoyed myself so much that I shall go to the Paris exposition next year and while abroad I shall finish my musical education. I don't want to go on the stage or adopt a professional life, but I have so much musical talent that I think it is my duty to develop it."

The child's parents are wealthy ranch owners near San Antonio.

DONAHUE'S OFFICE

Entered and an Essay on Music Stolen

The Young Man Arrested and the Essay Recovered—Bicyclist Attacked by Highwaymen—Other Matters

A young man giving the name of James J. Carney was arrested in the rear of D. J. Donahue's office in the Mansur Block last night.

In his efforts to escape the officers he nearly jumped into the canal. On being searched at the police station some papers from Mr. Donahue's office were found in his possession including an essay on music, but nothing else of value. It was found that a pane of glass in Mr. Donahue's office window had been broken and that the glass in the private office door was also broken. The young man was intoxicated and did not know what he was doing. Mr. Donahue says that if Judge Hadley sentences Carney to read the essay on music it will be sufficient punishment.

ATTACKED BY HIGHWAYMEN.

Edward Bessey, the well known long-distance runner, was attacked by three highwaymen last night in the vicinity of the new Moody street school.

Mr. Bessey was running along easily when accosted, and in trying to stop him, the men threw him violently to the ground.

The fall caused painful bruises. Mr. Bessey struggled with the men and landed some effective punches that the men will undoubtedly remember. He wore only his running suit.

Mr. Bessey says he thinks he could identify the men who attacked him. Identigy the men who attacked him. There were three of them. Mr. Bessey is of the opinion, however that the motive of the men in attacking him was more for excitement than robbery. It was not the first time Bessey has been attacked by thugs. He was set upon by two men in Tewksbury about two years ago.

SIMPSON'S NOVEL METHOD OF MOVING

Lowell Boys in Philippines Write

A $300,000 MORTGAGE RECEIVED

Showing Benefit of Mortgage Stamp Law

Mayor Crowley was at Tyng's Island with the jolly Martin Luthers yesterda and Secretary Prescott held forth in his absence. There is little for the mayor to do at City Hall these afternoons as all his callers visit him in the morning.

The committee on Labor Day will meet again next Wednesday and perfect arrangements for the city's share of the celebration.

The sale of the tickets for the raffle of Cheney's bicycle goes merrily on and the projectors of the scheme are hopeful for a good financial result. The ticket sellers have taken The Sun's advice and have not confined the sale to sewer privileges. A few of the street department bosses have purchased them. The "widow" in the case is said to be a real one and the wheel is said to have cost $50. Whether it's a charity or not, one man there'll be who will have no complaint to make, the one who draws the lucky number.

Arthur Salmon yesterday received a letter dated Manila from Private Alfred Champagne of C company, 13th Infantry Regulars. The writer informed him that he is a Lowell boy and enlisted from Boston. He states that Private Lennon of Lowell formerly of Company M, is in the same regiment with him and that both are in good health.

William H. Fuller who recently received the contract for the excavating and foundation work of the new High school annex on the city's lot at the corner of Paige and John streets has begun work on the job and has 17 teams at work there. The diggers have excavated a large amount of cobbles, making the work of difficult progress. Mr. Simpson who has had possession there under a lease recently settled his difficulty with the city, receiving, it is said, $100 and the frame building in which he was located. Mr. Simpson lost no time in getting off the land and did it a in novel manner. Securing a vacant lot on Second street in Centralville, he marked the different parts of his building so that he could put them together again and then tore down one half of the building moving the furniture and other articles that he had stored in that half into the other. Immediately after tearing the first half down he packed the lumber over to Centralville, put the parts together in place and in a few hours Mr. Simpson had half a building in Centralville and half in Paige street. He then returned to Paige street and moved all his furniture from the Paige street half into the Centralville half and now he's tearing down the other half.

Assistant City Clerk McCarthy is enjoying his vacation this week and he needs to enjoy it for when he returns he will be confronted with a job that will take his breath away.

Among the duties of the assistant clerk is that of copying all mortgages of property recorded in Lowell and yesterday afternoon the city clerk's office received the official mortgage of the United States Bobbin and Shuttle Co., to the Industrial Trust Co., for $300,000 the largest mortgage to appear in the local records for some time. The president of the U. S. Bobbin and Shuttle Co., is Walter L. Parker of this city whose plant is located on Western avenue. The Sun having announced exclusively some time ago the intention of this company to join the trust.

The deal was affected Aug. 1.

As some of the property mentioned in the mortgage is located in this city it is necessary to have it recorded in the office of the local city clerk and as the concern has property in Manchester, Woonsocket, R. I., and other places the mortgage will be a much copied affair, after going the rounds.

It is a large and closely printed document, 60 pages in exent and of dry legal matter, the most exasperating of all kinds to copy. To an uninitiated observer, it is mainly interesting for the great amount of internal revenue stamps upon its first page, for according to a recent revenue law, all mortgages of $1500 or over require revenue stamps, a 25-cent stamp for a $1500 mortgage and an additional 25 cens for every $500 additional amount. By just such a mortgage as this, one gets a good idea of the great income derived by means of the internal revenue laws.

On the mortgage received yesterday afternoon are two $50 stamps; four $10; one $5; one $3; one $1; and one 50-cent stamp; a total of $149.50, the most costly paper for its size seen in a long time.

But a $300,000 mortgage will not be the largest on the clerk's books for that of the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill street railroad to the American Loan and Trust company exceeds anything on the books, the amount of this mortgage being $1,900,000. This mortgage was no easy job for the copyist, for it takes up nearly 40 pages of the record. This was recorded before the law requiring stamps on mortgages was passed otherwise it would require stamps to the amount of $950.

KID McCOY, Knocked Out in One Round by Jack McCormick.

ONE STIFF BLOW

From McCormick Laid out Kid McCoy

By Associated Press to The Sun.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Jack McCormick of Philadelphia knocked out Kid McCoy in a little more than two minutes last night. The bout was to have been for six rounds and it was generally thought that McCormick stood no show at all. The fight was so short and so quickly over that there was almost nothing to it but the punch that put McCoy to sleep. The fight was under strict Queensberry rules, hitting with one arm free permitted.

When the gong sounded, McCormick started in to rush things, relying on his greater weight and superior strength to offset McCoy's science. He received a straight left in the mouth the first time he tried it and a second later a savage left hook on the side of the head halted him a second time.

He then rushed twice more, carrying McCoy to the rope both times. The first time he hit McCoy over the kidneys with his right. The second time as they came from the ropes still clinched, McCoy freed his left and sent a hook to McCormick's cheek, dropping him to the floor. McCormick lay quiet, making a pretense of claiming a foul, although none had been committed.

With a sledge hammer blow of the right on the jaw, McCormack landed on McCoy, who failed to respond to the bell, and the fight was over.

TOOK TWO GAMES

Boston Won a Double Header From Louisville

MEEKIN AND "MIKE" SULLIVAN PITCHED

Hickman Did Great Work at the Bat

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—There was good sport at the South End grounds yesterday during the four hours consumed by the champions in taking a double header from the lively Louisville team.

In the first game, Meekin gave a superb exhibition of pitching and practically won his own game with the stick.

Lawyer Michael Sullivan donned the ball togs for the second game as Ted Lewis failed to come around in shape to take his turn in the box and it is not proper to ask a star pitcher to work more than once or twice a week these days. Sully did well for a man out of the business and was given a splendid reception by the crowd after he won his game.

The playing was remarkably brilliant and the champions were forced to play their best to take two games from the visitors. There was sharp hitting and sharp fielding by nearly every man on both teams and the afternoon's performance was baseball of the finest quality.

Bill Clarke caught both games in the absence of Bergen, who was at home sick with a bad cold. Clarke was full of life and coached his pitchers in fine style. He closed a grand day's work by driving home the winning run in the last game.

The infielding was remarkable. Collins, Long and Tenney were at their best, while Clingman and Ritchie were fast and clever for the visitors. The outfielding of Stahl was never surpassed while Wagner was a close second. Stahl's was the best performance as he started more quickly and got short hit balls that few men could have reached. The colonel had longer runs, but more than to get there.

Clarke in left did some brilliant work. The longest hits were made easy by his fine starts and speedy runs. Hickman did well.

At the bat Hickman carried off the honors of the day with five safe ones out of seven chances. Tenney and Collins hit the ball very hard in the second game while Meekin and Stahl hit strongly in the first.

When you notice that Boston made only one mistake out of 81 chances you can imagine the kind of baseball they were playing.

In the second game Arlie Latham came behind the bat and was given a cold reception by the crowd. He, no doubt, did the best he could but was rattled and got mixed up several times. Sullivan was given a pretty raw deal on strikes at first. Latham did better as the game progressed but it was quite plain that umpiring for the Boston club will never be Latham's delight.

In the absence of Capt. Duffy, Tenney handled the team. He made the mistake of not taking Sullivan out after the seventh when the statesman was fast slowing up and in trouble.

Nichols and Willis could have worked the last two innings and made a game practically sure that was finally won out by a small margin.

Sullivan deserves praise for the way he went into the box. The uniform he wore was made for a smaller man. It was tore up the side before he could get working room. Mr. Sullivan was a picture as he walked out to pitch the first ball, the crowd cheered as he is well known to the fans, having a fine record in the big league before taking up the practice of law. He is more than six foot tall and built from the ground up. When Sully saw a fly ascend and called out, "I've got it," in a deep John L. Sullivan voice the other players kept hands off. At first it looked as if the old league pitcher was out of form but he soon settled down to a wide curve and held it to the last. They say that he is afraid to pitch a fast game fearing the consequences if he should hit a man. The lawyer received $50 for his two hours' work and was happy to see Boston win.

LOWELL'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

THE FAMOUS YACHT AMERICA.

A correspondent asks if the yacht America belonged to Gen. Butler at the time it won the cup in England in 1851. The America, as has already been stated, did not belong to General Butler until long after her victory in England. She had a checkered career. The property of the New York Yacht club at the time of her victory, she was purchased later by an Englishman and for a time flew the British flag. During the war, a syndicate of rebel sympathizers bought the vessel on account of her speed and when cornered as a blockade runner in St. John's river, she was scuttled to escape capture. She was raised, however, and was afterwards used as a training ship at Annapolis. In 1870 she took part in the cup race but was beaten by the other American yachts, the Magic, the Idler and the Silvie. Three years later, the government sold her to General Butler with whose estate she passed into the possession of his son, Paul Butler, who still holds her as a precious keepsake for the victories she won.

A PALPABLE FALSEHOOD.

Mr. Bryan is evidently getting rattled. He is now trying to keep free silver out of sight for a while, to see what the effect will be. At four different meetings in Iowa this week the prospective candidate approved the course of the democrats of that state in dropping 16 to 1 and substituting therefor anti-trust and anti-expansion. The straddling of the money question is good evidence that the democratic managers are becoming panic stricken. They would not throw overboard their cargo unless as a last desperate resort to save the vessel from shipwreck.—Mail.

The above is one of the most audacious and barefaced lies that could possibly be invented. The democratic state convention of Iowa endorsed the Chicago platform in whole and in every detail adding to it such resolutions as were deemed expedient in relation to the Cuban and Philippine wars and to the alarming growth of trusts. Furthermore it endorsed William Jennings Bryan as the next democratic candidate for the presidency, something which that convention would not have done had he in the slightest degree weakened in his advocacy of the Chicago platform whose basic principle is the free and unlimited coinage of both metals at the ratio of 16 to 1.

We defy the Mail to produce any utterance of William Jennings Bryan in which he agreed to keep the free silver issue in the back ground. The Mail must have little regard for the intelligence of its readers when it makes statements that are plainly contradicted and belied by the press despatches in every newspaper in the country. It indicates what a dearth of material there is for an attack on this foremost of democrats when the blatant republican shouters impose such fabrications upon their readers.

CREELMAN ON CROKER.

Here is what the great newspaper correspondent, James Creelman, says of that able but much-abused political leader, Richard Croker:

"For hours and hours I have walked the deck of the St. Paul with Richard Croker, and listened to the voice of the powerful man whose political influence I have fought unceasingly for twenty years," says James Creelman. "It is easy to attack him at a distance, but to argue against his simple, almost primitive ideas of popular government is like swimming against the ocean tide. During the seven days of my association with Mr. Croker, I learned something of the immense personal force that lies behind his soft gray eyes and still softer voice. I talked with ex-Speaker Reed, with Senator Sewell, of New Jersey, with the bankers and men of wide experience among the passengers. But every time I resumed my walks on deck with Mr. Croker, I became more impressed with his common sense and his marvelous knowledge of men. He reasons almost like a child, directly from the facts to conclusions and from conclusions to facts, without any fine elaboration or strained effort. His statements are blunt, sometimes brutally so. Never for an instant during our whole week's vacation on the St. Paul did he wonder away from his simple idea that political parties exist for the purpose of finding out what the people want and giving them what they want. His whole theory of politics, consciously or unconsciously, seems to be that government should originate at the bottom and work upward instead of originating at the top and working downward that the people and not the leaders should choose the issues and determine them.

SOME TAX-RATES.

We are hearing considerable about tax rates high and low at the present time. Our own happens to be the highest we ever heard of except that of Brockton which is over $21 and that of Dayton, Ohio, so unctuously dilated upon by Robert E. Crowley. It is a smooth paving tax rate for Dayton is smooth paved almost entirely and we have a taste of the asphalting tax rate, $19.00, just four dollars more than the tax rate of Lawrence. The city of Haverhill has a tax rate of $17.80, Springfield's tax rate is $13.60 and Boston's $13.10 just half a dollar less than that of last year. The city of Lowell once enjoyed a reasonably low tax rate but the municipal reformers started to tinker the charter to establish economy on a firm basis and now we are reaping the fruit of their wisdom.

The democrats of Iowa and Kentucky have held their state conventions and in both cases the Chicago platform and William J. Bryan were endorsed. Yet the papers that are paid for lieing in the interests of the republican party will assert that they have thrown aside the free silver issue. Both states condemned the policy of entering upon a war of conquest and of spilling American blood in the ignoble cause of oppressing a people who are struggling to be free, a people that had cast off the yoke of another nation and declared their independence before the United States was buncoed into buying what didn't exist—Spain's sovereignty in the Philippine Islands.

The news from the Philippines brings tidings of the capture of the town of San Mateo. As this place is but 10 miles distant from Manila this item is calculated to give the American public some idea of how little headway was made in the four months of arduous and active campaigning before the rainy season set in, toward the expansion of our territorial possessions on the island of Luzon, despite all the glowing and lying official reports with which the people of the United States were for months being gulled.—Fall River Globe.

Chief Wade has refused to enforce the stationary firemen's license act on the strength of the opinion of the attorney general. When did Knowlton's opinion supersede the statutes?

The Citizen has scored a scoop on the Sun in sending one of its bright young men to Naples to interview Admiral Dewey but the Sun will outdo the Citizen by sending a representative over to have a social chat with Her Majesty Queen Victoria. Yes, sir, if we have to hire a special ship for the purpose we are going to get the best of the Citizen. The Mail is not in the game at all.

The New York Journal draws the line between imperialism and expansion. It is for the latter and against the former, which it says is the exploitation of the ruled for the benefit of the rulers. It is getting into line with the prevailing sentiment of the party on this point.

Here is a characteristic piece of inconsistency from the Morning Mail:

"Nobody ever will build a boat which will beat any other boat in any kind of weather."

"We believe that we have a boat that can beat any foreign craft anywhere in any kind of weather.—Mail.

Already it has yielded him more than $250,000; and to that sum may may safely be added another $50,000 for the publishing rights to the novel. Many a gold mine floated on a large capital, has yielded much less than this little book of about 110,000 words.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to have a grand open air band tournament at the Fair Grounds for suitable prizes, having as competitors Lowell bands, the Talbot Mills band of North Billerica and the Allen band of Billerica Centre. Out-of-town judges could be secured and favorites could not then be charged. It would settle the question of supremacy which is creating no end of discussion between local and suburban bands. A tip for such promoters as Con Desmond or the street railway company.

An hour will pass away before
A sheep could shake his tail.

We have known that the language of the eyes, flowers, handkerchief, postage stamp, and even the way a girl tied her ribbons and the long or short ends of her sashes meant something to the man who understood this mute language. Now a new way of communication has been established through the medium of the wax which seals your letters, and the dainty boxes containing various colored sticks of wax are not alone for show and just to look pretty, but each color has a meaning of its own, and properly applied conveys a message, which may be business, social or tender, as the sender desires. For instance, business a letter should be sealed with red—very approximately, too, it would seem, as red wax is always more or less connected with legal documents. When writing to a friend use gray. That is quiet and neutral and very similar to the emotions called forth by friendship. If you are writing to your lover and everything is smooth sailing, then use blue, but if you wish to hint to him that you have or think you have any cause for jealousy, then use the pretty yellow stick which comes in your box. In replying to a wedding invitation then white is de rigueur. For a letter of condolence it is optional with you whether you use black or violet. As many object seriously to the use of anything suggesting mourning, violet is very much more of a favorite. A dinner invitation calls for a seal of coffee-colored wax and when a man gets a letter sealed with green from the girl whom he admires, then he may take it as a faint suggestion that she shyly bids him hope.

SHORT FASHIONS.

Short elbow sleeves on even the most expensive costumes of thin material.

Colored underwear quite out of fashion, deserved change, too.

This fall promising to be a stupendous purple season.

Girdles, berthas and bretelles in beaded passementerie the height of fashion.

Embroidery on the textile itself and appliqued—much smarter and more to be desired than braid trimming.

Now is the accepted time to get rich pickings in bargains in short lengths of silks for fall shirt waists.

Very bright colors superseding the pale tints lately seen for separate silk waists for seaside and fall wear.

Narrow, black velvet ribbon much used to thread panels, revers and guimpes of ecru guipure, on very elaborate toilettes.

THE TEST THAT TELLS

You can get all the Convincing Proof you want by reading Lowell Papers.

When the reader wants any article of value he naturally prefers to deal with someone he can depend upon. If mixed up in a law suit, a good, responsible lawyer is generally the first necessity sought. If lost on a prairie, directions from a settler could be relied upon; those from a stranger would be doubted. The test that tells the tale of merit is the test of friends and Doan's Kidney Pills.

Can you ask for better evidence?

Read this case:

Mrs. Thomas F. Burke of 14 Seventh street, says: "Both Mr. Burke and myself have used Doan's Kidney Pills. His case was a very serious one and of long standing. He went to a hospital for treatment and was benefitted by it but later on the trouble returned. Learning about Doan's Kidney Pills he procured a box at Ellingwood's & Co.'s drug store. He derived so much positive benefit from the treatment that he wished he had known of Doan's Kidney Pills when the trouble began. Had he used them at that time much suffering and money would have been saved."

Doan's Kidney Pills are sold for 50c. per box by all dealers, or mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Sales for Week Ending Aug. 26, '99

Necessity compels me to advertise and sell at peremptory sale to the highest bidders, without limit, reserve, or protection of any kind, a large portion of my real estate situated on Gorham and Moore streets. As I have no choice in the matter, the auctioneers have chosen Thursday, Aug. 24th, 1899, to dispose of the property. The sale will take place regardless of the weather. The order of the sale is as follows:

The several parcels will be sold subject to the taxes for 1897-1898 and the current year.

AT 4 O'CLOCK P. M.

The TWO-STORY BLOCK, 978-980 Gorham street adjoining the Globe Hotel property at the corner of Moore street. The large, modern and nearly new FIVE-HOUSE BLOCK numbered 2, 4, 6, 8, and 10 Globe Terrace, and 8611 square feet of land.

The block on Gorham street has a good sized store on first floor, and a five-room tenement on second floor; is supplied with gas, city water, water closet etc., is connected with the sewer, rents for $24 a month and is in prime condition.

Each house in Globe Terrace has seven rooms, water closet, city water, sewerage and cellar. The block is less than four years built; is convenient, excellently arranged, a yard all about it; each house is separate and in every way distinct from the others. The block when all rented brings an income of $42.50 a month.

The buildings were built and constructed upon honor and will stand the hardest kind of use for years to come. The lot is level, graded and fenced. The location of the property for business and renting purposes is first class and needs no comment here.

AT 4.15 O'CLOCK P. M.

3500 square feet of land on Moore street adjoining the Globe Hotel property at the corner of Gorham street. This lot has a frontage of 65 feet and is one of the best spots in the city of Lowell upon which to erect a block. There are few more desirable locations, seldom so good a shaped lot. No better situation to rent.

AT 4.30 O'CLOCK P. M.

2765 square feet of land on Moore street just east and adjoining the last described lot. It has a frontage of 36 feet and in nearly every respect is the equal of the preceding lot.

There are many lots of land in the market today, but none that will prove so attractive upon investigation as the two this sale offers.

AT 5 O'CLOCK P. M.

Six lots of land on Moore street and a new street running from Moore street to the Boston and Maine railroad. One of the lots has a frontage of 57 feet on Moore street and 89 feet on the new street and is a splendid piece of land to improve. The others have frontages of 50 feet and face the new street; the lots are situated between the residences of B. F. Crosby, numbered 111 and Dr. W. L. Kelley, numbered 129 Moore street or opposite the stone residence of Albert E. Moors.

The areas are about 2500 feet and the opportunity to secure a nice lot of land in a fine neighborhood at a reasonable price is rather unusual. You must make all inquiries at the office of the auctioneers.

The purchaser of the Gorham street property must deposit with or secure to the auctioneers $300 as soon as the lot is struck off; the purchasers of the two lots on Moore street must each do the same with $150 and the purchasers of the six lots on Moore and the new street must each do the same with $75 or $50. Other terms liberal.

NEW AIR CHAMBER

Arrives for the Butler Veteran's Hand Tub

AND TEST TAKES PLACE TONIGHT

Coming Muster Will Beat Records

The new air chamber of the Butler Vets' engine has arrived and the members of that organization are happy once more. It comes from the Manchester Locomotive Works and is guaranteed to stand all kinds of pressure.

The tub will be fitted up this afternoon and this evening the Butlers will give the machine a trial at the rear of the police station. All members of the General Butler organization are earnestly requested to be on hand at 6.45 p. m.

Secretary J. H. Burns has received a list of entries for the Fall River tournament which takes place Aug. 24 and also a finely drawn blue print showing the playout grounds at South Park. The diagram shows the arrangement of the grounds, the police, emergency, dining, veteran firemen and all other accomodations for the day.

There will be a procession of fire companies in the morning at 9.30 o'clock.

The handsome silver cup won by the Springfield Association at Portland last year, as the best appearing company in the parade, will again be contested for. The Lowell men are confident that they will make a good try at that feature also.

Other prizes for the largest number of uniformed men and one for the company coming the longest distance, will also be offered.

Drawing for position will take place on the evening of Aug. 23 at the council chamber of the city hall, Fall River.

There is much regret expressed by the followers of the tubs at the Warrens and Unions of Pepperell being unable to enter, neither of these associations being members of the league. There would be much interest in the result of their work on neutral grounds.

The entries up to date are as follows: Providence, Somerville, Pawtucket, New Bedford, Newton, Boston, Salem, Hingham, Barnicoat, Shelburne Falls, Worcester, Woonsocket, Hyde Park, Roxbury, Phoenix of Marblehead, Central Falls, Rockland, Vixen of Lowell, Charlestown, Watch City of Waltham, East Providence, Portland, Arlington, Hartford, City of Lynn, Everett, Randolph, Pittsfield, Winnisimmets of Chelsea, Hancock of Brockton, Red Jackets of Cambridge, Fall River, Eagles of Lynn, Springfield and General Butlers of Lowell.

There now seems to be no doubt of the fact that there will be 40 companies in line, making it the largest parade of the veteran firemen ever held and the playout is booked to develop more rivalry than ever before.

A Fall River druggist has offered a prize cup for the association with engine attending from the farthest distance.

Frank P. Bennett, editor of the Cotton and Wool Reporter has offered a silver cup for the best looking engine in line.

South Weymouth, Aug. 25 is the next muster. The Butlers will go down in a special car at 1 o'clock Thursday morning.

FOR SEWER WORK

Money Has Been Appropriated for it

BUT WORK CAN'T YET PROCEED

Until the City Council Orders it

THE MAYOR SHOULD BE NOTIFIED

That the Sewer Money is Exhausted

The sewer employes are still loafing though they claim there is no necessity for them to loaf at the present time.

A week or more ago, they were laid off on the excuse that the appropriations for sewer work had run out.

Up to date Mayor Crowley has received no official knowledge from the committee on sewers that the funds have been exhausted but he should receive such notice at once and upon receiving it should immediately call a special meeting of the city government to pass the orders for the work to go ahead on the Humphrey street sewer.

Some time ago it was voted to appropriate $30,000 for a sewer in Humphrey street and it needs only action of the city government to complete the preliminaries and open up work until this amount shall be exhausted.

If the sewer committee will notify Mayor Crowley that the sewer appropriations are run out, it will be his place to call a special meeting of the city council to start up the work on Humphrey street.

The members of the sewer committee should get a move on.

GROUNDING OF THE HOOKER.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANILA, Aug. 19—The board appointed to examine into the causes of the grounding of the United States cable ship Hooker which recently went ashore near the mouth of Corregidor Harbor at the entrance of Manila bay, finds that the accident occurred in day light on a reef shown in the chart and that there were evidences of carelessness on the part of the navigator of the vessel. If storm intervenes hopes are entertained that the vessel may be hauled off and repaired. Her hull has been badly torn by the coral reef on which she struck.

At the offertory Miss Louise McLaughlin sang the hymn, "Pie Jesu," by Leybach. At the conclusion of the mass Director Donnelly feelingly rendered the pathetic hymn "He Wipes the Tears Away," and during its rendition many sobs were audible in the sacred edifice. Mrs. Josephine R. McKennedy presided at the organ and performed Batiste's Funeral March as the mourners entered the church and rendered on their return Chopin's March de Funebre. The body was encased in a costly white satin broadcloth casket, "open length," and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, including the following: A large pillow inscribed "Maggie," the last love token of the bereaved family; a massive broken wreath and sickle on a magnificent base, inscribed, "Rest," from the Ingrain Weavers' Union; spray of asters, Mr. Arthur Cumminskey; spray of roses, Miss Anna Cassidy; spray of asters, Miss English; spray of pinks, Miss Harriet J. HELD CAKEWALK

ENJOYABLE PARTY IN NORTH BILLERICA LAST EVENING.

Quite a number of Lowell people went down to North Billerica last evening to an enjoyable cake walk and dance held in Talbot Memorial hall.

There were about 300 present and there was much fun.

Thomas McHenry and his partner, Miss Clark, refused to walk against Dominick Monahan and Miss Dupont. McHenry claimed that the judges would not give him a fair show. Thomas Quinn, Thomas Wilson and George Brennan the judges, said their decision would be fair, but McHenry refused to walk.

Mr. Monahan and Miss Dupont then gave an exhibition walk and received a prize of $5. G. Marcus Doyle acted as leader.

After the dance about 200 Lowell people were left for a car and most of them had to walk home. The general manager of the party said he had arranged with the electric road for a special car but it failed to appear.

The officers were: General manager, G. Marcus Doyle; assistant general manager, Percy Garrity; floor director, Charles A. Gallagher; assistant floor director, Lawrence J. Farley; aids, Walter McBride, Elijah Nickles, William McBride, Albert Dawson, all of North Billerica; reception committee, John Keegan, Thomas Welch, Thomas Casey, William Burke, and John Reynolds of Lowell; Joseph Heap of North Billerica.

TO MONTREAL ON BIKES.

Two Lowell bicyclists will start on Monday next to attempt the feat of going from Lowell to Montreal in three days on their bikes. Reference is made to William C. Fields and Jerome Fields, two brothers who are well known pharmacy clerks of this city. Last year the former accomplished the feat of going to the Derby line, Vt., a distance of 125 miles in two days.

ON A LOCOMOBILE.

Mr. C. J. Darling of the St. Charles hotel has returned from Woodville, N. H., whence he went over the road accompanied by Mr. S. C. Mussey on the locomobile and he covered the entire distance, 240 miles easily in two days. The locomobile differs from the automobile inasmuch as the former utilizes steam in its motor power. Mr. Mussey has taken his locomobile to the Newport, Vt., fair where it will be placed on exhibition.

Mr. Dennis Sullivan and daughters, Mollie and Margaret of 159 Chelmsford street, are enjoying the sea breezes at Lynn beach and vicinity.

LOWELL SOLDIER

Writes From Far Away Island of Jolo

From far away Jolo in a remote corner of the Philippines comes a letter from a Lowell boy, Dennis Mahoney, an officer in Company D, 23d Infantry who has been with the army for 12 years. Sergt. Mahoney writes to his sister, Miss Helen Mahoney of 4 New street. He left home 12 years ago and joined the army in Texas, and saw service at the frontier until the war broke out, when he went with his regiment to the Philippines. His name appears in the army records as one of the men who hauled down the Spanish flag at the surrender of Manila. Sergt. Mahoney was at home five years ago on a furlough. His letter substantially is as follows:

Jolo, Philippine Islands, June 2.

Dear Sister: I received your letter safely and it gave me great pleasure. I am in a place called Jolo, out of the way of everybody, for even ships seldom pass the place. I am pleased to state that the Filipines have not yet shot me and I have not been sick since I left the states. We had a rough time of it at first, but it is easy now. I suppose you thought I was dead, it is so long since I wrote. I am very much alive, although I did have several close calls. I met a fellow today from Lowell. His name is Green and he knew me right away. We had lots of fighting while we were in Manila, but since we came to Jolo, we have not fired a shot. Things are looking somewhat gloomy and we are liable to start from here at any time. You would be surprised to hear of all the men we lose. Down here we think nothing of seeing a man shot to pieces and telling him he is lucky he is not dead. I have a snug bank account with the paymaster and I can't put my hands on it. In case I get shot, it is willed to you. But I expect to plug many a Filipino yet before I turn up my toes. I have already sent some of them to the other foreign country. Remember me to all my friends and tell them I am still alive and kicking.

Your loving brother,

DENNIS MAHONEY,

Co. D, 23d Infantry.

The patrol wagon was subsequently called and the man was sent to the police station. At the station officers worked on him for several minutes and with the assistance of ice he was finally brought to.

A MEMENTO ROOM FURNISHED WITH THE MOST PICTURESQUE FEATURES OF A VACATION ALONG SHORE.

A GLIMPSE OF THE NEW HABIT SKIRT.

The Back will be Round and two Tunics will Fall Over a Very Deep Ruffle.

THE PLAID SHIRT WAIST.

It is Growing in Popularity and a Broad Plaid Tie is to be Worn With it.

GREY IN ALL SHADES FASHIONABLE

The waist, once all important, is playing second fiddle to the skirt, which has suddenly turned from a thing of utility and necessity only, into one of beauty and grace as well. The long, willowy line which could never be attained by compressing the waist line has been managed by compressing the hips, and the skirt has been cut and trained into something quite undreamed. The result is the slenderness long desired that "willowy grace" made immortal in the poems of Tennyson.

When hips disappeared this spring it became a matter of triumph to fit the skirt to the figure. No longer were gathers in the back possible, with that long, sweeping line which fashion demanded of the hips, and then the dressmakers took to laying the back of the skirt in folds, turned well under and flatly fastened, so as to draw the skirt even more tightly across the figure.

THE EUGENIE COUCH.

VERY ORNAMENTAL FOR A BED-ROOM.

But the new skirts of fall show a still greater diminution of fullness. The new habit skirt is absolutely tight, and is fitted to the figure as though it were moulded in wax.

FITTED HIPS.

Just why it should be any more unreasonable to fit the hips than the shoulders it would be hard to tell, as the hip fullness was never either necessary or comfortable. The swathing, sweeping skirt, with its voluminous folds at the back of the belt, was always heavy and burdensome to a woman. Better, a thousand times, the skirt which has little fullness and is consequently light in weight. This kind of a skirt is easily managed, and, once tried, becomes a favorite. Indeed, at this writing it is difficult to imagine how the woman who has worn either the linen or the narrow, thin cloth skirt all summer can go back to the heavy weight, which, under the guise of a fashionable skirt, dragged her waist and back down in previous seasons.

So much for the hygiene of the matter.

From the fashionable side there comes word that the skirts will be fitted so closely across the figure that slenderness will be absolutely demanded, and the woman who has not got it must train for it. She must reduce. This does not, of course, mean "reduce" her health, but only her fat, thereby making herself undeniably more beautiful and generally more comfortable.

The habit skirt will be closed in the back, showing only a seam, and the opening will be upon the side. It will be fitted with a tunic, and very fashionable skirts will have two tunics, one falling below the other. The bottom of the skirt has its deep ruffle, or flounce, which is set upon the lining of the skirt, or is managed by making the skirt very full around the foot.

THE PATTERN.

Our artist has endeavored to give an idea of the habit skirt as sketched at one of the leading importers of New York a few days ago. With great good nature the modiste allowed her to stretch out the paper models and to make traceries of them in reduced size. "If your readers," said the modiste, "will kindly take these diagrams and enlarge them by laying them upon large pieces of paper and marking around them, they can obtain as good a pattern of the habit skirt as I could make myself. The slender effect is all gained by the tunics."

In drawing a pattern it is advised that the readers take a different copy of the paper for each separate part of the pattern in order not to mutilate the other designs. After drawing the enlarged pattern upon a piece of brown paper it might be advisable to enlarge the pattern again, which can be done in the same way as at first. If the work is done slowly and carefully the best of results can be obtained.

A rear view of the skirt shows two tunics, one falling over the other, with a deep flounce below.

The waist of silk or very light weight cloth is the one that is to be worn with the habit skirt, not a waist of the same material. It will be plain in the back, with the most trifling suggestion of a blouse, at the waist line. The waist, by the way, seems rather short in the back, but the front is pulled low into the belt, giving the curved waist line which is so popular.

The new silk waists show a variety of nice trimmings, lace being much used. Lace is set over the silk as a yoke, and it is also made to wear with the waist as a collarette. If desired the lace can be arranged in such a way that it can be taken off, either when a yoke or a collarette.

Stocks continue to increase in size. The latest show very wide ends finished with fringe.

There are many ways of tying and fastening the new broad silk stocks. One is by gathering the ends into a ring from which they hang down flat and broad. Very decorative rings of semi-precious gems come for this purpose.

NEW RIBBONS.

The latest importations in ribbons for neckwear are really wonderful in coloring and diversity of patterns. On white and bright colored grounds there are chine designs, and over these are narrow black and white stripes or dots. Then there are beautiful plaids, pale lilac crossed with peachblow pink and autumn green; white traced with narrow diagonal bands of black, beet-root red and ecru, and plover's gray plaided in sapphire blue and mauve. Many of these ribbons come wide enough for shirt waists, being half a yard in width. They cost anywhere from $2 to $5, and women who persist in having nothing but the best can easily pay $8 a yard for them.

Pointed sleeves are still the correct thing. The Princess May sleeve, a very chic design, is round at the inside of the wrist, tapering off into the sharpest of points at the outside. It is then finished with a frill of lace, or a puffing of the waist material is admissible.

In conclusion, it is imperative that a word be said about materials for the new habit skirts. These must in all cases be light in weight, as the heavy fabrics are clumsy and ungraceful arranged in tunic effects. Light flannels, ladies' cloth, granite suiting and French cachmires are seen in the newest colorings for these skirts, and can be trimmed most attractively.

A pale nickel gray, mingled with American blue, is the very newest coloring in flannels for early autumn wear, while lime-flower green promises to prove a formidable rival for ultra-fashionable colors in the other materials.

HELEN WARD.

A SURE CURE FOR SLEEPLESSNESS.

The latest cure for insomnia is cheap, healthy and efficacious. The remedy was suggested by an old doctor, to whom a despairing young woman had gone for advice. "Of course," said the doctor, "I could give you plenty of drugs that would put you to sleep, but in the case of a young woman that is always to be avoided. The reason you cannot sleep is because your nerves are all unstrung. That does not necessarily mean that you must put your nervous system to sleep by the use of drugs. What you want is mild excitement that will lift your nervous system out of the rut it has fallen into. The best thing in the world to do that is a long trolley ride. If the route is eight or ten miles long so much the better. One thing is certain, you will either sleep during the ride or as soon as it is over."

EUGENIE BED.

A Eugenie bed is an ornament of which any sleeping room might be proud. Its foundation is a wooden bedstead, or, to be more modern, a brass one, fitted with the best of springs and mattresses enough to make the bed very soft and high.

The steps leading up to this stately couch are made of wood, and can be formed in the most primitive way. Over all a rug is thrown. A canopy is draped from the head board and caught back again from an extended frame which is built out to support it.

HOW TO KEEP EGGS.

To preserve eggs for winter use, pour six quarts of boiling water on to three pounds of lime, one ounce of cream of tartar, and half a pound of salt. Leave until cold, and then pour it over the fresh eggs, which are carefully arranged in jars, and see that there are none uncovered. Tie the jars over with thick paper, and stand on a shelf in a cool larder or storeroom.

A VISIT TO SARA BERNHARDT.

She tells our Correspondent About her Life, her Successes and the Many Things she Hopes yet to Accomplish.

By Annette Rierdon Reed.

"I will see you at 3." So ran a line from Madame Bernhardt to me, and at 3 I was well on my journey to the fashionable part of Paris, where the queen of the drama, "Sara, the Divine," as they call her in Paris, lives.

Approaching Bernhardt's house through the tiny courtyard, I saw hanging alongside the door a big bunch of purple grapes, and behind the grapes was the door signal. In answer to my touch the neatest of French maids opened the door and showed me across to a very pretty square hallway with stairs leading up. The hallway is used by Madame as a reception room.

Scarcely had I seated myself when I saw a figure upon the stairs. It was Bernhardt. She had been standing upon the top step reading by the uncertain light of a colored lamp, but as she saw me she came down the steps with outstretched hands and a hearty "I am so glad to see you!"

Of course she spoke in French, for Bernhardt does not know English. She has always declared that she would not learn it for fear it would spoil her French. A charming idiosyncrasy, truly, and one that is appreciated by both French and English audiences. If foreign stars, says a well-known critic, would cling to their own language we should not be put to the mortification of hearing our own tongue murdered upon the stage. Speak correctly or not at all should be the rule for public speakers. But we Americans are so good natured!

I thought of all this as Bernhardt's smooth, musical tongue struck upon my ear, and as she came forward with both warm hands outstretched. She shook mine cordially and pulled me toward a curling tete-a-tete, one of the sort in which you face each other, though sitting on opposite sides.

"You see me at a disadvantage," declared Madame, laughingly, "for I am alone. My friend who has been visiting me is away, and I like never to be alone. This house was built for many guests, and I am never without some one."

"Your son?"

"Oh, now," said Madame, touching the lace upon the gown as though she would place her hand upon her heart; "you mention the dearest and kindest fellow in the world. I love Maurice and he loves me. He is the most devoted of sons. Every day he comes, and many times some days, as to-day. Am I lonely he does not leave me. Am I sad he brings me bright flowers and jests and books. He is a darling, Maurice."

As Madame spoke she glanced around the room which was filled with many beautiful objects, perhaps the gifts of Maurice. There were many small clocks, for I learned afterward that she is very fond of time-pieces, and there were vases and easy chairs and rugs. Yet the room was relieved from Bohemianity by the similarity of the style of ornaments, which all belonged to the pure French renaissance, and were not scattered articles of virtu and bric-a-brac of all nations.

"I am resting now," said Madame, "for in a few days I start upon my tour of the provinces. I shall play my Hamlet entirely, for it is the greatest success of my life. Yes, I like to play it. There is a novelty about it. Shall I go to America? I hope so, for I love your people. They are so appreciative. I could play for them forever."

And now you must have a pen picture of Bernhardt. She is petite, though so slight that you take her for taller than she is. I do not think she is over five feet three. She weighs about 115 pounds, and her hair is of a light shade of natural red. It is curly, and she wears it in a French coil from which ripples curl around her face.

Her complexion is pink and her teeth are white and even. Her hands are the long, slim ones of an artist, but so delicate that you wonder how she could ever have handled the large figures which she will tell you that she modeled.

"The future? Of that I cannot speak accurately," said Madame, "but I shall play here next year in my own theatre, which I am building now. But my next play? That is not decided yet."

Bernhardt can be haughty, and there is just a suggestion of haughtiness as she speaks. She has the habit of carrying her head well back and speaking with her eyes cast down slightly, yet looking down at you instead of up. It is a stage trick, very pretty and effective, which gives dignity. That is Bernhardt's way.

"You are very busy, Madame?" I asked.

"Oh, dear, yes. What can I say? I have promised to write my recollections and experiences for a publisher and to soon finish the book. I have contracted to complete my theatre by the opening of the Exposition, and that means the earning of the necessary money for it. Business reverses have brought me low in money, and I must be active. Then there is a new play to select and rehearse, and the company always needs much drilling. Ah, if it were not for Sardou, what would I have done?"

Madame sighed and bowed her head. It was a dramatic moment. Then a merry laugh burst from her lips, for she is a creature of moods. "But that is nothing. I am so glad that my Hamlet is a success."

At that moment there was a sound at the curtains, and the maid ushered in a caller. It was Madame's reception day, and I knew that I must not take up too much of her time.

"Come again," she murmured, as I departed, and then she stood up and held out both hands again and smiled upon me one of her wonderful dazzling smiles.

As I walked out into the warm August sunshine I pondered upon this wonderful woman, who, upon the sunset slope of life's mountain, still retains the face and figure of a girl. Absolutely babyish in complexion, youthful in eyes and expression, fresh in voice, lithe as a cat and possessed of all the strong qualities of manner, this woman, though over 55, is to-day the greatest living actress.

At the age when most of us are willing to settle down into old age she is planning new achievements, and at the time when many of us are counting our grandchildren she is counting the new deeds that lie before her for accomplishment. And she has grandchildren. Maurice is a great man of over thirty. But Bernhardt alone of all who surround her is fresh and youthful.

You have heard how this woman forty years ago went on the stage at the Theatre Francaise in a small part, and how she made a failure. She was so thin, so untaught, yet so earnest that the audience ridiculed her. For ten years she struggled, then came success.

In 1880 she was at the very height of her first fame, and in that year she modelled statuary, painted for the Salon, played to packed houses, successfully toured America and set all Paris gossiping with her eccentricities. One of these was to sleep in her coffin, which she continually decorated anew with handsome bits of lace and choice silk for the becomingness of the final moment.

Her latest and greatest success is in the role of Hamlet, the part which was played by Charlotte Cushman with indifferent success and by Anna Dickenson with failure. Other women have tried Hamlet and failed. Ellen Terry predicted defeat, though she hoped for the best. And no one presaged success. But Bernhardt's Hamlet is the wonder of the century in stageland.

As I passed away from Bernhardt's home I looked back. Madame was standing at the window, her back to the pane. The lovely, long, unbroken lines of her celestial blue robe showed through the glass, and her clear, red hair gleamed above. Around her neck was a string of many colored beads, which supported, I remembered, a lorgnette. As I looked Madame moved, and the long, sinewy line of her figure passed out of sight. "Wonderful woman," I said. And a passer-by stopped and echoed my words. Yes, Bernhardt is wonderful!

MAKING A SUMMER ROOM FOR WINTER.

Practical Suggestions for Bringing Nature Indoors When Jack Frost Shall Have Spread his Mantle Over Lake and Tree.

You will want to take summer home with you from mountain and shore, and you may be glad to get a hint on how to do it effectively so that you will still see summer days when it is snowing out of doors and dream sunny dreams when storms howl. Don't expect to do it cheaply, for summer days in winter come high; and don't expect to do it without work. Be willing to spend a little and to be industrious for the rest of this month, then shall you be able to go home bearing your summer with you.

There is no summer room unless it be a memento room. You must take back with you the very things you used in summer, or their likeness. You will want to transform them to make them roomy and fit for the home, and you may want to use very modern arts for the purpose; but after all your room will savor of summer, and you will have that which your soul craves—a memento room.

Here is a shore room or mountain room, if there is a lake so that boating entered into your summer pleasures. Begin with the plainest thing you can gather in the way of furniture—an oar—and study how to make it decorative. You can use it when you get home for a portiere pole; other oars will support the window curtains. Beg, borrow and purloin oars and occupy your spare time sandpapering and polishing them. Oil makes a nice finish, and if the oars are worn down, so much the better. It gives them a pleasant look that is lacking from new oars. Any likely man will hew you a very presentable pine oar out of a pine board—and along the lake everybody can make oars—and so you can get half a dozen which you can strap together and lay aside to be sent home with your baggage.

THE CANOE.

If you have a good-sized room an old row boat, or a canoe, makes a very good and useful ornament. It must be polished inside and out and fitted with shelves, which are for bric-a-brac. Three or four shelves a foot apart will make a very presentable cabinet. Back it up with an oar, and on the oar, if you so desire, screw in tiny brass hooks for other hangings.

Paddles can be utilized even better than oars, being broader. A young woman who has been spending her vacation along Lake Superior will go home with a very pretty chair, the seat of which is fashioned from three broad, flat paddles, which are set upon three legs, a leg under each paddle. The back is paddle-shaped, thus making a very comfortable as well as decorative chair.

Mountain hats, while not, properly speaking, things of beauty, can be made usefully reminiscent by lining them with silk and shirring a silk bag inside so that fancy work can be kept in the hat. Think well before you hang up a useless article, for such seem to collect dust wonderfully, but where use and pleasant association can both be preserved there you will do the best with your memento room.

Take home many pillows. Gather pine needles by the sack and sew up the receptacle while the needles are fresh. The pillows will weigh a ton, but they will be so sweet that you will seek them in your tired moments for a year to come. And they are an excellent remedy for nervous headaches. Plain bed ticking will do for the pillow covers, but if you desire you can slip on new cases later. It is a pretty idea to use one's mountain dress in the making of a pillow.

A girl who has climbed all summer in a heavy blue denim skirt is about to cut out the best breadths of the skirt for pine needle pillows. Those who have been in the party will embroider their initials upon the pillow, while the male persuasion will indite a line or so of poetry in indelible ink.

Have you ever tried the experiment of making a couch cover from strips of old colored linen, such as they have been using for dress skirts this summer?

A tiny strip of bright red linen is sewed in between the broader stripes of blue, tan, gray and white. These covers are lined with plain linen or with a striped lining made up in the same way as the outside, thus making a two-sided afghan. This sort of coverlid launders well and is immensely decorative, the bright red giving it a very Oriental appearance.

SMALL THINGS.

Try, too for your memento room, the experiment of knitting a rug, upon knitting needles, with plain knitting stitch. Use the tiniest strips of old summer finery, sewed in one long strip, as though you were making a rag carpet. Choose all dark colors except for dashes of scarlet.

The evergreens last all winter, and will not shed their needles except in exceptional cases, where the needles have already begun to fall, and there are such stand-bys as cat tails and dried golden rod. Dip the former in a weak solution of glue and dry the latter in the dark.

You can make pillows of down if you wish to embark upon an endless undertaking. For the down select thousands of thistles and place them in bags. Lay them away when fairly well dried and three months hence open the bag. You will find it filled with softest thistle down. So with cat tails. They will "feather out" and give you down, but you must gather millions of them.

For the more ambitious features of your memento room you must beg the spinning wheel from the old mill rooms, and you must get the old gun of the farmer and the skin of the fox which has been caught somewhere in your neighborhood. Get the "brush" at all events, for a tail is better than no fox.

Deer heads, antlers, pine cones and all these outdoor things keep summer all the year for you. Don't forget to dry a few ferns and mount them upon pasteboard. They will look very well in the small, old frames you have at home. Or you can make frames from twigs. Resurrect the old ways of using woodland twigs, and you will be surprised to find with what a goodly array of decorative articles you will start upon your homeward journey.

Many women occupy their time the last few weeks making rustic chairs of rough boughs.

SOUTHERN PERFUMERY.

As good perfumery from flowers is made at the South as is imported from abroad. A common method of extraction is to make layers of beef tallow and blooms, then cut up the tallow and soak it in alcohol, an air-tight box being first provided, with panes of glass that just fit into it. The tallow is laid upon the glass, and the blooms of the flowers, gathered early in the morning, as soon as the dew is dried off, are strewn thickly upon its surface; then a layer of mutton suet or beef tallow, cut into small pieces, is spread over the blooms; another pane of glass is placed on top of this; then a layer of tallow and blooms, as before, this operation being repeated until the box is full, when it is shut up tight and placed in a cool, dark, even-temperatured room, and in twenty-four to thirty-six hours the tallow will have absorbed all the odor of the blooms.

HOMELY MRS. KRUGER.

Mrs. Kruger, the wife of President Kruger, of the Transvaal, who is an extremely homely woman, does nearly all her own housework, cooking meals, making her own bed and always taking a hand in the family washing. When her husband has "state guests" to dinner the good lady will trust the task of waiting on the table to no one, and, donning a white apron, she performs the office of butler. Her husband has a private fortune of $25,000,000, but it's "Aunty" Kruger's boast that they live on their "coffee money"—a perquisite of $2,000 a year allowed them by the government.

HAYES AND RIVET

Will Probably Contest For Representative Nomination

RIVET BACKED BY GUILD MEN

Who Desire to Punish Hayes

There is the hottest kind of a tumult brewing in the ranks of the republican party and it will be good fun to sit one side and contemplate its progress.

The Sun will watch the progress and will keep you informed on the latest inside happenings, even as it exclusively tipped you off on the appointment of Louis Lebrun as turnkey at the Lowell jail by the Guild men, a few days ago.

Most of the fights of the republicans of Lowell leave some one particular bone of contention. But this one if it ever had an original bone has lost it in a general fight which augurs well for republican success, I think not.

Perhaps the original bone of contention was the action of George W. Poore, Esq., chairman of the republican city committee, in coming out for Hon. Curtis Guild so strongly, even after attending and addressing the launching of the Bates boom. Since then, however, the row has grown, until it takes in the deputy sheriff and one of the representative fights.

The Guild men believe that they have achieved a master stroke in securing the appointment of Louis Lebrun at the Lowell jail, and flushed with success, they now essay to punish Bill Hayes, the leader of the Bates movement in Lowell by defeating him for representative.

It's always about election time that this crowd show their love for the French American votes, but Bill Hayes has always been the "big bonhomme" and could get about anything he wanted from them. When the fight grew hot between Bates and Guild, with Bill Hayes the recognized leader of the former, and Jim Bennett, looking after the latter, Bill was happy in the knowledge of the fact that with Cyrille Constantanea, Camille Roussin, Sam Snow, Web Bugbee and their new "find," Lous Lebrun, back of him, the French-American vote would not be found wanting. On the other hand the colonel's only and questionable consolatio was that 300 more polls had been assessed in Ward Seven and being mostly democrats there might be a chance to at last suppress "Old Hundred."

But the fight went on until the Guild men who wanted to do Bates hit upon a scheme that up-to-date has been successful, and it was to take the influence of the new "find" Lebrun, and that of his friends away from the Bates leaders by appointing Lebrun, who was without employment, to the lucrative, easy and supposedly dignified position of turnkey at the Lowell jail. Now when this scheme was broached to the Baker-Stiles-Shaw wing of the county ring, it hit there just right for by it they saw a chance to knock out Cyrille for Deputy sheriff, for the latter once in office would soon work in his friends, Bill, Sam and Web and the famous ring would lose its exclusiveness.

Therefore they lost no time in appointing Councilman Lebrun and the latter will have gratitude enough to help them out in most any legitimate capacity.

Since the appointment of Lebrun, it is the general impression that it is now "all off" with Cyrille, for it is argued with only two jobs in the gifts of the sheriff this year, he can hardly be expected to give both of them to the French-American wing of the party and there will be doubtless considerable gnashing of teeth when some of the erstwhile hopeful candidates of French extraction realize the painful facts.

But the Guild men intend to go further. They are going to show Bill Hayes, that is they propose to show the genial William that he is no longer the thing in his district and are going to attempt to get the French vote away from him by springing Ex-Alderman Francis P. Rivet, Esq., as a candidate for the legislature in William's ward on the similar similar guarantee plan. Ex-Alderman Rivet, up to a few days ago was attending the performance at Lakeview Theatre regularly, having an innocent and pleasant time, while no thought of politics disturbed his characteristic tranquility. Now he has a bee in his bonnet, with every chance of the insect turning into a kissing bug and giving it to him "on ze neck."

While in the board of aldermen Mr. Rivet never did any harm to anybody, his political opponents had no reason to criticize adversely and he never made a very deep impression upon his constituents. If Rivet is the strongest man they will find to fight Hayes, they might as well throw up the sponge before their man is knocked out, for I have it on the best of authority that the French-Americans will be with Hayes to a man.

LABOR MEN ACTIVE

In Preparation for Labor Day Celebration

THE ENGINEERS CANNOT PARADE

Stationary Engineers Have an Interesting Session

Sunday will be a very busy day for the labor men of Lowell.

In the morning the Labor Day committee will meet at 10 o'clock in Building Laborers' hall and considerable important business will come before the meeting.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Chief Marshal John J. Mahoney, and his staff will meet to decide upon the regalia to be adopted for Labor day.

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council will be held at 2.30 o'clock, and it is expected that the drawing for positions in line Labor Day will come up at the meeting. Chief Marshal Mahoney will also announce his route for the parade.

MACHINSTS WILL NOT PARADE.

The Machinists' Union held a largely attended meeting last evening in Leather Workers' hall on Central street, and considerable business was transacted. Speakers from out-of town were expected, but they failed to attend, but letters were received from them in which they said they would be here positively next Friday evening. It was voted to remain without permanent officers until after the charter is closed, Sept. 1. It was voted not to participate in the parade Labor Day, because the union is not yet fully organized and is without permanent officers.

Thirty candidates were admitted to membership and several applications were received.

STATIONARY ENGINEERS.

There was a busy session of Lowell Association of Stationary Engineers last night.

On candidate was initiated and seven applications were accepted. The association has received four applications for engineers, which they have been unable to fill. Word has been sent to Nashua and Lawrence to learn were any engineers out of work.

A new library on mechanical and steam literature will soon be started. The members are arranging for an outing and clam bake to be held in the near future.

The convention committee reported that it was the finest one ever held by state or national associations. The several concerns who had exhibits here all sent letters of approval of the way in which the displays were arranged.

Miss Rose Ducharme of O'Donnell & Gilbride's and Miss Agnes Young of S. T. Farrell's will have a two weeks' vacation at Nantasket beach, beginning Monday.

Mr. Joe Miller, the popular clerk of the Merrimack Clothing company, having returned from a pleasant two weeks at Newport, Vt., is finishing up his rustication at the north common.

Workmen are busily engaged at Huntington hall but as yet the job has not assumed a definite appearance.

It is beautifully laid out, as follows: Large hall, parlor and sitting room, finished in red birch with hard wood polished floors; dining room finished in quartered oak, with a beautiful tiled fireplace and mantel, china closet, built in wall; a very large kitchen and pantry with a modern refrigerator built in wall, where ice can be received from outside; also a large shed on first floor.

Five beautiful sleeping rooms and bath all finished in hard wood on second floor, all open work nickel plumbing, laundry in cellar, set tubs, hot and cold water, an entrance from cellar to yard.

The house is heated by furnace with 10 registers; all the windows facing Methuen and Humphrey streets are all plate glass. There are three balconies leading from the sleeping rooms upstairs. A front piazza of artistic design runs the full length of the house and is eight feet wide. Every door and window is screened. Carpenters who have worked on this house tell me that it is one of the best built houses in Lowell. Parties looking for a nice home should call on the auctioneer who will be pleased to show the premises at any time.

The lot has a frontage of 50 feet on Methuen street and 130 feet on Humphrey street; there is plenty of room for a barn. It is high and dry and is all fenced in.

Location: This place is situated at the corner of Methuen and Humphrey streets and is one of the best in the city. It is in the immediate vicinity of many beautiful and costly residences. It is on very high land, with beautiful scenery, very convenient for a business man and it has been said the electric cars will run by this property within a short time.

OFF FOR CAMP DUTY

Companies C and G and the Ambulance Corps

CAPT. AMOS R. LEIGHTON of Troop F, Cavalry.

With Troop F. Cavalry Started This Morning—Service in Memory of George Wenden Who Died at Sea—The Departure From the Depot This Morning

The armory last evening on the eve of going into muster was the scene of solemn and impressive ceremony in honor of an absent comrade, who accompanied the boys of the Sixth to Framingham on their last trip there but who has since then responded to the final summons, the last trumpet call of the great captain on high.

CAPT. CARR of Company G.

Reference is made to the late lamented Sergt. George C. Wenden of Co. C in whose honor memorial serveces were held last evening. Sergt. Wenden, it will be remembered, died on the hospital ship Relief about ten months ago on his passage home from Porto Rico and was buried at sea. A bank of beautiful flowers was placed on a table immediately beneath the portrait of Sergt. Wenden.

Company C's quarters were tastefully decorated in the national colors. The beautiful likeness of Sergt. Wenden which hangs on the wall was draped with the same material and from the bank of flowers two red lights burned.

The company was well represented, and there were also in attendance a number of Sergt. Wenden's most intimate friends. A quartette comprising Osmond Long, Harry Stocks, Burton H. Preston and A. L. Kerr sang appropriate music during the service.

Lieut. Rose called to order and in the course of his remarks said: "Tonight we are called to honor the memory of a man who was universally respected and loved, a man who performed his duty in civic life as a man or of Sergt. Wenden's acquaintance, and in war as a soldier. It is unfortunate for me that I never had the hon- but I have heard him spoken of so much and in such affectionate terms that I know well the nobility of his character.

"When I think of what Sergt. Wenden must have been to you I am reminded of other such men who died in the regiment with which I was associated during the war and I can thus imagine your feelings as you are gathered here tonight. Some of the memories of war are irrepressibly sad. I recall a time tonight when the sick list in our regiment jumped from 19 to 35 a day and in the middle of the night when I myself was tossing on a feverish bed, the sound of the dead wagon came to my ears and I thought of the indescribable sadness that was to follow for some poor family. I could not help wondering who was to be the next victim as the wagon with its ghastly burden passed along the road to the burial ground.

"But in thinking of the death of Sergt. George C. Wendon, there is a comfort in realizing that he was a noble man and a valiant soldier. And while we are not in a position to be able to erect a costly tombstone in his honor, his memory will always live among us and may it prove an inspiration to all of us in our military life."

The quartette then sang "We Shall Meet but We Shall Miss Him" and on its conclusion there were very few dry eyes in the room.

SERGT. CUNNINGHAM'S EULOGY.

Sergt. Cunningham had a word to say in eulogy of the soldier.

"I had known George Wenden eight years," he said, "and never met a man who had more good qualities. When we heard the news of his death we refused at first to believe it, as he had left the perfect picture of health and strength. In painful anxiety I went down town and noticed the announcement of his death on one of the bulletin boards. I knew then that it was all too true and with many misgivings I returned to inform the father. I will not attempt to describe what followed, gentlemen, but I want to say that you will never find a truer hearted man than George Wenden."

"My Country, 'Tis of Thee" and "Farewell" were sung by the quartette. Lieut. Colby T. Kittredge then spoke feelingly upon the relationship of Sergt. Wenden and the company.

Rev. J. M. Craig of the First Presbyterian church followed.

Rev. Mr. Craig spoke briefly on the terrors of war and the awaking after death to a broader life.

The quartette sang "They're Gathering Homeward," after which Arthur E. Salmon spoke briefly, though touchingly upon his association with Sergt. Wenden. The benediction by Rev. J. M. Craig was followed by the mournful taps played by Bugler Riggs. The two red lights were extinguished with the last notes of taps and the services were over.

The members of Troop F, Cavalry, under command of Captain Amos R. Leighton went over the road early this morning on horseback to Camp Framingham. The North Chelmsford squad consisting of 15 men left at 4 o'clock and joined the other squads at Saxonville.

At the armory in this city everything was hustle and bustle until the hour of departure for the depot. The advance guard went to camp Thursday night and yesterday the camp crew of Company C with the bantam Billy Decatur as mascot went down, namely, Percy Swazy, Frank McGlynn, James McKenzie, William Hatch, Cornelius Kelliher and Private Delorme.

Both companies, C and G, and the ambulance corps left the armory under command of Captain Ed. Carr and Captain Thomas Livingstone. There were very few absentees and only those remained behind who were incapacitated and unable to perform camp duty. It was 9.20 o'clock when the Lowell companies left the armory, going through Westford, Grand and Middlesex streets and at 9.50 a special was boarded for South Framingham, amid the cheering of hundreds of enthusiastic admirers who gathered about the Northern depot.

Battery C. of Lawrence, under command of Major William Steadman, passed through this city at 9.30 o'clock en route to Camp Framingham. They left Lawrence at 7.30 o'clock and had pretty rough going over the road. They made a stay of half an hour in Lowell. A large number of Lowellians will go down to Framingham tomorrow and during the week.

A BIG BLAZE.

Seven members of the fire department were sent to the bog near the Harvard Brewery Friday afternoon. It was burning fiercely and it took several hours to put out the glow. This is the second fire in the same place this month.
